
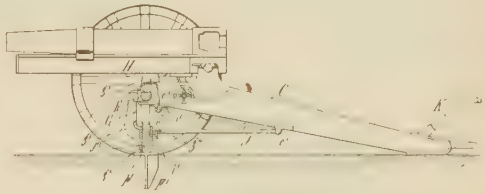
5. A device for adjusting the recoil length in fluid recoil brakes, having a piston and a part cooperating with the piston, said part being provided with a primary helical groove and a secondary helical groove, and said piston with a primary aperture and a secondary aperture corresponding, respectively, to said primary and secondary grooves; said primary groove and aperture operating during all recoil lengths, and said secondary groove and aperture being out of operation during the shortest recoil; said primary groove having approximately double the width of and a greater pitch than said secondary groove; said primary and secondary apertures having the same transverse width as the secondary groove.

1,417,923. AXLE SPADE FOR MOBILE ARTILLERY. NORBERT KOCH, Essen-Rellinghausen, Germany, assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Alien Property Custodian. Filed Dec. 26, 1913. Serial No. 808,854. 4 Claims. (Cl. 89—42.)



1. An anchorage device for gun carriages comprising an anchoring portion and a carriage abutting portion; a locking member on the carriage detachably connected to said abutting portion, whereby said two portions will be released from the carriage upon the detachment of said locking member from said abutting portion.

1,417,924. COMPUTING MACHINE. ANDRÉ KORONSKI, Narberth, Pa. Filed Apr. 22, 1913, Serial No. 762,776. Renewed Sept. 17, 1920. Serial No. 410,977. 27 Claims. (Cl. 235—59.)

12. In a computing machine, the combination of a numeral wheel, means for actuating the same, a numeral wheel of higher denomination situated adjacent thereto, a revoluble stop member, a motor spring having connection with the numeral wheel of lower denomination and with the said revoluble stop member, a pivoted two-armed release and stop device having its arms situated upon the opposite sides of the said revoluble stop member, the stops upon the said arms being adapted to be alternately engaged by the said revoluble stop member, a cam upon the said numeral wheel of lower denomination for causing movement of the said pivoted stop member to cause alternating engagement and disengagement of the said revoluble stop member therewith, and means intermediate the said revoluble stop member and the numeral wheel of higher denomination to cause a one-step revolution of the latter upon the releasing of said revoluble stop member.

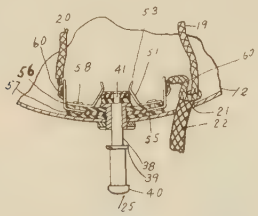
23. In a computing machine, the combination of a series of keys, a column actuator, a numeral wheel adapted to be actuated by the said column actuator, means for preventing said numeral wheel from over-running, a locking bar, a spring-pressed lever for holding the said locking bar in normally unlocking position, a pivoted member supported upon the said lever, means upon the said column actuator for engaging the said member upon upward movement after only a partial depression to effect pivotal movement of the said lever to release the said locking bar, means actuated by the complete depression of a key, to cause pivotal movement of the said member out of position to be engaged by the said means upon the said column actuator, and means for retaining the said member in such position until after the actuator has returned after a complete depression to its normal position.

1,417,925. ELECTRIC SWITCH. EUGENE A. KUEN, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor to The Thos. J. Corcoran Lamp Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed May 24, 1920. Serial No. 383,910. 3 Claims. (Cl. 200—163.)



2. In a switch, the combination of a base comprising a plurality of insulating layers, electro-conductive fingers attached thereto in separated relation, a threaded sleeve received through said insulating layers between said electro-conductive fingers, said sleeve provided with a flange at one side of said layers, a nut threaded to said sleeve at the opposite side of said layers for clamping said insulating layers between said flange and said nut, an axially movable stem in said sleeve the axis whereof is located between said fingers, and an electro-conductive part and an insulating part on said stem arranged to respectively coact with said electro-conductive fingers by axial movements of said stem in opposite directions.

1,417,926. REFLECTOR FOR AUTOMOBILE HEADLIGHTS, ETC. CHARLES AUSTIN LESTER, Winona, Minn. Filed Apr. 13, 1920. Serial No. 373,546. 4 Claims. (Cl. 240—41.)

4. A reflector having a reflecting surface composed of a series of parabolic elements having a series of axes, all in the same vertical plane, which make different angles with the main axis of the reflector, the angle made by any given axis with the said main axis increasing in each quadrant in a given ratio to the angle made by said element with a horizontal plane passed through said main axis, whereby when said main axis is held in the horizontal plane the highest-rising rays reflected from any given point on the surface of the reflector are caused to assume a substantially horizontal position.

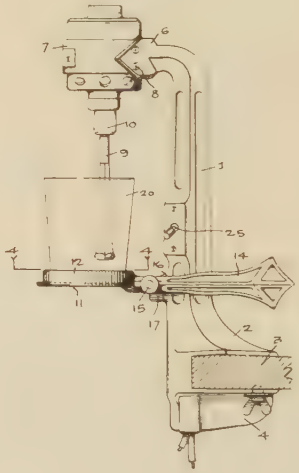
1,417,927. FLUID MIXER. HENRI G. LEVY, San Francisco, Calif. Filed May 9, 1921. Serial No. 467,804. 5 Claims. (Cl. 259—134.)



1. A device such as described, comprising in combination a standard; a motor fixed thereon and having an agitator projecting therefrom; and a platform pivotally mounted on said standard and having counterbalance arms extending on both sides of said standard.

1,417,928. INDICATING APPARATUS. CHESTER B. LORD, Battle Creek, Mich. Filed Nov. 23, 1921. Serial No. 517,218. 11 Claims. (Cl. 40—19.5.)

5. In an indicating apparatus, the combination of a frame, a plurality of spaced parallel vertically disposed wires crossed by a plurality of spaced parallel horizontally disposed wires, means dividing the said series of wires into a plurality of horizontal zones, indicators provided with retaining means adapted to enter spaces formed between the horizontal and vertical wires, and means adapted to return the indicators to predetermined positions when released from the wires.

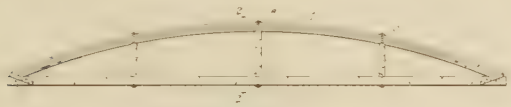
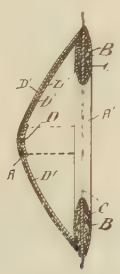
1,417,929. TRUSS. JOHN C. MCKEOWN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 20, 1919. Serial No. 325,243. 2 Claims. (Cl. 14—9.)



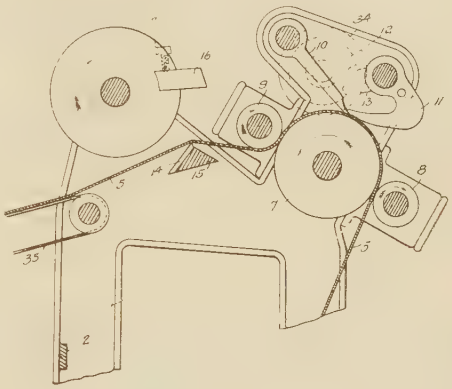
1. In a truss, the combination of a bowed top chord and a bottom chord, means for rigidly connecting the ends of the top chord to the bottom chord, and bracing for said truss comprising only tie rods which connect said top and bottom chords, stanchions inserted between said top and bottom chords, said stanchions being provided with holes formed lengthwise through the same through which said tie rods extend, said stanchions comprising a plurality of connected longitudinal sections and the holes therein being formed by grooves formed in the connected sides of said sections, substantially as described.

1,417,930. SURGICAL BUST SUBSTITUTE. LAURA E. MAILLEUE, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Filed May 14, 1919. Serial No. 297,030. 3 Claims. (Cl. 2—87.)



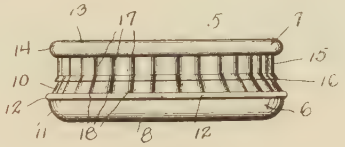
1. A surgical bust substitute comprising an annular casing of soft pliable material, a filler disposed within said casing, a frame composed of resilient strips arched above and secured to said casing, a fabric cover for said frame, and means for attaching the structure to a form.

1,417,931. COATING FOUNTAIN AND THE LIKE. AXEL C. V. MALM, Lansdowne, Pa., assignor to American Engineering Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed Oct. 7, 1918, Serial No. 257,126. Divided and this application filed Jan. 2, 1919, Serial No. 269,285. Renewed Nov. 4, 1921. Serial No. 512,937. 10 Claims. (Cl. 91—30.)



1. In a mechanism of the character described, means for advancing a sheet of flexible material, a device for supporting a quantity of viscous cement and for applying the same to the surface of said material, and automatically controlled means to render said cement applying device inoperative during a portion of the time said sheet is being advanced, whereby a part only of said sheet will be coated with cement.

1,417,932. METAL BOX. ALEXANDER R. MANN, Montreal, Quebec, Canada. Filed Feb. 28, 1921. Serial No. 448,415. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—42.)



A box of the character described comprising a body portion and a cover therefor, said body portion including a bottom and circular side wall, the latter being tapered from the juncture of the bottom inwardly, a bead extending around the edge of said bottom at its juncture with the tapered side wall, the cover of said tapered side wall having a circular upper edge, said cover comprising a top having a rounded edge, a circular side wall extending from the rounded edge of said cover and being of a dimension smaller than that of the greatest dimension of said cover, the circular side wall of the cover fitted over the circular portion of the side wall of the body portion, the lower edge of said circular side wall of the cover being flared to engage the tapered portion of the side wall of the body, and the said side walls of the body portion and the cover each having interfitting spaced parallel corrugations extending vertically therein, said corrugations being spaced relatively close to each other, substantially as and for the purposes set forth.

1,417,933. STRUCTURE FOR OPERATING UPON CIGAR WRAPPINGS. ALBERT E. MASPONS, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Feb. 11, 1920. Serial No. 357,986. 9 Claims. (Cl. 131—11.)

9. Structure for dressing the foil upon a foil-wrapped cigar comprising a member rotatable with respect to the cigar and having a recess adapted to receive the foil-wrapped cigar, said recess having a wall for smoothing the foil, and said member having an aperture forming a foil-removing edge.

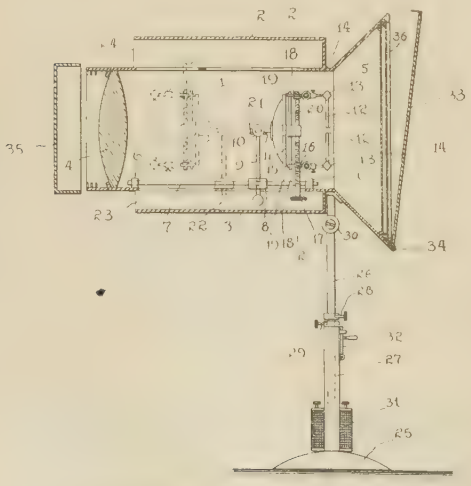
1,417,934. HEEL PROTECTOR FOR LADIES' SHOES. FLORA E. MILLER, Sparta, Ill. Filed May 1, 1920. Serial No. 378,277. 1 Claim. (Cl. 36—72.)

A heel protector for ladies' shoes comprising a thin flat strip of elastic material having a central body portion having a convexed upper edge and having its lower edge converging to a point midway the ends of said body portion, one end of said central body portion terminating in a short narrow strap member, a plurality of snap fastener heads fixed to said short strap member, the opposite end of said central body portion terminating in a long narrow strap member and a snap fastener button fixed to the free end of said long strap member adapted for locked engagement with any one of the snap fastener heads of the short strap member to securely hold the protector in position upon the heel of a shoe.

1,417,935. THEATRICAL LAMP. FREDERICK MITCHELL, Brooklyn, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Charles McCabe Ford, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed June 18, 1921. Serial No. 478,740. 3 Claims. (Cl. 240—3.)

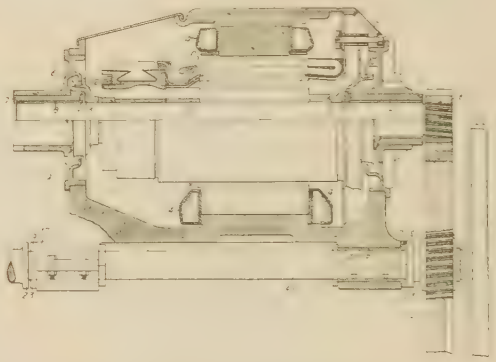


1. A lamp comprising a casing having light concentrating means at one end and light spreading means at its opposite end, and a longitudinally adjustable light organism, reversibly mounted in said casing, to co-act respectively with said light concenerating means and light spreading means.

1,417,936. REENFORCED BRIDGE SPAN. RALPH MODJESKI, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Sept. 26, 1921. Serial No. 503,187. 15 Claims. (Cl. 14—1.)

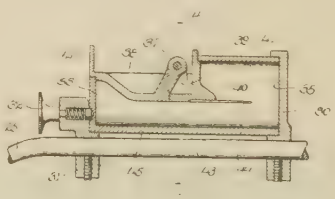
1. In a reenforced bridge structure the combination of an original span comprising trusses, end supports therefor, and a floor comprising transverse floor beams, a supplementary span comprising trusses, and end supports therefor positioned sufficiently higher than the end supports for the original span that said supplementary span will clear the floor of the bridge, the trusses of said supplementary span comprising web members which are extended down and are connected to the floor beams of the bridge, substantially as described.

1,417,937. GEAR FOR RAILWAY MOTORS. WILLIAM E. MOORE, Milwaukee, Wis., assignor to R. D. Nuttall Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Aug. 1, 1919. Serial No. 314,596. 17 Claims. (Cl. 74—41.)



1. In a railway vehicle, the combination with a wheel axle, an electric motor having an armature shaft parallel to said axle and a frame containing axle and shaft bearings, of a single helical gear wheel on the axle and a single directly co-operating helical gear wheel on the shaft for operatively connecting the axle and the shaft.

1,417,938. DENTAL FLASK. JAMES J. MOUNT, Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 29, 1921. Serial No. 504,171. 2 Claims. (Cl. 22—97.)



1. A device of the class described comprising a flask adapted for support on a centrifugal casting machine, said flask having a removable section comprising a pair of hinged parts, a pattern integrally formed on said removable section for molding a crucible, and a sprue mounted on one of said hinged parts for supporting a fusible pattern adapted to mold a matrix, said sprue being arranged to mold a channel providing communication between the matrix and crucible.

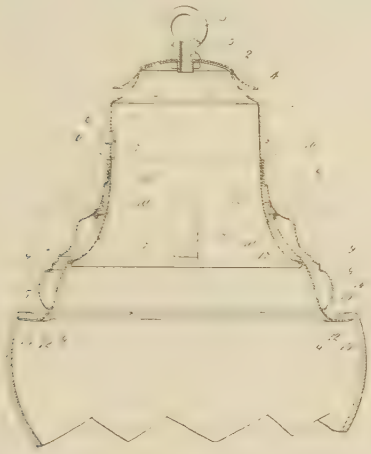
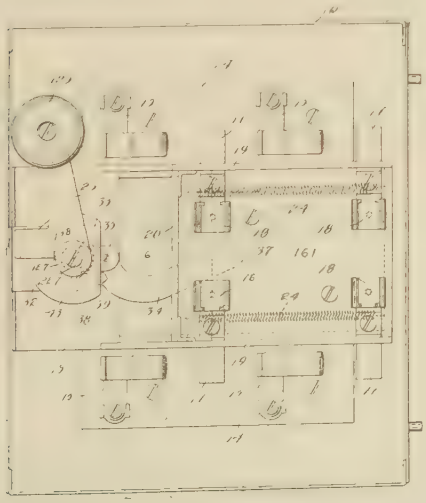
1,417,939. HOLDER FOR GLOBES. BARNET NEWLAND, New York, N. Y., assignor to Incandescent Supply Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed July 26, 1921. Serial No. 487,691. 3 Claims. (Cl. 240—115.)



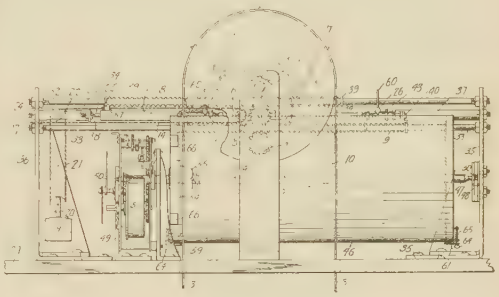
1. A holder for globes comprising, in combination, a screw ring, heat shield, and bell-shaped body, a wire passage through said screw ring, heat shield and body, heat vents in and a spring pressed button projecting through said body, a removable apron, slidably mounted on said body, hinged leaves fastened thereto, said leaves having flared lips at the ends thereof adapted to support the globe, the flare on said body being adapted to support said apron and keep the leaves in contact with the globe, for the purpose described.

1,417,940. SERVICE SWITCH. GRANVILLE E. PALMER, Boston, Mass., assignor to The Palmer Electric & Manufacturing Company, Boston, Mass., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Apr. 12, 1918. Serial No. 228,102. 5 Claims. (Cl. 200—50.)



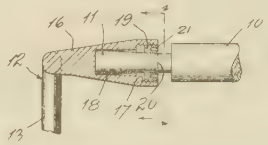
1. A service switch comprising a slide carrying movable contacts, a toggle including a straight link and a curved link arranged to move said slide in opposite directions to closed and open positions respectively, and, when in dead-center positions, to lock said slide in said open and closed positions, spring mechanism for automatically moving said slide to open position, an oscillatory member, and lost-motion means connecting said toggle and said member whereby said slide is operated in one direction to closed and locked position by said member and said toggle, and said slide may be operated in the other direction to open and locked position by said spring mechanism independently of said member.

1,417,941. VENTURI FLUME WATER-STAGE-RECORDING INSTRUMENT. RALPH L. PARSHALL, Fort Collins, Colo. Filed July 27, 1921. Serial No. 488,009. 5 Claims. (Cl. 234—10.) (Filed under the act of Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. L., 625.)



1. A Venturi flume recorder comprising a sliding carriage, a differential gear adapted for translational movement with a two for one ratio attachment including a pulley supported from the differential gear for actuating the sliding carriage, the latter supporting a scribing instrument.

1,417,942. CULTIVATOR. CHARLES PUTKOWSKI, Staten Island, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Wladyslaw Bronicki, Marine Harbor, N. Y. Filed Aug. 11, 1921. Serial No. 491,383. 1 Claim. (Cl. 306—31.)



A garden implement comprising a head, a socket member associated with the head, said socket member having an axial internally threaded opening and a reduced bore at the inner end of the threaded opening, a handle, a tapered pin in one end of the handle arranged in axial alinement therewith, the larger end of said pin being disposed outwardly and adapted to fit the reduced bore in the socket member, and a split ring adapted to fit around the tapered pin and to be screwed into the threaded opening in the socket member, whereby the tapered pin will be firmly held in position in the reduced bore.

1,417,943. EVAPORATING PAN. CHARLES E. ROGERS, Detroit, Mich. Filed Jan. 25, 1919. Serial No. 273,023. 7 Claims. (Cl. 257—205.)

2. An evaporating pan for the condensing of milk or other fluids comprising the combination with the pan, of a series of independent steam heating coils in superimposed relation, each unit being independently connected with the steam line and consisting of an inner and an outer coil, the two coils being connected together at adjacent ends to a common inlet and a common outlet, the space between the coil ends of one unit being on the opposite side of the pan from that of an adjacent unit.

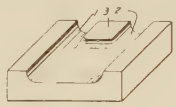
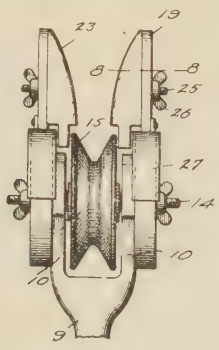
1,417,944. DIES FOR MAKING RETURN BENDS. GILBERT E. RYDER, Leonia, N. J. Original application filed May 1, 1919, Serial No. 294,100. Divided and this application filed Apr. 6, 1920. Serial No. 371,655. 3 Claims. (Cl. 29—1.)



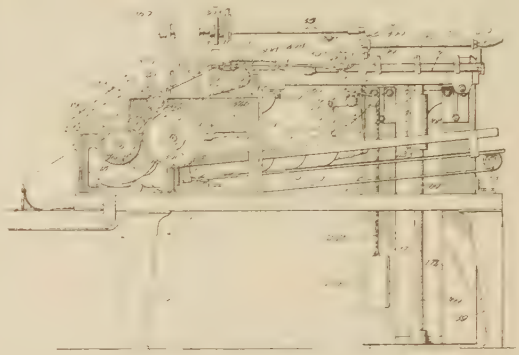
1. A die for making pipe bends and similar structures comprising a female member having parallel bores for holding two pipe lengths, said bores being joined by a space opening from the end of the die, said bores being spaced apart so their axes are separated by a distance materially greater than one half of the circumference of either bore, and a male member having two legs for entering said bores, said legs being connected by a web, the male member being shaped generally complementary to the co-operating portions of the female member, but being, when inserted in it, spaced everywhere from its walls.

1,417,945. TROLLEY-POLE HEAD. VINCENZO SACCONE, Johnstown, Pa. Filed Jan. 10, 1922. Serial No. 528,211. 3 Claims. (Cl. 191—73.)



1. A trolley head including a forked member equipped with an axle carrying a wheel, the ends of said axle being extended beyond the sides of said forked member, trolley wire guide housings engaged over the branches of said forked member, and a guide member mounted in each housing and pivoted on one end of said axle.

1,417,946. PROCESS OF PLACING WRAPPERS ON PACKAGES AND MECHANISM FOR CARRYING OUT SAID PROCESS. AXEL R. SCHOLIN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Automatic Wrapping Machine Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Oct. 7, 1918. Serial No. 257,222. 46 Claims. (Cl. 216—59.)

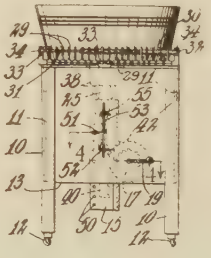


1. The method of applying wrappers to packages comprising the steps of moistening the wrappers, stretching said wrappers while in separate sheets by subjecting them to positive mechanical tension, and applying them to the packages subsequent to the stretching operation and while they are still moist.

1,417,947. ORE LEACHING. WALTER SCHOPPER, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, assignor to Metallbank und Metallurgische Gesellschaft, Aktiengesellschaft, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, a Corporation of Germany. Filed Sept. 24, 1921. Serial No. 503,025. 3 Claims. (Cl. 23—31.)

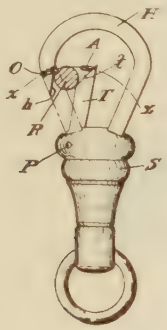
3. A process for continuously leaching ores and the like on the countercurrent principle in an apparatus having a series of leaching vessels, comprising moving the ore through the vessels in one direction and surging the extracting liquor from one vessel to the next in the opposite direction.

1,417,948. ADJUSTABLE WASHSTAND. MIKE SESKA, Niles, Ohio. Filed July 11, 1921. Serial No. 483,721. 6 Claims. (Cl. 45—9.)



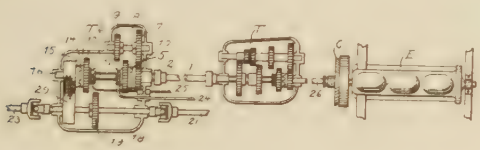
1. A device of the class described comprising a table element of adjustable area, a support therefor, and means including a single operating member for simultaneously moving said table element vertically and varying the area thereof.

1,417,949. SWIVEL. OTIS H. SLEEPER, Exeter, N. H. Filed Jan. 10, 1922. Serial No. 528,348. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—240.)



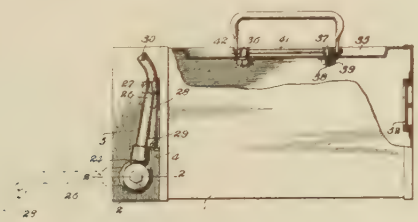
1. A watch swivel comprising a casing, a swivel ring at one end thereof, a hook at the other end of the casing and having an internally beveled end, a tongue pivoted in said casing at one end and having its opposite end outwardly beveled and disposed to cooperate with said hook end, a spring for automatically closing said tongue outwardly against said hook end, a pin on the bevel end of said tongue and having its end lying below the outer surface of the tongue, said hook end having a recess disposed to receive said pin upon the automatic closing of said tongue.

1,417,950. TRANSMISSION. JAMES SHEPARD SMALLEY, Muscatine, Iowa. Filed Apr. 27, 1921. Serial No. 464,772. 7 Claims. (Cl. 74—57.)



1. Change speed gearing comprising a main transmission affording a plurality of speed changes, and an auxiliary transmission to which the speed changes are imparted embodying means for changing the speed ratio of each of said speed changes and means for reversing the drive in all of said speed changes.

1,417,951. EMERGENCY GASOLINE CAN. EDWARD C. STAPLES and HARRY H. DEAN, Canton, Ohio. Filed Aug. 5, 1921. Serial No. 490,181. 1 Claim. (Cl. 221—26.)

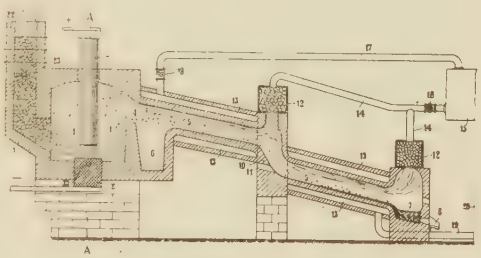


A fluid container comprising a rectangular body portion, a recess formed in said body portion, a discharge aperture located within said recess, a spider adjacent the inner side of the wall of said recess and aligned with said discharge aperture, a bolt projecting through said and held by said spider, an open ended thimble fitting against the outer side of the wall of said recess and encircling said discharge aperture, the said bolt extending through said thimble, a nut threaded on said bolt and tightened against the outer end of said thimble, a port formed in said thimble and communicating with the interior of said can through said discharge aperture, a conical member rotatably mounted upon said thimble, a pouring spout carried by said conical member and a passageway through said spout and conical member arranged to register with said port when the conical member is rotated.

1,417,952. PROCESS TO PRODUCE MIXTURES OF HYDROGEN AND NITROGEN. EMERICH SZARVASY, Budapest, Hungary. Filed Feb. 12, 1915. Serial No. 7,907. 1 Claim. (Cl. 204—31.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

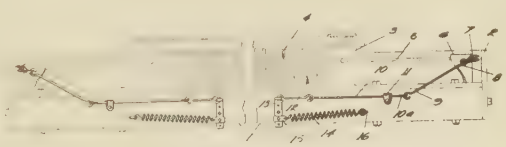
A process of producing a mixture of hydrogen and nitrogen, consisting in heating a mixture of nitrogen with methane in a decomposing chamber containing glowing carbon resulting from a previous period of decomposition, said mixture of nitrogen and methane being in proportions that a mixture fit for ammonia-synthesis, viz., corresponding, substantially, to the formula of ammonia, NH_3, leaves said decomposing chamber.

1,417,953. ELECTRIC FURNACE. FILIP THARALDSEN, Trondhjem, Norway. Filed Mar. 1, 1915. Serial No. 11,423. 5 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. Electric furnace for producing and condensing volatile metals particularly zinc, consisting of a furnace chamber, electrodes projecting into said chamber, a downwardly inclined condensing conduit communicating with said furnace chamber, a dust-collecting chamber between the furnace chamber and the condensing conduit, and a plurality of ventilating shafts arranged one after the other and extending at intervals through the entire length of said condensing conduit.

1,417,954. PICKER BUFFER FOR LOOMS. JULIUS T. THURSTON, Stockton, Calif., assignor of one-half to Frank B. Briare, Stockton, Calif. Filed Sept. 21, 1920. Serial No. 411,725. 1 Claim. (Cl. 139—48.)



A picker-buffer for looms comprising a leather strap slidable on the picker guide-spindle and extending to one side thereof, a rigid link hooked to the outer end of the strap, a rod having hook-and-eye connection with the link, a leather guide for the rod adjacent its connection with the link and smaller than said hook-and-eye connection, whereby the movement of the rod and link in one direction is limited, and a spring structure connected to the rod at the end thereof opposite the guide and arranged to normally hold the connection of the rod and link against the guide.

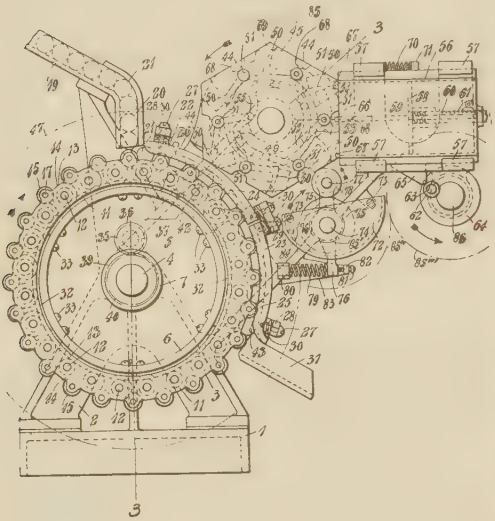
1,417,955. REMOVAL OF PAINTS, VARNISHES, ETC. WILLIAM TIDDY, Norristown, Pa., assignor to Rainey-Wood Coke Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed May 19, 1921. Serial No. 470,971. 6 Claims. (Cl. 87—5.)

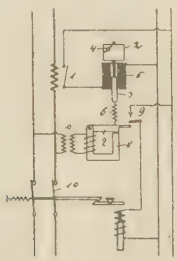
1. The method of removing paints, varnishes, etc., which comprises treating the same with heavy bases from coal tar, which bases are substantially free from pyridin.

1,417,956. WRAPPING OR LABELING MACHINE. PAUL VARGA, Cincinnati, Ohio, assignor of one-half to The Aromint Manufacturing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Nov. 7, 1918. Serial No. 261,475. 26 Claims. (Cl. 216—59.)



1. In a wrapping or labeling machine, traveling wrapping means to rotatably support an article to be wrapped, movable means coacting with said wrapping means during travel thereof to actuate said wrapping means and cause rotation of said movable means moving in a direction different from that of the travel of said wrapping means, means for feeding said article to said wrapping means, and means for supplying a wrapper or label between said article and said wrapping means.

1,417,957. ELECTRIC SWITCH. MAX VOGELSANG, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany, assignor to the Firm Voigt & Haeffner Actien Gesellschaft, Frankfort-on-the-Main, Germany. Filed June 5, 1915. Serial No. 32,370. 1 Claim. (Cl. 175—294.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)

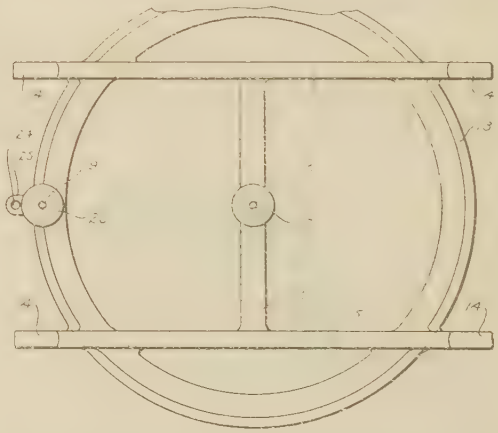


In a device of the class described, in combination, an electric switch, a time lag relay adapted to be influenced by a drop of voltage caused by overloading and to release said switch and means connected with said relay for releasing said switch also in case that no drop of voltage occurs, but the overload merely causes the time lag relay to run down.

1,417,958. TOY. ALMA VOGT, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Sept. 30, 1919. Serial No. 327,462. 2 Claims. (Cl. 46—40.)

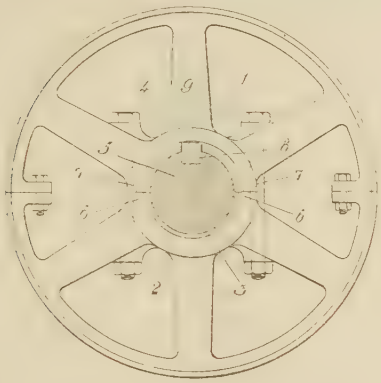
1. A toy of the character described, comprising a hollow body having two spaced finger holes through the back wall thereof and two spaced finger holes through the bottom wall thereof for receiving the fingers of the operator, all of said holes being separated by integral portions of the wall of the hollow body, said portions of the wall of the hollow body holding the fingers of the operator spaced and constituting bearings against which the fingers of the operator press when manipulating the toy.

1,417,959. APPARATUS FOR CASTING STEEL WHEELS. GEORGE WALTHER, Dayton, Ohio. Original application filed June 5, 1920, Serial No. 386,850. Divided and this application filed June 16, 1921. Serial No. 478,132. 2 Claims. (Cl. 22—37.)



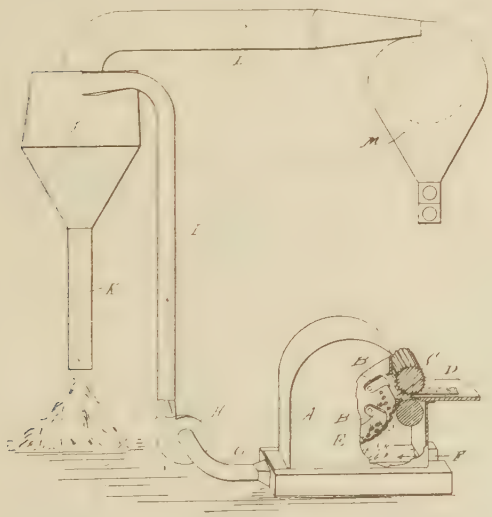
1. In a core carrying frame, a ring, means to support a central clamping means, a spoke and rim core clamping means located on the periphery of said ring, whereby the relationship of the hub core and the spoke and rim cores may be maintained.

1,417,960. DIVIDED PULLEY. NILS RUDOLF MARTIN WEIBULL, Bofors, Sweden. Filed Aug. 25, 1920. Serial No. 405,962. 4 Claims. (Cl. 64—18.)



2. A split pulley having the halves bored to different radii, and interchangeable bushings therefor comprising halves with external radii corresponding respectively with the internal radii of the pulley, and internal radii corresponding to that of the shaft to which the pulley is to be applied.

1,417,961. METHOD OF REDUCING FIBROUS SHEET MATERIAL. MILTON F. WILLIAMS, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Williams Patent Crusher and Pulverizer Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Oct. 7, 1920. Serial No. 415,324. 1 Claim. (Cl. 92—20.)



The herein described method of reducing fibrous sheet material, the same consisting in shredding it into slivers, then dividing said slivers lengthwise and crosswise, then subjecting the comminuted fiber to air currents, and then separating the dust and smallest pieces from the relatively longer, fluffy fibrous portions.

1,417,962. EYEPIECE PRISM. FREDERICK E. WRIGHT, Washington, D. C. Filed Sept. 30, 1919. Serial No. 327,572. 4 Claims. (Cl. 88—26.) (Filed under the act of Mar. 3, 1883, 22 Stat. L., 625.)

1. In a base line telemeter, a single prism for deviating the rays of light which come from opposite ends of the telescope tube, comprising the integral combination of a right angle reflecting prism with a penta-prism, a silvered surface on the penta-prism, a silvered surface on the right angle prism, a dividing line for the field of view formed by the intersection of said silvered surfaces, a roof edge having silvered side surfaces inserted in the penta-prism whereby rays of light from one end of the base line are reflected from the silvered surface of the roof edge and thence to the silvered surface of the penta-prism and then into the optical tube and rays of light from the other end of the base line are reflected from the silvered surface of the right angle prism portion into the optical tube, said emergent rays being on opposite sides of said dividing line.

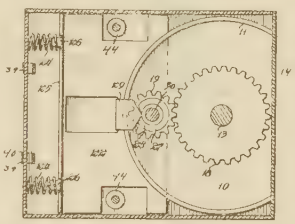
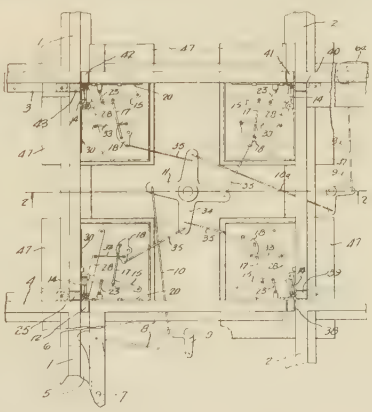
1,417,963. LOCK. MARTIN ZAWISTOWSKI, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed May 5, 1920. Serial No. 378,969. 7 Claims. (Cl. 292—199.)



1. A rotatable bolt for locks, comprising a disk forming the major segment of a circle and presenting a cylindrical flange along the curved portion of its periphery, a gear rigid with said disk on one face thereof and a boss rigid therewith on the opposite fame and having tumbler engaging portions at diametrically opposite points.

1,417,964. RAILWAY CROSSING. EZEKIEL S. ABBOTT, Detroit, Mich. Filed Oct. 28, 1921. Serial No. 511,006. 4 Claims. (Cl. 246—380.)



1. The combination with a railway crossing having spaces between the rails at the corners of the crossing to allow clearance for the car wheel flanges, of a series of filler blocks adapted to ride in the spaces of the rails which extend in one direction and when in the raised position forming a continuous track, a second series of filler blocks adapted to ride in the spaces of the rails extending in the opposite direction and when in the raised position also forming a continuous track, a lever secured to each filler block and pivoted to the adjacent rail, a wedge block adapted to be moved beneath each lever to raise the corresponding filler block, a supporting block for each filler block adapted to be automatically moved to position beneath the filler block by the mechanism for moving the wedge blocks, and a trip mechanism for each pair of rails adapted to be operated by the car wheel flanges when approaching from either direction, the construction being such that operation of either trip mechanism raises the filler blocks to provide a continuous track for the approaching car and lowers the filler block of the track extending in the opposite direction to allow clearance for the car wheel flanges.

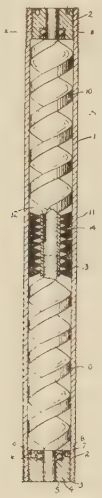
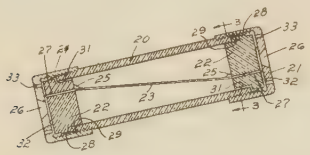
1,417,965. OIL-TREATING MIXER. MARK BELCHER, West Columbia, Tex., assignor of one-third to G. H. Davis, West Columbia, Tex. Filed Dec. 27, 1921. Serial No. 524,932. 4 Claims. (Cl. 259—10.)



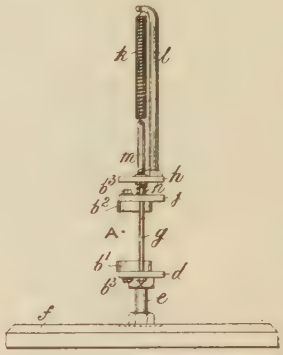
1. In a device of the character described, a length of pipe, a bearing member in each end thereof, a mixing member in said pipe, having its ends journalled in said bearing members, spirally arranged agitating blades on said mixing member, and a brush intermediate the ends thereof, said bearing members having constricted passages therethrough.

1,417,966. RENEWABLE CARTRIDGE FUSE. TONJES A. BOTH, Stratford, Conn., assignor to The Connecticut Electric Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed July 18, 1918. Serial No. 245,550. 10 Claims. (Cl. 200—132.)



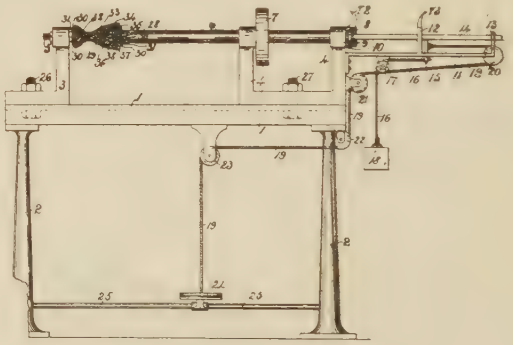
1. In a fuse of the character described an insulating tubular body, removable refractory heads closing the ends of the body and provided with slots and in their edges with ventilating channels, a fuse strip passing through the slots and having its ends bent over the outer sides of the heads, and ferrules having holes in their ends and threaded engagement with the body.

1,417,967. DIE FOR FORMING HANDLES FOR CUPS, ETC. ELIJAH BROOKES, Stoke-on-Trent, England. Filed June 15, 1916. Serial No. 103,860. 3 Claims. (Cl. 25—1.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. A die press for use in the manufacture or formation of handles for articles of pottery, consisting of a frame, a die formed in two parts, the upper part being slidable on guide rods and spring controlled, handle recesses formed in the die and extending to the front face thereof, said die being curved or shaped to enable the ends of the handle to be cut at the right angle or shape, and a spring controlled pin for dislodging or raising the finished handle, substantially as described.

1,417,968. APPARATUS FOR THE MANUFACTURE OF POTTERY. ELIJAH BROOKES, Stoke-on-Trent, England. Filed Dec. 23, 1916. Serial No. 138,669. 4 Claims. (Cl. 25—24.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. In apparatus for the manufacture of pottery, two supporting heads, two opposed chucks revoluble in the said heads, means for gripping the article between the said chucks, and means for shaping the article while being revolved with the chucks.

1,417,969. REVERSIBLE WRENCH. WILLIAM H. BURSTALL and JAMES S. TURNER, Oxnard, Calif., assignors of two-thirds to said Burstall and one-third to said Turner. Filed Feb. 7, 1921. Serial No. 443,244. 6 Claims. (Cl. 81—69.)

3. A device of the character described, comprising work-engaging elements adapted to be respectively applied to the work for the turning or operating of the same in different directions, an element adapted to be independently applied to the work to maintain engagement of said first named elements with the work, and a handle member for said elements; said handle member being provided with a rocking element having divergent portions and said work-engaging elements comprising divergent portions, said heads and said divergent portions of said rocking element projecting radially from the rocking center of said rocking element; said rocking element comprising spaced frame members adapted to accommodate between them said divergent heads.

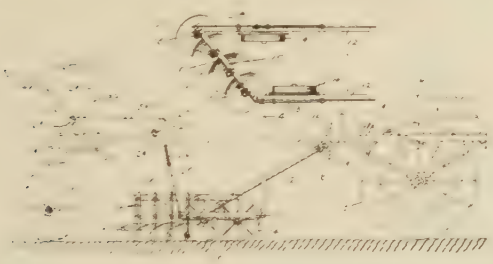
1,417,970. VULCANIZATION OF RUBBER EMPLOYING AMINES AND OPEN-CHAIN ALDEHYDES AND SIMILAR SUBSTANCES AND PRODUCTS OBTAINED THEREBY. SIDNEY M. CADWELL, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Naugatuck Chemical Company, a Corporation of Connecticut. Continuation of application Serial No. 376,659, filed Apr. 26, 1920. This application filed May 28, 1921. Serial No. 473,345. 32 Claims. (Cl. 18—53.)

1. A process for treating rubber which comprises combining rubber with a vulcanizing agent and the reaction product of an aldehyde comprising an open chain having a plurality of carbon atoms, and an amine, and vulcanizing the rubber.

1,417,971. ROTARY-DISK CULTIVATOR. HARDY WEBSTER CAMPBELL, Oakland, Calif. Filed Oct. 15, 1918. Serial No. 258,234. 5 Claims. (Cl. 97—37.)



2. A rotary disk cultivator comprising a frame, a series of disks mounted therein, each disk being mounted for adjustment on an axis transverse to the disk, said disks having convex surfaces for contact with the soil in the rear of their cutting edges, and said disks being mounted obliquely in said frame to be revolved by such contact.

1,417,972. WHEEL AND AXLE CONSTRUCTION. GUSTAV W. CARLSON, Cleveland, Ohio, assignor to The Torbensen Axle Company, Cleveland, Ohio, a Corporation of Ohio. Filed Apr. 22, 1921. Serial No. 463,473. 9 Claims. (Cl. 74—7.)

3. In apparatus of the character described, the combination of a main hub, a gear for driving same, a wheel proper removably mounted upon said main hub and having a plate secured thereto at the inner side of the spokes, bolts secured to the hub and having enlarged portions near their said secured ends partly countersunk in their securing member and fitting openings in said wheel plate to transmit driving torque to said plate, and having reduced extensions extending with a sliding fit through openings in the wheel spokes whereby the wheel proper may be more readily pulled from said bolts, and nuts securing said wheel upon said bolts.

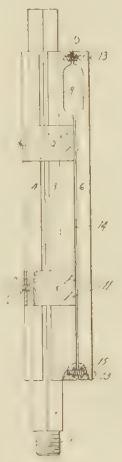
1,417,973. SAW GUIDE. GEORGE W. CARY, Greenfield, Mass. Filed Mar. 14, 1921. Serial No. 452,150. 2 Claims. (Cl. 143—160.)



1. The combination, in a saw guide, with a post which is angular in cross section, of bars grooved to receive opposite angular portions of said post, a U-shaped clamp connecting said bars and rigidly fastened to one of the same, and a screw tapped into the heel of said clamp and bearing against the contiguous side of the other bar, one of said bars being provided with a saw-forming-slot member.

1,417,974. GAS GENERATOR. CLAUD J. CLEFTON and GUY J. CLEFTON, Owatonna, Minn. Filed June 11, 1917. Serial No. 174,050. 5 Claims. (Cl. 48—57.)

2. An acetylene gas generator having means for emptying the water from the same without admission of air to the generator comprising a generating tank, a sleeve, a bell over the sleeve, a fluid seal at the bottom of the bell and sleeve, a hopper closing the end of the sleeve, a port or second hopper having walls to shut out air from the space between the bell and sleeve tops, means for depositing carbide from the first hopper by raising and lowering the bell to generate gas and a pressure in the tank whereby entrance of air into the tank when the water is removed is prevented, and a discharge pipe leading from near the bottom of the tank through which the water and sludge may be removed from the generating tank and whereby a water seal is formed between the pipe and tank to prevent air entering the tank from said pipe at the end of the sludge removing operation.

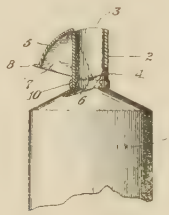
1,417,975. RECEPTACLE CLOSURE. FREDERICK D. CRANE, Montclair, N. J., assignor of one-half to Nathaniel L. Foster, Montclair, N. J. Filed Apr. 9, 1921. Serial No. 459,951. 3 Claims. (Cl. 221—60.)



2. The combination with a receptacle having an outlet opening, the edge of which is curved, of a closure member comprising a curved plate adapted to fit over the outlet opening, the curvature of the plate being on a smaller radius than the curvature of the edge of the opening, and means for pivotally mounting said closure member eccentrically of said curved edge.

1,417,976. OBSERVATION WINDOW FOR FURNACES. MALCOLM CURRY, Scarsdale, N. Y., and STARR H. BARNUM, Hamden, Conn. Filed Oct. 27, 1921. Serial No. 510,908. 10 Claims. (Cl. 126—200.)

1. The combination with a furnace having a peep-opening, of means for supporting a panel of transparent glare-eliminating material outside of the furnace in line with said opening, a support slidable transversely of the line of vision through said transparent panel and opening, and panels of heat-resisting material carried by said slidable support and movable therewith to alternately close the peep-opening, one of said heat-resisting panels being transparent and the other being formed of material which is a non-conductor of heat.

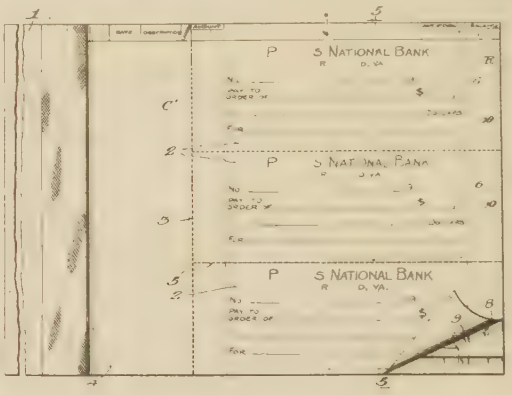
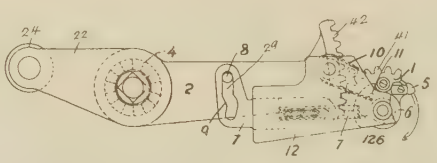
1,417,977. CHECK OR ACCOUNT BOOK. JAMES L. DAVIS, Richmond, Va. Filed June 1, 1921. Serial No. 474,148. 5 Claims. (Cl. 282—23.)



1. An accounting book of the check book type, comprising alternate check and record sheets, the record sheets being suitably ruled to provide a duplicate of the check data by carbon impression, the record sheets being arranged so that upper margins of certain record sheets are exposed above the upper edge of a preceding sheet, and lower margins of certain sheets are exposed below the lower edge of a preceding sheet.

1,417,978. NEEDLE-GUIDE-CONTROLLING MEANS FOR SEWING MACHINES. MARK THOMAS DENNE, Rushden, England. Original application filed Sept. 22, 1914, Serial No. 863,025. Divided and this application filed Sept. 30, 1918. Serial No. 256,213. 1 Claim. (Cl. 112—227.)



In a sewing machine, the combination with an oscillatory needle, segment and a needle carried thereby, of an oscillatory needle-guide, a spring acting normally to impel the guide forwardly, a needle-operating lever for actuating the needle segment, and means operated by said needle-operating lever for locking the needle-guide temporarily in position when it has completed its forward movement while the needle is engaged in the work and during the first part of the rearward or upward movement of the needle, said means operating to unlock the needle-guide thereby to permit it to move backwardly with the needle segment during the final backward movement of the latter.

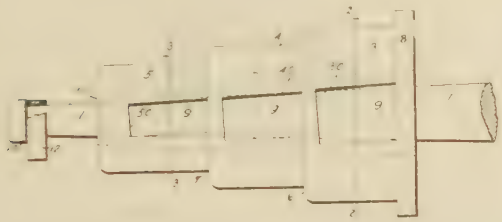
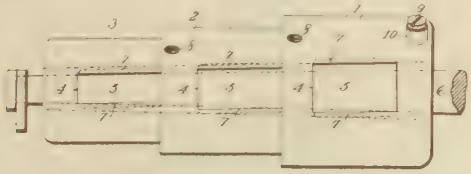
1,417,979. MULTIPLE-TUBE EXPANDER. THOMAS J. DIXON, Madison, Wis., assignor to Lovejoy Tool Works, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Dec. 1, 1920. Serial No. 427,568. 2 Claims. (Cl. 153—82.)



1. In a tube expander, the combination with an expanding unit including a set of radially shiftable expanding rollers, and a mandrel that engages the said set of rollers and holds them to their operative position, the said mandrel having an annular enlargement or head at the forward end; of a ring of flexible metal adapted for being slipped onto the mandrel over the head, and for being compressed around the mandrel to constitute a retainer to prevent the separation of the mandrel and the expanding unit.

1,417,980. MULTIPLE EXPANDER. THOMAS J. DIXON, Madison, Wis., assignor to Lovejoy Tool Works, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Mar. 23, 1921. Serial No. 454,715. 1 Claim. (Cl. 153—82.)



A tube expander comprising a stepped shell, a set of rollers for each step of the shell, said shell having roller receiving pockets, means for retaining the rollers in the pockets, a mandrel for engaging all of the rollers, said shell having threaded openings adjacent the rear extremity of the several sets of rollers and a stop screw adapted to be threaded into any one of said openings.

1,417,981. CHUCK. GUSTAF A. ENGLUND, Hartford, Conn., assignor to The Jacobs Manufacturing Company, Hartford, Conn., a Corporation of Connecticut. Filed May 27, 1921. Serial No. 473,178. 1 Claim. (Cl. 279—62.)

A chuck having a body with inclined jaw openings and an annular recess communicating with the jaw openings, jaws with teeth on their backs loosely located in the jaw openings, a nut located in said annular recess and having threaded engagement with the teeth on the jaws, balls located between the nut and body, the rear wall of said nut having its outer edge cut away to form a ball-race, that encircles a portion of the inner surfaces of the balls only and the rear wall of said annular recess in the body having near its outer edge a groove that forms a ball-race which encircles a portion of the inner and outer surfaces of the balls with a small portion of the edge of the body from said groove outward cut away at one locality, whereby the balls are dropped into said races and are retained from outward displacement by the outer section of the wall of the groove in the body, and a sleeve surrounding the body over the ball race-ways and fastened to the nut.

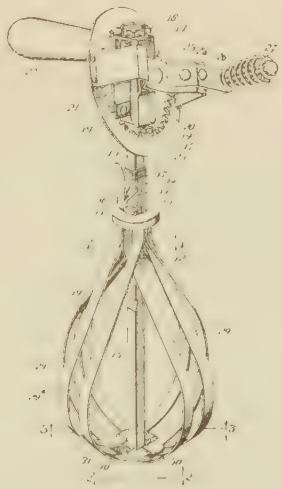
1,417,982. BEATER. GEORGE J. FITZPATRICK, Chicago, Ill. Filed May 26, 1921. Serial No. 472,716. 9 Claims. (Cl. 259—134.)



1. In a device of the character described, a shaft, means whereby the shaft may be rotated, blade members arranged in pairs and spaced relation, said blade members being composed of strips of flexible sheet metal bent into loop form, with the intermediate portions of said blade members immovably secured adjacent the end of the shaft, means, slidable on said shaft, to which the ends of said blade members are secured, and means whereby the second mentioned means with the blade members may be locked in adjusted position lengthwise of said shaft.

1,417,983. PHONOGRAPHIC WARNING DEVICE. BENJAMIN F. FREEBLE, Brownsville, Pa., assignor of one-half to John Matta, Brownsville, Pa. Filed Nov. 25, 1919. Serial No. 340,516. 10 Claims. (Cl. 177—337.)

1. An audible warning signal mechanism for motor cars including a phonographic record having thereon a plurality of circular phonautographic grooves, each formed to reproduce words of warning, an electric motor for driving said record, a sound box having a diaphragm, a plurality of styluses associated with the sound box and diaphragm and each adapted to operatively engage one of said grooves, and manually controlled means for closing a circuit through said motor and simultaneously rendering any selected one of the styluses operative to transmit sound vibrations or disconnecting the motor from a source of energy and simultaneously rendering the previously operative stylus inoperative to transmit sound vibrations.

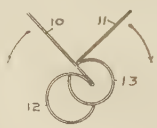
2. An audible warning signal mechanism for motor cars including a phonograph record having thereon a circular phonautographic groove formed to reproduce words of warning, an electric motor for driving the record, a sound box having a diaphragm, a stylus carried by the sound box and engaging said groove and normally out of operative engagement with the diaphragm, and manually controlled means for causing the stylus to shift into sound reproducing engagement with the diaphragm and simultaneously connect the motor with a source of energy or releasing the stylus from its operative engagement with the diaphragm of the sound box and simultaneously disconnecting the motor from its source of energy.

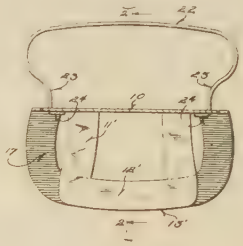
3. An audible signal mechanism including a single phonograph record having thereon a plurality of circular phonautographic grooves, each formed to reproduce words of warning, an electric motor for driving said record, a single sound box having a diaphragm, a plurality of styluses carried by the sound box and engaging the several grooves but normally out of engagement with the diaphragm, manually operable means associated with each stylus for causing the corresponding stylus to shift into sound reproducing engagement with the diaphragm and simultaneously connect the motor with a source of energy or cause the release of the corresponding stylus and the simultaneous disconnection of the motor from the source of energy.

1,417,984. COMBINED JOINT AND HINGE. SHERMAN T. FRENCH, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor of one-half to Marshal D. Wade, Indianapolis, Ind. Filed Mar. 7, 1921. Serial No. 450,448. 1 Claim. (Cl. 16—128.)



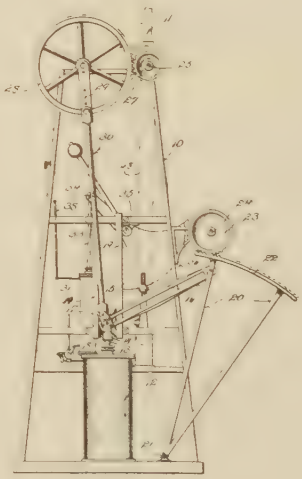
A combined joint and hinge for connecting the meeting edges of sheets of metal consisting in bending the metal along one edge of one sheet back upon the sheet to form an open cylindrical roll, a hook formed along the edge of the metal where the reverse bending occurs, a roll formed along the edge of the adjacent sheet in which the bending operation is reversed from that in the preceding roll, and a hook formed along the free end of the last roll for enforcing longitudinal movement in introducing one roll into the other, the said hooks preventing the rolls from being disconnected except by a corresponding longitudinal movement.

1,417,985. SHORTENING MIXER. MARY E. GEIGER, Waukesha, Wis. Filed Mar. 21, 1922. Serial No. 545,409. 2 Claims. (Cl. 259—144.)



1. In a shortening mixer, the combination of a plate, a pair of metallic straps on each side thereof and integral therewith, a pair of wings, each of said wings being integral with a pair of said straps, a second pair of wings, a second pair of straps on each side and integral with said plate, each of said second pairs of straps being integral with one of said second mentioned wings.

1,417,986. AUTOMATIC STROKE-REGULATING DEVICE. FRANKLIN B. GIESLER, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed June 7, 1919. Serial No. 302,466. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—14.)



1. The combination with a driven power member and a reciprocating member in drive connection therewith of a centrifugal governor driven with said members and fluid pressure means operable by said governor for varying the stroke of the reciprocating member.

1,417,987. HEATING DEVICE. DAN GRIFFITH, Tacoma, Wash. Filed Apr. 19, 1920. Serial No. 375,082. 1 Claim. (Cl. 257—165.)

A heater as herein set forth comprising a casing including front and rear walls, said rear wall provided with openings and upper and lower pipes adapted for connection with a vertical flue, an intermediate baffle plate within the casing extending from the rear wall to near the front wall, guides arranged within the lower pipe within its upper wall, a damper plate of somewhat greater length than the width of the vertical flue slidable in said guides, and a jointed handle attached to the front of said damper plate and extending through the front wall of the casing.

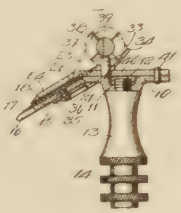
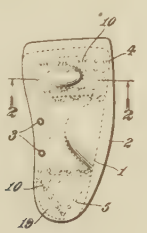
1,417,988. SAFETY RAZOR. JOHN S. GULLBORG, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Rotary King Safety Razor Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Mar. 6, 1920. Serial No. 363,650. 7 Claims. (Cl. 30—12.)



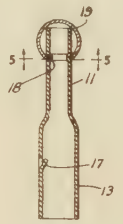
1. A razor comprising a frame, a blade having a notch in the intermediate portion of the rear edge thereof, said blade being slidable transversely on said frame, a roller mounted above and to the rear of the blade, an oscillating lever below the roller and to the rear of the blade and having its free end engaged with said notch, and means on said lever engageable with the roller for receiving motion from said roller.

1,417,989. FOOT SUPPORT. LUDWIG GUTMANN, St. Louis, Mo. Filed June 11, 1918. Serial No. 239,469. 13 Claims. (Cl. 36—71.)



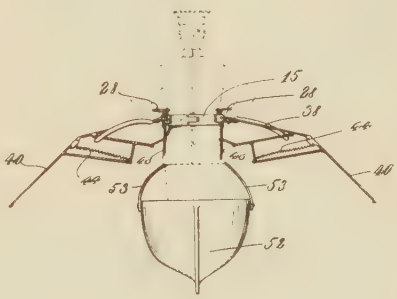
1. A foot support, comprising, a perforated base, and a perforable pad adapted to receive fastening means engaging the perforations on said base.

1,417,990. HANDLE EXTENSION. BERT G. HACKETT, Providence, R. I., assignor to Hackett Products Co., Providence, R. I., a Corporation of Rhode Island. Filed Sept. 3, 1921. Serial No. 498,254. 2 Claims. (Cl. 292—348.)



1. A handle extension comprising a shank having an engaging portion at its upper end and a socket at its opposite end shaped to receive the end of the handle it is designed to lengthen, and an upwardly and inwardly extending integral spur adapted to yield to permit the positioning of the socket onto the handle but adapted to bite into the stock of the handle to permanently secure the extension member thereto.

1,417,991. AERONAUT'S SAFETY ATTACHMENT. WASYL HANIUK, Perth Amboy, N. J., assignor of forty one-hundredths to Fedio Andrusyszyn, Perth Amboy, N. J. Filed July 6, 1917. Serial No. 179,026. 2 Claims. (Cl. 244—21.)



1. In a device of the class described, the combination with a band adapted to encircle the waist of an operator, a pair of lateral wings pivoted on said band and each comprising, a plurality of frame elements pivotally joined together and a textile fabric covering the frame elements, means for holding said elements in a folded position, means for distending said wings, a boat-like element engaged with said band, comprising a plurality of foldably engaged bent rods, means for permitting said boat to be extended above the head of the operator or be positioned therebelow, and means permitting holding the frame of said boat in a folded position, said boat-like element adapted to be operated by the current of air encountered for opening said frame work.

2. In a device of the class described, the combination with a hinged ring adapted to encircle the waist of an operator, a pair of wings pivoted laterally to said ring, means for holding said wings in any desired inclination relative to said ring, a boat-like frame carried by said ring, and a bent link permitting said boat-frame to be swung above or below the operator, and means for holding the boat-frame in folded condition when required.

1,417,992. UNDERGARMENT. STANLEY A. HANSON, Barnesville, Ga. Filed Apr. 7, 1920. Serial No. 371,896. 6 Claims. (Cl. 2—144.)

1. The method of constructing a union undergarment comprising taking a length of flattened tubular fabric, cutting unequal triangular portions from opposite sides thereof leaving a body cloth having leg portions, reflattening said tubing along creases spaced 90° from the original ones, sewing together the adjacent edges of said leg portions, and inserting said triangular portions as flap inserts in the rear of the body cloth.

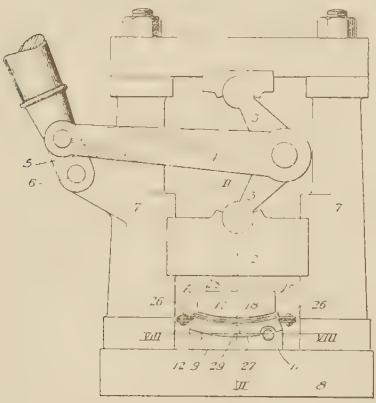
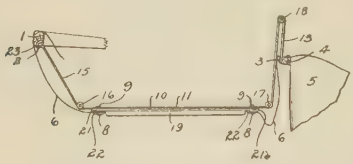
1,417,993. PRESSING MECHANISM FOR SIGN UNITS. WALTER F. HEEREN, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed July 16, 1921. Serial No. 485,328. 7 Claims. (Cl. 18—17.)



1. A pressing machine having a water cooled anvil, a relatively thin separate casing mounted on the upper surface of said anvil, and including spaced apart upper and lower metal plates, a relatively thin electrical heating means interposed between the plates, the lower plate being in intimate contact with the top of the anvil and the upper plate providing a pressing surface, and a pressing block having means for exerting pressure thereon.

1,417,994. FRAME FOR MOTOR-CAR CURTAINS. WILLIAM HERTEL, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Dec. 13, 1920. Serial No. 430,234. 6 Claims. (Cl. 296—145.)

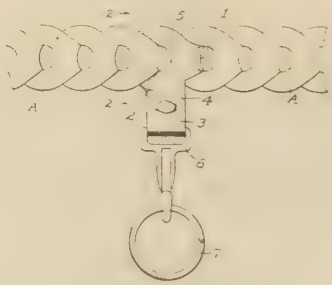


3. A top for motor cars including supporting frame members, a unitary supplementary frame member attached to the supporting frame members, an inherently resilient retaining member positively engaged by the supplementary frame member for receiving a glass pane, and means extending through the fabric of the top and through the frames for holding said members in assembly.

1,417,995. SCREW-DRIVER ATTACHMENT. ANDREW HILTON, Byesville, Ohio. Filed June 18, 1921. Serial No. 478,707. 6 Claims. (Cl. 145—52.)

6. In a screw-holding attachment for screw-drivers, a support comprising a longitudinal member having a loop at one end to surround the shank of the screw-driver and to be freely movable thereon, a clamp secured to the support and surrounding the shank of the screw-driver, manually operated means for adjusting the tension of the clamp on the shank, an offset in the support, a disk eccentrically journaled on the offset portion of the support, a spring-clamp surrounding the disk and engaging the support, and laterally extending spring fingers adapted to hold a screw in position to be engaged by the bit of the screw-driver.

1,417,996. COMBINED BELT LINK AND KEY-RING HOLDER. JOHN JACKSON, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Jan. 3, 1921, Serial No. 434,690. Renewed Oct. 24, 1921. Serial No. 510,104. 3 Claims. (Cl. 24—3.)



1. A combined belt link and key ring holder comprising a body having rounded ends and an orifice adjacent each end, said member bent upon itself so that said orifices are superposed and engaged by an adjacent link and an extension located adjacent one end and adapted to be bent and secured upon itself to hold a fastener member.

1,417,997. SUSPENSION THRUST-RESISTING ATTACHMENT FOR PRESSES. WILLIAM A. JENNINGS, Raytown, Mo. Filed Mar. 22, 1921. Serial No. 454,523. 8 Claims. (Cl. 29—85.)

1. In a device of the character described, a tubular member adapted to receive a shaft and provided with a closure for engagement by the enclosed end of the shaft, and means for supporting said member so that it shall be subjected to tensile strain by pressure imposed by said shaft on said closure.

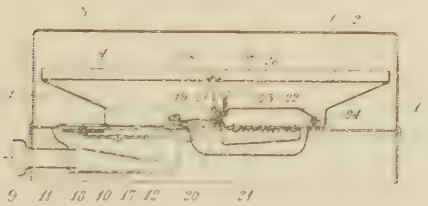
1,417,998. GAS METER. GEORG KARL VILHELM JOHANSON, Stockholm, Sweden. Filed Sept. 2, 1919. Serial No. 321,100. 3 Claims. (Cl. 73—1.)



1. In a gas meter, the combination of two measuring chambers, a movable diaphragm separating said chambers, an inlet to said chamber, an outlet from said chamber, valves between each of said chambers and said inlet and said outlet, a spring mechanism between said diaphragm and said valves comprising a lever and means whereby said lever is connected with the diaphragm, a second lever, means whereby said lever is connected with the valves, means for locking said second lever against movement during the movement of the diaphragm until it reaches its limit positions of movement, a tension helical spring stretched between the swinging ends of said levers, and means for limiting the turning of said levers in such manner that they are only capable of turning through small angles to either side of the connecting line between the fulcra of said levers.

1,417,999. AGRICULTURAL MACHINE. WILLIAM H. KEMPER, Montgomery, Ala. Filed Dec. 18, 1920. Serial No. 431,796. 3 Claims. (Cl. 180—18.)

1. In a machine of the class described the combination with a frame, front drive wheels mounted to swing relative thereto, means under the control of the driver for separately swinging said wheels, a motor driven shaft, a steering wheel, separate means controlled thereby for coupling either or both of the front drive wheels to the shaft, and means operated by said steering wheel for steering the machine, said means including rear supporting wheels, and motion transmitting means connecting the rear wheels to the steering wheel for swinging movement.

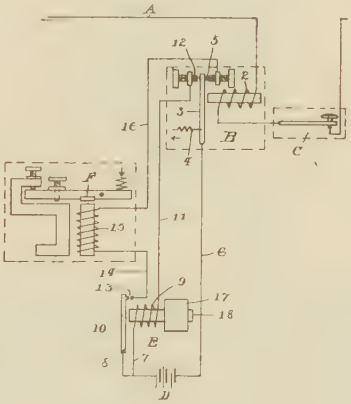
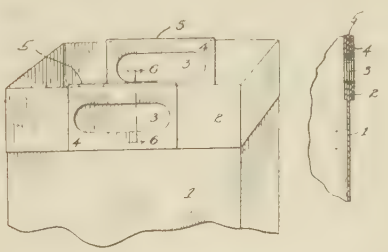
1,418,000. TELEGRAPH APPARATUS. EDWARD LOUIS KLINGEL, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Feb. 6, 1918. Serial No. 215,689. 3 Claims. (Cl. 178—2.)



1. In signaling apparatus, a line circuit containing a line relay and key, said line having a contact arranged to be opened when impulses are transmitted and closed during the period when impulses are not being transmitted, and a local circuit included in and normally opened by said line relay when the line circuit is closed and closed when the line relay is in open position and containing a sounder and a relay having a magnet core, a reluctance coil encircling said core and an armature acting under the influence of the magnetic lag in said core for keeping the local circuit closed only during the period when a series of impulses is being sent over the line.

1,418,001. SHOPPER'S BAG. WILLIAM H. KNIEP, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Graham Paper Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri. Filed June 14, 1920. Serial No. 388,737. 1 Claim. (Cl. 229—54.)



A bag comprising a body portion having its material at its top bent back upon itself for forming a reinforcing element extending continuously around the mouth of the bag, said reinforcing element being integral with the body portion, and inverted U-shaped reinforcing members straddling the upper edge of the bag and the continuous reinforcing element, said members, element, and body portion being glued together, and provided with hand openings, said members being oppositely arranged.

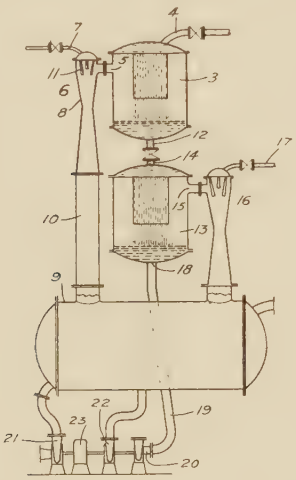
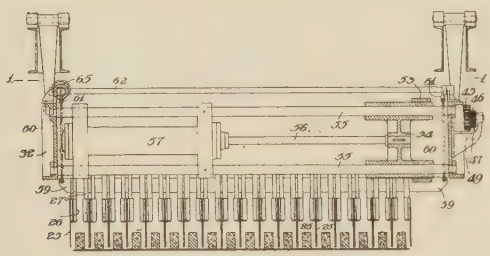
1,418,002. REFRIGERATING MACHINE. GOTTDANK L. E. KOTHNY, Pittsburgh, Pa., assignor to Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company, a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 30, 1915. Serial No. 17,995. 6 Claims. (Cl. 127—24.)



1. In combination in a refrigerating machine, a plurality of evaporating chambers through which refrigerating liquid is successively passed in a continuously moving stream, a fluid ejecting apparatus communicating with each chamber for effecting a partial evaporation of the liquid passing therethrough, and a common condenser into which said fluid ejecting apparatus discharges.

1,418,003. METHOD AND MEANS FOR BRICK HACKING. JAMES B. LADD, Ardmore, Pa. Filed Oct. 30, 1919. Serial No. 334,409. 24 Claims. (Cl. 214—6.)



1. The method of hacking bricks which consists in first clamping the bricks, which have been assembled in long parallel abutted rows with relatively wide spaces between the rows, and moving the rows closer together and depositing said bricks on cars in hacked formation.

1,418,004. BUCKET-LOADING HOOK. JOHN W. LARSON, Escanaba, Mich. Filed Mar. 9, 1921. Serial No. 450,887. 7 Claims. (Cl. 294—83.)

1. A device of the character described comprising a body, a hook member pivoted intermediate its ends to the lower end of the body, a shank pivoted to the rear end of said hook member and extending upward and across the body, a stop mounted on the body, the shank being formed with a shoulder adapted to engage said stop to prevent the downward movement of the free end of the hook member, and longitudinally shiftable means on the body adapted to engage the shank and shift it out of engagement with the stop to thereby permit the hook member to turn toward a position of alignment with the body.

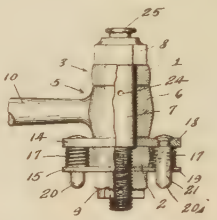
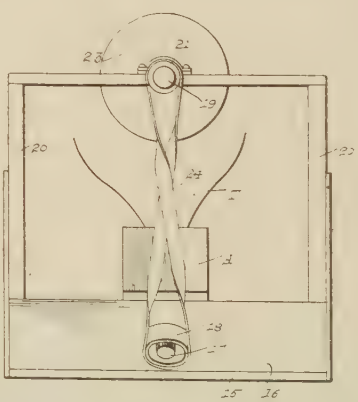
1,418,005. ANTIRATTLING JOINT FOR STEERING GEARS. NATHEN A. LOCKE, Fulton, N. Y. Filed June 10, 1920. Serial No. 387,999. 5 Claims. (Cl. 74—17.)



1. An anti-rattling joint comprising a member having arms formed with alined bearings, a member having a hub located between said arms, a pin extending through the bearings and the hub, a take-up member encircling the pin between one end of the hub and the opposing face of one of said arms, an abutment member, encircling the pin on the opposite side of said arm, said members having laterally extending portions, coiled compression springs interposed between the laterally extending portions of said members and located on opposite sides of said arm, and a nut threading on the pin, substantially as and for the purpose specified.

1,418,006. AMALGAMATOR. HARRY LOEVEN, Douglas, Ariz. Filed Aug. 4, 1920. Serial No. 401,096. 2 Claims. (Cl. 83—67.)



1. An amalgamator comprising a vessel, a plurality of partitions arranged in spaced relation within the vessel and each consisting of pairs of overlapping sections, the sections of each pair being arranged in spaced relation whereby to define a plurality of openings, an operating shaft extending through said vessel, and means rigidly connecting the shaft to said vessel, said vessel being provided with a longitudinal slot, the walls of which are inclined with respect to the surface of the vessel.

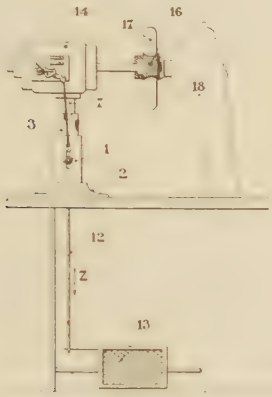
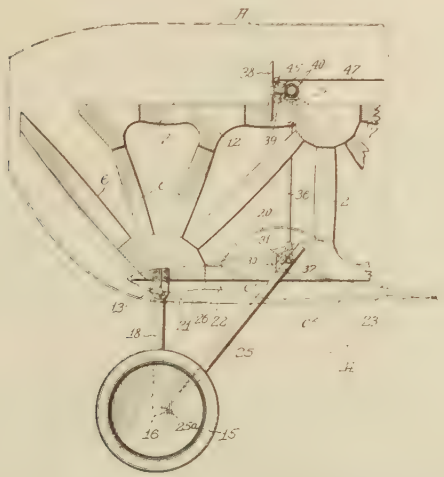
1,418,007. MOTIVE-POWER APPLIANCE FOR SEWING MACHINES AND THE LIKE. DAVID LUSTIG, Paris, France. Filed June 29, 1920. Serial No. 392,866. 5 Claims. (Cl. 172—179.)



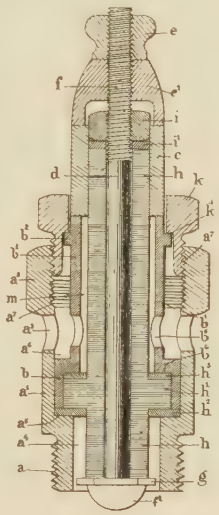
1. A motor driving device applicable to sewing machines and the like, comprising a motor, a roller for driving purposes on the motor spindle, a support for the motor consisting of two members, the one carrying the motor being capable of sliding movement with respect to the other, guiding means adapted to produce a lateral angular movement of the motor axis during such sliding movement, a motor-controlling switch with means for opening and closing the same automatically in consequence of the movements in one direction and the other direction respectively of the motor, and mechanism for imparting the movements in one direction and the other to the member carrying the motor, whereby said motor is started and moved into the driving position simultaneously, or is stopped and moved out of the driving position, as required.

1,418,008. AIRCRAFT STRUCTURE. JAMES V. MARTIN, Elyria, Ohio. Filed Nov. 14, 1918. Serial No. 262,477. 42 Claims. (Cl. 244—2.)



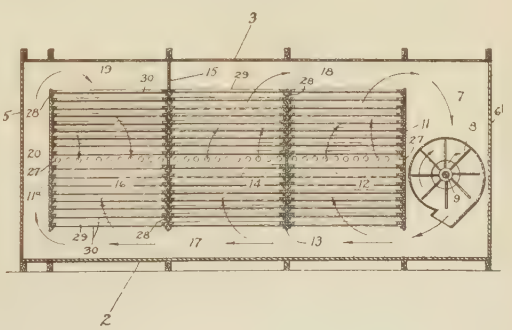
42. In combination with an aeroplane, retractable alighting means, operating means therefor, and means for transmitting motion from said operating means to operate said alighting means, said motion transmitting means being adapted to hold said alighting means in any position to which it is adjusted.

1,418,009. SPARKING PLUG FOR INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. JOSÉ MARTINEZ, Paris, France. Filed Mar. 23, 1921. Serial No. 454,841. 2 Claims. (Cl. 123—169.)



1. A spark plug, comprising a hollow metal body having an internal shoulder in its lower portion, a packing ring resting on said shoulder, a central electrode, an insulating fitting surrounding said electrode and having an enlarged portion bearing on said packing ring, a second packing ring upon the upper face of said enlarged portion, a metallic ring having an upper portion loosely surrounding the upper portion of said fitting and bearing at its lower end upon said second packing ring, said metallic ring having a lower portion of increased diameter closely fitted within the metal body and closely surrounding the enlarged portion of said fitting and bearing at its lower end upon said first-mentioned packing ring, and a nut screwed into the upper end of the metal body and bearing upon the metal ring whereby to clamp the enlarged portion of the insulating fitting between the lower end of the upper portion of the metal ring and the internal shoulder of the metal body.

1,418,010. DRIER. FRANK A. MARTOCCIO, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Aug. 2, 1920. Serial No. 400,727. 9 Claims. (Cl. 34—39.)



1. A drier comprising a casing having a fan chamber at one end thereof, and a blast fan mounted in said fan chamber, a series of vertical partitions dividing the interior of said casing into a plurality of drying chambers, the partitions adjacent said fan chamber being spaced from the top and bottom of said casing to form air circulating trunks and the chamber remote from said fan chamber having a trunk between one of its partitions and the end wall of the casing communicating with the upper and lower air trunks, the upper air trunk having means for obstructing the flow of air therethrough and compelling it to pass downwardly in said remote drying chamber, the wall of said remote chamber having exhaust air ports and a plurality of drying screens mounted in said remote chamber.

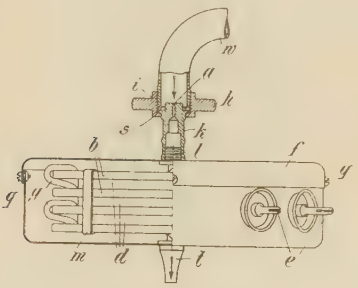
1,418,011. ELECTRICAL WATER HEATER. HERMANN MEHN, Berlin-Tempelhof, Germany, assignor to Dr. Kurt Glahn, Berlin-Wilmersdorf, Prussia, Germany. Filed Oct. 12, 1921. Serial No. 507,361. 3 Claims. (Cl. 219—39.)



1. An electric water heater, comprising, in combination, disk-shaped electric heating bodies, and flat boxes arranged in alternation with said bodies and having each inwardly extending ribs in its top and in its bottom, the upper ribs extending into the grooves between the lower ones, and reversely, all grooves forming a continuous water passage.

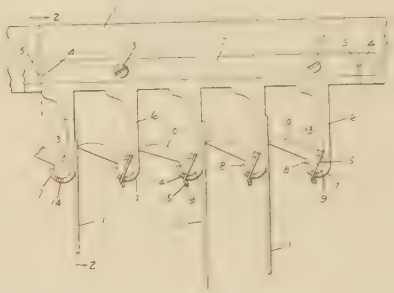
1,418,012. SIGN. PAUL HILDRETH MINER, Brockton, Mass. Filed July 21, 1921. Serial No. 486,509. 5 Claims. (Cl. 40—139.)

1. A reading sign comprising characters, certain digits only of which are adapted for continuous movement.

1,418,013. PROCESS OF PURIFYING AND DECOLORIZING WATER. MARTIN F. NEWMAN, Oakmont, Pa., assignor to Wm. B. Scaife & Sons Company, Oakmont, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 5, 1919. Serial No. 321,860. 4 Claims. (Cl. 210—28.)

1. The process of treating water for clarification and the reduction of color due to soil acids, vegetable extracts or other causes, consisting in first treating the water with an alkali in connection with a bleaching agent, following this by treating the water with a coagulent, then treating the water with a reagent to remove any excess bleaching agent which may be present.

1,418,014. SUPPORTING MEANS FOR STRIPS OF VENEER AND THE LIKE. ADDISON H. NORDYKE, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to Indianapolis Manufacturing Company, Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed May 23, 1921. Serial No. 471,911. 5 Claims. (Cl. 34—26.)



1. A supporting means for strips of veneer and the like, comprising a rack, a plurality of uniformly spaced bars depending from said rack, there being a socket at the lower end of each bar, said socket having a slot longitudinally thereof, and a finger having a circular head adapted to enter said socket, the opposite end of said finger adapted to impinge an object against the next succeeding bar and hold the same suspended.

1,418,015. REFRIGERATING APPARATUS. FRED E. NORTON, Worcester, Mass., assignor to Jefferies-Norton Corporation, Worcester, Mass., a Corporation of Delaware. Original application filed Mar. 3, 1915, Serial No. 11,850. Divided and this application filed Jan. 26, 1918. Serial No. 213,888. 27 Claims. (Cl. 62—122.)

1. In a system of the class described, a reverse flow interchanger for the cooling and liquefaction of a gaseous working fluid, means for sustaining the pressure on the fluid in the return side of said interchanger, and fluid circulating means for transferring latent heat from the fluid undergoing liquefaction to the liquid in said return side.

1,418,016. MOUNTING FOR SOUND-REPRODUCING MACHINES. EUGENE F. O'NEILL, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to Beckwith-O'Neill Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Oct. 4, 1920. Serial No. 414,520. 4 Claims. (Cl. 274—2.)

1. A sound reproducing machine mounting for salesrooms having in combination, a support adapted to receive the motor cabinet and turntable of a sound reproducing machine, a post on said support enclosing a chamber, a tone arm mounted on said post with which said last mentioned chamber communicates, and a listening device mounted on said support and also communicating with said last mentioned chamber.

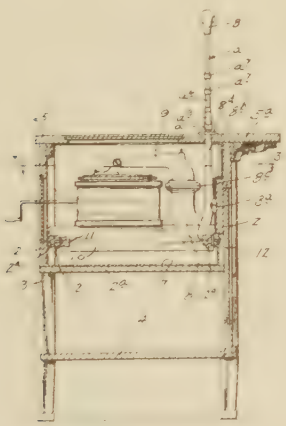
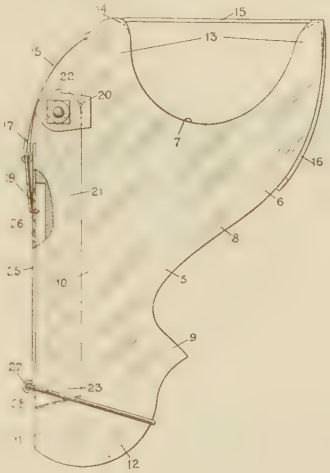
1,418,017. MOUNTING FOR SOUND-REPRODUCING MACHINES. EUGENE F. O'NEILL, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to Beckwith-O'Neill Company, Minneapolis, Minn., a Corporation of Minnesota. Filed Apr. 20, 1921. Serial No. 462,975. 6 Claims. (Cl. 274—2.)



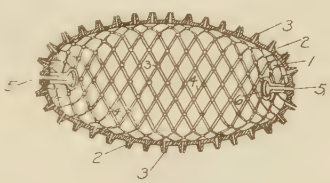
1. A sound reproducing machine mounted for salesrooms having, in combination, a device comprising a support adapted to be adjusted to receive the motor cabinet and turntable of various sizes of sound reproducing machines, and also comprising a closed chamber, a hollow bracket secured in said chamber, the tone arm for the supported sound reproducing machine being carried thereby in communication with its interior, and a listening device mounted on said device and also communicating with the interior of said bracket.

1,418,018. BROOM PRESS. WALKER P. ORR, Diana, Tenn. Filed June 18, 1921. Serial No. 478,640. 4 Claims. (Cl. 300—10.)

1. A broom press embodying a body member having a recess for the reception of broom material, means carried by the body member for holding various quantities of broom material within the recess, said means comprising a flexible member secured at one end to the press and adapted to extend over a recess, an adjusting member movably connected to the body member, the opposite end of said flexible member being detachably connected to the adjusting member.

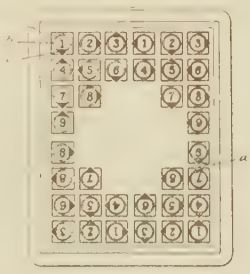


1,418,019. BATH BRUSH. SUSAN CLARE PEARSON, New York, N. Y. Filed May 17, 1921. Serial No. 470,442. 4 Claims. (Cl. 15—122.)



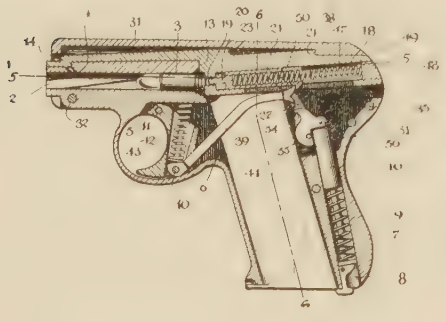
1. A bath brush comprising a rubber container adapted to receive a cake of soap; each end of the container being provided with an inlet slot having its ends enlarged and the edges of the walls about said slots being reinforced; and a multiplicity of hollow truncated projections extending radially from said container.

1,418,020. PLAYING CARDS. MILTON B. REACH, Chicopee, Mass. Filed June 8, 1921. Serial No. 475,998. 19 Claims. (Cl. 46—25.)



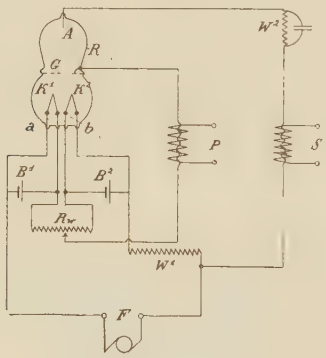
1. A playing card having the back surface thereof divided into a multiplicity of enclosed areas with deal indicating symbols alike in character located thereat, each of said symbols being one of a series corresponding in number to the number of rotations of the hands, the directions of the deals being indicated by the different locations of the symbols in respect to said enclosed areas.

1,418,021. AUTOMATIC FIREARM. JOSEPH JOACHIM REIFGRABER, St. Louis, Mo. Filed June 8, 1920. Serial No. 387,329. 13 Claims. (Cl. 42—3.)



1. A firearm, including a body with a portion having an abutment, and a barrel with a lock shoulder; and a breech block with rear and front shoulders normally in engagement with the abutment and lock shoulder respectively, to lock the breech block in the initial position, and an intermediate shoulder engageable with the abutment to limit the recoil of the breech block when a portion of the block adjacent the front shoulder is lifted from the lock shoulder by gas pressure.

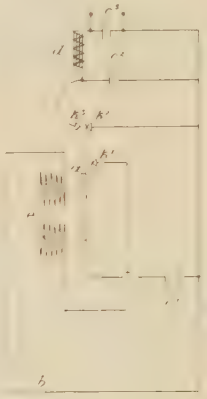
1,418,022. DISCHARGE-TUBE RELAY FOR UNDULATORY CURRENTS. EUGEN REISZ, Treptow, near Berlin, Germany. Filed June 5, 1915. Serial No. 32,437. 5 Claims. (Cl. 179—170.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. In a relay for undulatory currents comprising a discharge tube with an anode, a cathode, and grid-like auxiliary electrode between said anode and cathode dividing the relay into two separate parts, means to supply current of definite potential to each of said electrodes, and an auxiliary cathode in the portion of the relay containing the cathode, the potential applied to said auxiliary cathode being higher than that of the cathode but less than that of the grid-like electrode.

2. A discharge tube relay for undulatory currents, comprising an anode, a grid-like auxiliary electrode separating the discharge tube portion into two distinct parts, a cathode divided into two parts, a resistance connected in circuit between the said parts of the cathode, another resistance at the positive end of the cathode, and means for supplying current to said parts of the cathode and to the resistances in order to produce thereby a sufficiently large difference in potential between the different parts of the cathode to cause powerful ionization within the discharg tube below the auxiliary electrode.

1,418,023. APPARATUS FOR CONVERTING DIRECT CURRENTS OF LOW VOLTAGE INTO DIRECT CURRENTS OF HIGH VOLTAGE. EUGEN REISZ, Treptow, near Berlin, Germany. Filed June 25, 1915. Serial No. 36,306. 3 Claims. (Cl. 171—97.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



1. Means for converting direct currents of low voltage into direct currents of high voltage consisting of a circuit containing a source of low voltage current, a self induction coil and a circuit breaker, a condenser, a switching device in connection with said circuit breaker and the condenser, said switching device connecting the condenser with the circuit when the latter is opened by the circuit breaker and breaking the connection after a short period, a second condenser and a second switching device, the latter connecting the second condenser with the first one after it has been disconnected from the circuit by the first switching device, and a coil having ohmic and inductive resistance to cause a uniform discharge of high voltage direct current from the second condenser immediately after it has been loaded.

3. Means for converting direct currents of low voltage into direct currents of high voltage, consisting of a circuit containing a source of low voltage current and a coil having self induction provided with an armature, a make and break device consisting of three contacts controlled by said armature and adapted to be operated one after the other when the armature is oscillating, the first of said contacts being arranged in the circuit containing the coil and said source of current, a condenser connected with the second contact, said contact connecting the condenser with said circuit and disconnecting the same after a short period, a second condenser connected with the third contact, the latter connecting the same with the first condenser after it has been disconnected from the circuit, and a coil having ohmic and inductive resistance together with a third condenser to take up the charge from the second condenser and to cause a uniform discharge of high voltage direct current.

1,418,024. GATE FOR GRAVITY CARRIERS. FRED A. RIDER, Endicott, N. Y. Filed Oct. 29, 1918. Serial No. 260,184. Renewed Nov. 30, 1921. Serial No. 519,029. 4 Claims. (Cl. 193—55.)

1. The combination, with a gravity carrier comprising sections having a transverse gap forming a passageway between them, of a carrier section pivotally supported intermediate to its ends between said sections, one end of said pivoted section having a counterbalance for tilting the other end of the section upwardly when the section is released, and means for normally locking said pivoted section in alignment with the other sections of the carrier.

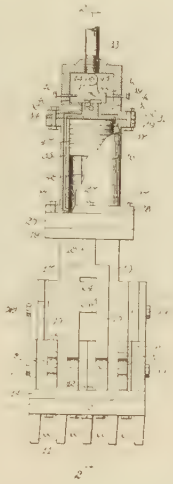
1,418,025. LET-OFF. HERMAN J. SATTLER, Sr., Quakertown, Pa. Filed May 4, 1921. Serial No. 466,713. 13 Claims. (Cl. 188—83.)

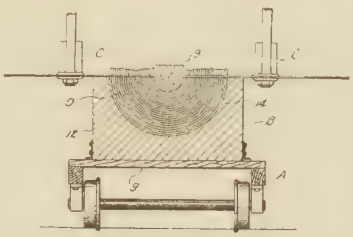
1. The combination with a warp head, of a friction band around the same, a line wrapped around the band and having one end connected thereto, a tension device connected to the other end of the line, a lever carried by the band, and means controlled by the lever for locking the band to the warp head.

1,418,026. ROD-STRAIGHTENING MACHINE. JOHN E. SCHMIDT and CLYDE E. MCARTHUR, Chicago, Ill. Filed Dec. 5, 1921. Serial No. 519,935. 7 Claims. (Cl. 153—48.)

1. In a machine of the class described, the combination with a fixed die member, of a die member movable with respect thereto, said die members having on their adjacent portions transversely disposed spaced arms, the arms at each side of each die member being alternately disposed and opposed and having their adjacent faces inclined in opposite directions at angles to one another, and means to reciprocate the movable member.



1,418,027. PROCESS FOR FORMING PLASTER BOARD. JOHN SCHUMACHER, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Jan. 26, 1921. Serial No. 439,976. 7 Claims. (Cl. 154—28.)



1. The process of shaping plaster board comprising forming sections of green plaster board, stacking said sections upon a warped surface corresponding to the shape desired and having an outline corresponding to the edges of the finished board, causing said board to conform to said surface, maintaining said board thereon until it has set, and then trimming the board at the edges of said surface after setting.

1,418,028. PATTERN-CONTROLLED WOODWORKING MACHINE. ALBERT P. SMITH, Omba, and WILLIAM E. SHOCKLEY, Hebron, Mo. Filed Mar. 3, 1921. Serial No. 449,378. 10 Claims. (Cl. 143—13.)

1. In a wood working machine, a rotatable work supporting means, a rotatable pattern supporting means, a roughing cutter associated with the work supporting means and movable toward or from the axis of the work, a finishing cutter associated with the roughing cutter but independently movable toward or from the work, controlling members associated with the pattern and bearing thereagainst and operatively connected respectively to the roughing cutter and the finishing cutter whereby to control the movement of said cutters toward or from the work in accordance with the pattern, means for driving said cutters and rotating the pattern and work supporting means, means for shifting the pattern and work longitudinally relative to the cutters, and means for holding the finishing cutters out of engagement with the work until the roughing cutters have cut a kerf equal in width to the width of the finishing cutters, said means then permitting the finishing cutters to engage the work within said kerf.

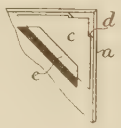
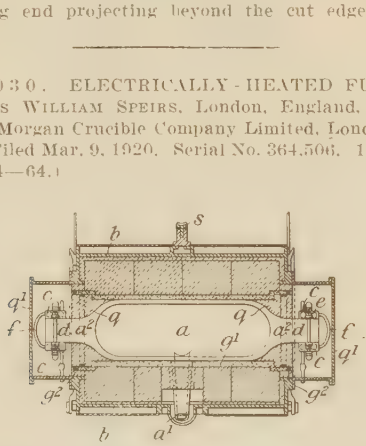
1,418,029. COVER FOR HERMETICALLY-SEALED TINS. FREDERICK JOSEPH SNOOK, Salisbury, England. Filed Jan. 11, 1922. Serial No. 528,502. 2 Claims. (Cl. 220—48.)



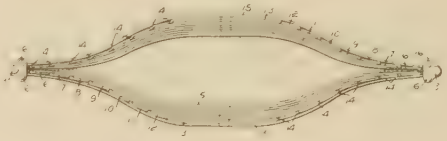
1. A slip-on lid for a sealed tin wherein the lid and flange or rim are cut away to form an opening therein, the cut edges of which fit the angle between the body and the end of the tin to be opened when the lid is applied thereto perpendicularly to the said end and wherein a flat cutting blade is arranged in the plane of the lid with its cutting end projecting beyond the cut edge thereof.

1,418,030. ELECTRICALLY-HEATED FURNACE. CHARLES WILLIAM SPEIRS, London, England, assignor to The Morgan Crucible Company Limited, London, England. Filed Mar. 9, 1920. Serial No. 364,506. 15 Claims. (Cl. 204—64.)



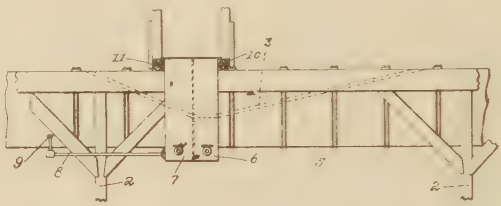
1. An electrically heated furnace including a casing provided with end openings, a crucible formed of an electric current conducting substance supported in said casing in a manner to withstand internal pressure and being free to expand and contract relatively to said casing under variations of temperature, the ends of said crucible extending through the end openings of the casing and being accessible for the ready application of conductor terminals from the exterior of the casing, and conductor terminals connected to the ends of said crucible.

1,418,031. VEHICLE SPRING. CHARLES P. STANBON, Lynn, Mass. Filed Apr. 30, 1919. Serial No. 293,799. 6 Claims. (Cl. 267—47.)



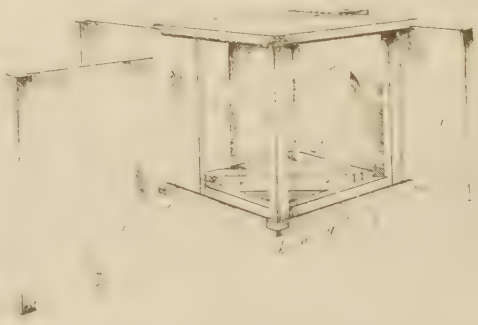
6. An elliptic spring comprising inner and outer master leaves, leaves of varying length between them with leaf positioning ears thereon, the outer master leaves movably locked to one common set of anchorages, the inner master leaves individually immovably locked to a different set of anchorages and interlocked with each other.

1,418,032. WATER METER. JOHN C. STEVENS, Portland, Oreg., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Leupold, Voelpel & Company, Portland, Oreg., a Corporation of Oregon. Filed Feb. 3, 1917. Serial No. 146,459. Renewed Apr. 17, 1922. Serial No. 553,926. 1 Claim. (Cl. 73—167.)



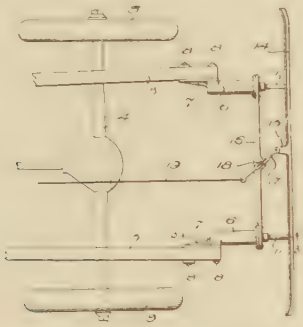
An open-channel water meter including in combination, means for forming a constricted throat for the water, two wells, one of which is connected to the channel at the constricted throat, and the other of which is connected to the channel at a point above the constricted throat, a float in each well, a guide pulley at the bottom of one of said wells, a cable connected to said floats and running over said guide pulley, a second guide pulley above the wells over which the cable runs, and means operated by said second guide pulley for indicating the volume of flow of water through the channel.

1,418,033. MEANS FOR TAKING PHOTOGRAPHS WITH SPECIAL SCENIC OR BACKGROUND EFFECTS. GODFREY HEATHCOTE SUTCLIFFE, West Ealing, England. Filed Dec. 10, 1921. Serial No. 521,444. 9 Claims. (Cl. 95—18.)



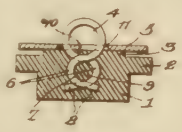
1. A portable device adapted to be used in connection with a camera for taking photographs with special scenic or background effects, comprising a supporting framework mounted adjacent the front end of the camera and having top and bottom closures, and a transparent screen arranged at an angle of substantially 45° to the axis of the camera and supported by the top and bottom closure.

1,418,034. ATTACHMENT FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. JOHN GRANVILLE TENNENT, Dallas, Tex. Filed June 17, 1921. Serial No. 478,290. 6 Claims. (Cl. 116—28.)



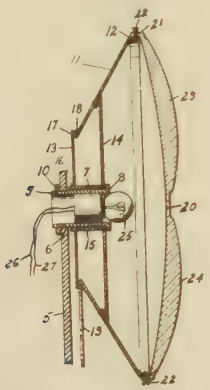
4. A vehicle attachment comprising a pair of cylinders arranged at the rear of the vehicle, a plunger mounted in each of said cylinders, means for normally retaining said plungers in outer position, a bumper carried by said plungers, a cross bar mounted between said cylinders, a link mounted on said cross bar and provided with a slot, said cross bar being provided with a pin engaging within said slot, one end of said link being pivotally connected with said bumper, an indicator mounted adjacent the driver's seat of the vehicle, and means connected between said indicator and the other end of said link for operating said indicator upon movement of said bumper.

1,418,035. BOTTLE STOPPER. CHARLES F. THATCHER, Providence, R. I. Filed Sept. 7, 1920. Serial No. 408,468. 6 Claims. (Cl. 215—55.)



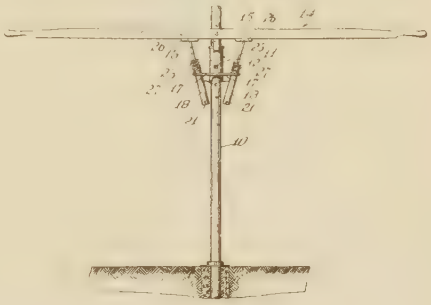
1. In a bottle stopper, a rubber body, and a loop structure having a body portion provided with a bail receiving eye in its upper end and having an eye-like part in its lower end spaced from the bail-receiving eye, said loop structure being embedded in the rubber body and an integral part of the latter extending through the eye-like part in the lower end of the loop structure and for a distance below the latter.

1,418,036. DIRECTION SIGNAL. WILLIAM R. TONKIN, Bisbee, Ariz. Filed Dec. 7, 1921. Serial No. 520,651. 2 Claims. (Cl. 116—49.)



1. A direction signal for vehicles comprising a support carried by one end portion of the vehicle, adjacent the side of the vehicle, a tubular shaft secured to the support, a lamp projecting from one end of the shaft, a lamp casing having a partition therein, said partition cooperating with the rear wall to provide a bearing adapted to receive the shaft, a lens extending over the open end of the casing, each half of the lens being differently colored, and means engaged with the casing for rotating the same upon the shaft to position the desired colored portion of the lens adjacent the side of the vehicle.

1,418,037. TEETER DEVICE. WILLIAM S. TOTHILL, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 21, 1921. Serial No. 453,936. 13 Claims. (Cl. 42—22.)



1. In a device of the character described, the combination of a support, a head mounted thereon, a teeter device pivotally mounted on the upper portion of said head, arms projecting from opposite sides of said head at substantially right angles to the axis of the pivot of the teeter device, an outwardly and upwardly inclined spring-holding device carried by each arm, and a coiled spring held at its lower end to each of said inclined devices and connected to its upper end to said teeter device.

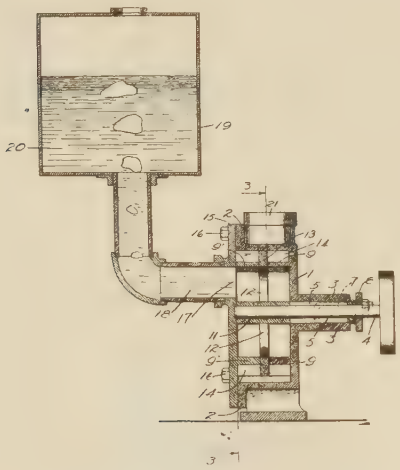
1,418,038. GOLF CLUB. SINCLAIR TOUSEY, New York, N. Y. Filed Jan. 6, 1921. Serial No. 435,487. 4 Claims. (Cl. 46—4.)

1. A golf club having its shaft below its handle portion provided with a ridge extending about the same.

1,418,039. GOLF CLUB. SINCLAIR TOUSEY, New York, N. Y. Original application filed Jan. 6, 1921, Serial No. 435,487. Divided and this application filed Mar. 30, 1922. Serial No. 548,118. 1 Claim. (Cl. 46—4.)

A golf club having its shaft below the handle part, provided with ring shaped spaced apart protuberances, substantially as described.

1,418,040. COMPRESSOR OR VACUUM PUMP. REUBEN N. TRANE, La Crosse, Wis. Filed June 7, 1920. Serial No. 387,232. 6 Claims. (Cl. 230—14.)



1. In a compressor or vacuum pump, a casing provided with an air inlet and having a single outlet, a tank containing a liquid disposed above the outlet and having free communication with the interior of the casing through said outlet, whereby the interior of the casing at all times contains liquid, and means within the casing for entraining air and for forcing it into the tank containing the liquid.

1,418,041. CENTRIFUGAL PUMP. REUBEN N. TRANE, La Crosse, Wis. Filed Nov. 11, 1920. Serial No. 423,428. 10 Claims. (Cl. 253—176.)

1. A pump of the type described, comprising a casing having a cylindrical chamber, an impeller wheel mounted for revolution with said chamber, said impeller wheel having a circumferential groove or channel, and a series of blades carried by said impeller wheel and disposed within said channel, said blades extending at right angles to the plane of revolution of the impeller wheel and terminating short of the outer edges of the groove.

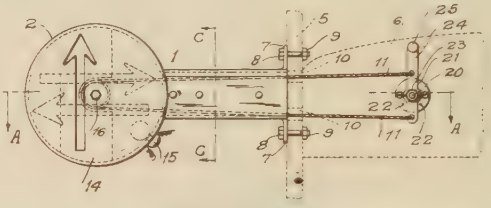
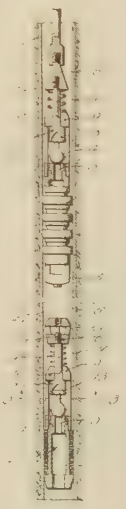
1,418,042. VEHICLE SIGNAL. GEORGE L. WENK, Mechanicsburg, Pa. Filed July 16, 1921. Serial No. 485,152. 5 Claims. (Cl. 116—47.)



1. A hollow frame for a signaling device consisting of sheet metal, the metal being cut to form a blank having a narrow portion at the center and at opposite ends flanges 3, the central portion being bent to a cylindrical shape 2, and the flanges 3 turned over and overlapped to form a hollow arm or extension, and arms 12 having bearings at the ends secured to the hollow arm and extended to the center of the cylindrical shaped part.

1,418,043. PUMP VALVE. GEORGE S. WILCOX, Burkburnett, Tex. Filed June 17, 1920. Serial No. 389,724. 5 Claims. (Cl. 103—61.)



1. A structure of the character described including a standing valve having a movably mounted valve member, a piston slidably mounted above the standing valve and including a movable valve member, means for positively engaging and moving the valve member of the standing valve into a closed position yieldably held out of engagement with the valve member and positioned for engagement by the piston, and means for moving the valve member of the piston to a closed position yieldably held out of engagement with the valve member.

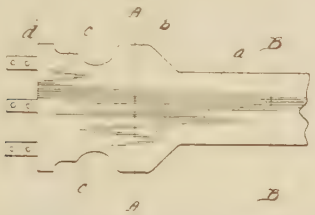
1,418,044. DRAG LINK FOR STEERING GEARS. FRANK P. WILLIAMS, Detroit, Mich. Filed May 27, 1921. Serial No. 473,092. 8 Claims. (Cl. 74—17.)



1. A link for use in motor vehicle steering gear, comprising a single piece stamping formed up to provide a rod portion having a closed but hollow section and an integral tubular head portion at the end and of larger diameter.

1,418,045. COLLAPSIBLE RIM. EDWARD FAY WILSON, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Lightning Change Rim Corporation, Berrien Springs, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed Dec. 1, 1919. Serial No. 341,803. 2 Claims. (Cl. 301—33.)

1. In a rim cut apart at one point in its circumference, a link connecting the ends of the rim, said link having a web portion extending circumferentially within the rim and spanning the cut, connecting parts extending laterally from the web portion and having their ends bent outwardly substantially parallel with the flanges of the rim and pivotally connected to same, the pivotal connection at one end being adjacent to the cut and at the other end spaced from the cut to swing the first end inwardly when collapsing the rim, the connecting parts for the inwardly swinging rim end extending circumferentially away from the adjacent pivot and then inwardly to the web of the link, the web portion being slotted to provide clearance between the parts and the outwardly turned flanges of the rim at said inwardly swinging rim end to permit the collapsing of the rim.

1,418,046. AUTOMATIC OIL-FEED DEVICE. WILLIAM H. WIX, Baltimore, Md. Filed July 14, 1920. Serial No. 396,214. Renewed Jan. 21, 1922. Serial No. 531,000. 4 Claims. (Cl. 10—126.)

4. The combination with a die-stock operating with a rotary motion; of an oil receptacle carried thereby, a pair of laterally spaced oil-collecting chambers mounted in the receptacle into which the oil is splashed by the motion of the die-stock, said chambers being located adjacent to one end of the receptacle and having outer side walls spaced therefrom, and inner walls extending from said receptacle end wall and terminating short of the bottom of the chambers, a trough extending between the chambers and open to the interior of the receptacle, an outlet cylinder leading from the trough, a feed tube leading from the cylinder, a reciprocatory plunger movable into and out of the cylinder by the motion of the die-stock, a hollow stem extending from the plunger and slidably seating in the tube, the outer end of said stem opening into the tube, and a by-pass having entrance and exit ports, the aforesaid tube having a port which opens into the cylinder when the plunger is out of the same, and other ports for establishing communication between the interior of the stem and the entrance and exit ports respectively of the by-pass.

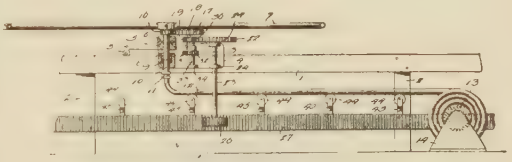
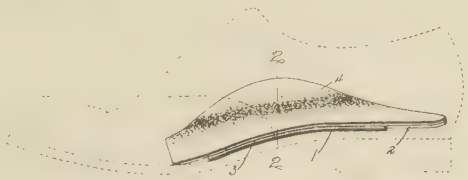
1,418,047. TRAVELING SPRINKLER. ERNEST ZERWECK, Oakland, Calif. Filed June 15, 1920. Serial No. 389,092. 4 Claims. (Cl. 299—53.)



1. A rotatably mounted drum, a track, a carrier mounted to travel on said track, a rotatably mounted sprinkler carried by the carrier, a hose carried by the carrier and wound upon said drum to directly rotate the sprinkler, a horizontally extending rack, and gearing interposed between the rack and sprinkler for moving said carrier along the track.

1,418,048. ARCH SUPPORT. JOSEPH ABRAMOWITZ, Madison, Ill. Filed Jan. 31, 1921. Serial No. 441,385. 2 Claims. (Cl. 36—71.)



1. An arch-support comprising a base adapted to fit within a shoe, an arch-supporting element also contoured to fit within a shoe and shaped to conform approximately to the instep or arch of the foot, and a sheet metal hinge connection between the base and one side margin only of the arch-supporting element and yieldingly maintaining the arch-supporting element normally in obliquely disposed spaced relation to the base, the arch-supporting element being otherwise out of engagement with the base and adapted through the inherent resiliency of said hinge connection to yieldingly rise and fall relatively to the base on each application and relief of the weight of the foot.

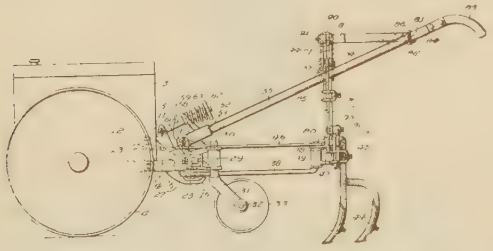
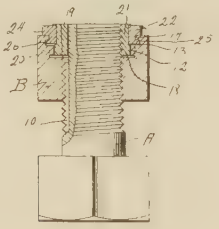
1,418,049. AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT. CHARLES J. ALLEN, Mooreštown, N. J., and JOSEPH MADER, Philadelphia, Pa., assignors to S. L. Allen & Co., Inc., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 26, 1920. Serial No. 368,842. 13 Claims. (Cl. 97—42.)



1. In a machine of the class described, the combination with a frame and carrying wheels therefor, of a pair of rearwardly diverging steering posts mounted for vertical movement on said frame, a gang bar carrying soil working implements, means for suspending said gang bar from said posts, and means comprising vertically moveable handles relatively moveable with respect to and supported by said posts operative to shift said gang bar laterally.

1,418,050. NUT LOCK. EDWARD MILTON BABLE, Sistersville, W. Va., assignor of one-half to Tecumseh S. Hanes, Kanauga, Ohio. Filed Oct. 15, 1921. Serial No. 507,980. 3 Claims. (Cl. 151—28.)

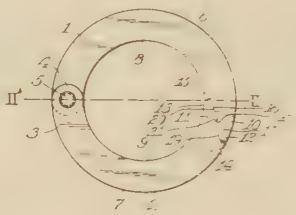


1. In combination with a bolt having a groove extending longitudinally thereof, a nut coacting with the bolt and having the outer end portion of its bore enlarged to define a recess, said recess being provided with an annular series of teeth, the wall of the recess being formed outwardly of said teeth with peripheral grooves leading at one end into cut away portions extending to the face of the nut, a locking member insertible within said recess and including a ring adapted to embrace the bolt and formed with a key fitting within said groove in the bolt, said ring being formed with a series of teeth meshing with the teeth within said recess, and a split ring permanently and revolubly associated with said ring and formed with a reduced portion received within said recess and provided with outwardly extending projections received within said cut away portions whereby upon subsequent rotation of the split ring said projections will be received within said grooves in the nut.

1,418,051. LIGHTING SYSTEM FOR AUTOMOBILES. EDWIN C. BALLMAN, St. Louis, Mo., assignor to Valley Electric Company, Wilmington, Del., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Sept. 13, 1915. Serial No. 50,408. 3 Claims. (Cl. 171—242.)

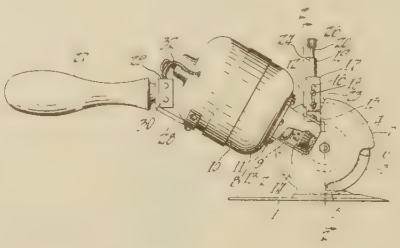
1. A lighting system for an automobile having a magneto, comprising, a low resistance lamp connected in circuit with said magneto, a winding of low resistance and of high reactance connected in said circuit, and a core for said winding constructed to form a nearly closed magnetic circuit, adapted to cause the voltage at said lamp to remain substantially constant at varying speeds of said magneto, substantially as and for the purpose set forth.

1,418,052. SECTIONAL MACHINERY REPAIR WASHER. CHARLES N. BARTON, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor of one-third to Will Peek and one-third to John W. Langley, both of Indianapolis, Ind. Filed Mar. 10, 1920. Serial No. 364,671. 4 Claims. (Cl. 85—51.)



1. A machinery repair washer comprising a circular plate composed of two curved sections hinged together at one end, each section having a tapered tongue at its opposite end, each tongue having a base portion that is relatively narrower than the diametrical width of the section and having also a relatively narrower blunt end, the outer portion of one of the sections having a stop shoulder at the base of the tongue and the outer side of the tongue having a locking shoulder facing the stop shoulder, the inner portion of the other one of the two sections having a stop shoulder at the base of the tongue and the inner side of the tongue having a locking shoulder facing the stop shoulder to co-operate with the first-described locking shoulder.

1,418,053. CUTTING MACHINE. FREDERICK BAUMANN, Jr., East Orange, N. J. Filed Dec. 23, 1918. Serial No. 267,970. 13 Claims. (Cl. 164—76.)



1. In a device of the character described, a base plate, a support thereon, cutting means rotatably mounted on said support, a motor therefor having a casing with its axis projecting rearwardly at such an angle as to leave the view of the cutting means by the operator unobstructed and the prolongation of said axis intersecting the axis of the cutting means, a bevel gear transmission between said motor axis and said cutting means, and a handle projecting from the rear end of said casing and spaced from said cutting means at least a distance substantially equal to the length of said motor.

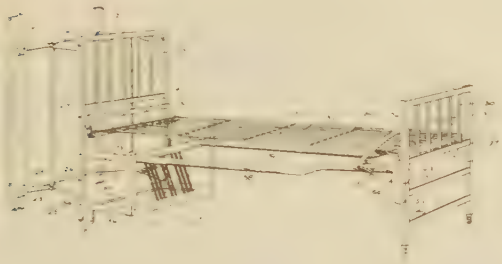
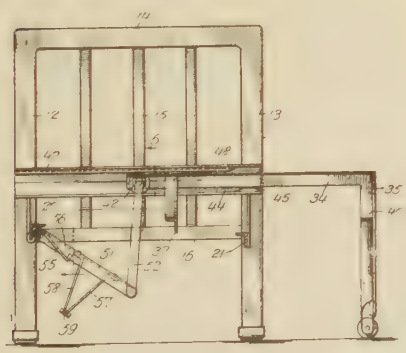
1,418,054. WALL BED. MATTHEW F. BAYER, Kenosha, Wis., assignor to Simmons Company, Kenosha, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Jan. 6, 1919. Serial No. 269,768. 6 Claims. (Cl. 5—18.)



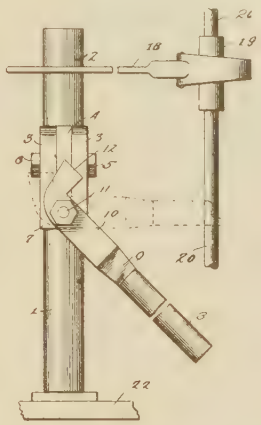
1. In a bedstead of the class described, the combination of a stationary structure, a vertical frame, means permitting bodily horizontal movement of said frame away from said structure while maintaining said frame vertical, and a bedstead frame foldably attached to said first frame and means whereby the movement of the vertical frame is controlled by the folding of the bedstead frame.

1,418,055. EXTENSION COUCH. MATTHEW F. BAYER, Kenosha, Wis., assignor to Simmons Company, Kenosha, Wis., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Dec. 19, 1919. Serial No. 346,087. 8 Claims. (Cl. 5—46.)



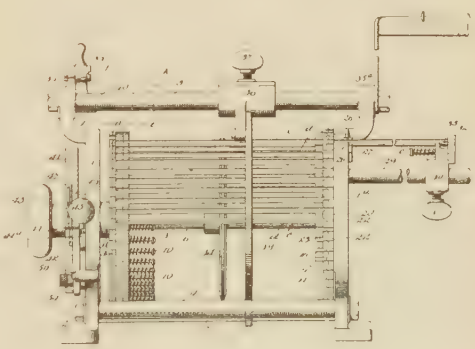
1. In a folding couch, the combination of a stationary mattress frame section, and a movable mattress frame section slidable with reference to the stationary section, a manually controlled arm mounted to swing on the stationary section, spring means opposing swinging movement of said arm, and means connecting the outer end of said arm to the movable section.

1,418,056. POST FOR WELL-DRILLING ROTARIES. JOSEPH OLIN BENNETT, Shreveport, La. Filed Mar. 10, 1920. Serial No. 364,706. 3 Claims. (Cl. 255—75.)



2. A post of the character specified comprising a lower section and an upper section, said sections having interengaging lugs and a pivotal connection between the lugs, and releasable means normally operative, connected with the lower section for engaging the lugs to hold the sections in alinement.

1,418,057. FONTING APPARATUS. LINN BOYD BENTON and MORRIS FULLER BENTON, Plainfield, N. J., assignors to American Type Founders Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 9, 1921. Serial No. 476,170. 27 Claims. (Cl. 276—3.)



1. An apparatus of the character described, comprising a delivery element adapted to carry a plurality of bodies, a receiving element in axial alinement therewith, means whereby bodies may be transferred from the delivery element to the receiving element, and a gauge for regulating the number of bodies delivered.

1,418,058. TUBE-WELDING MACHINE. RICHARD O. BERG and SIMON BERG, Detroit, Mich., assignors to Michigan Steel Tube Products Co., Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed July 12, 1920. Serial No. 395,434. 20 Claims. (Cl. 78—88.)

1. In a tube welding machine, the combination of roll shaft supports, roll shafts rotatably supported in said supports but free from support at one end, and tube rolls supported on such free ends of said shafts and removable from such ends freely, and nuts threaded on such ends of said shafts and on both sides of the rolls for adjustably supporting the rolls on the shafts.

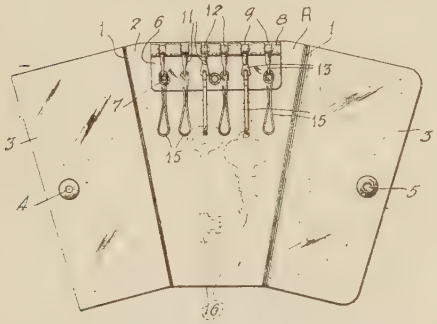
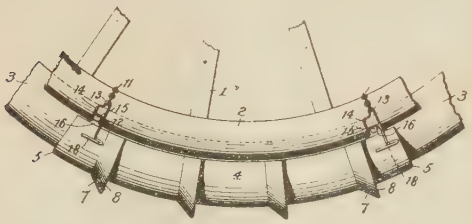
1,418,059. KEY CASE. BERNARD BIEHL, Sr., Newark, N. J., assignor to J. L. Sommer Manufacturing Co., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 2, 1921. Serial No. 497,927. 5 Claims. (Cl. 150—40.)



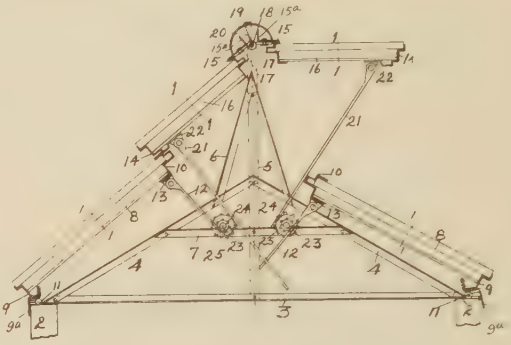
1. A key case including a tubular support having a transverse slot therein, an anchor member having a shank passing into said tubular support through said slot and a head on the end thereof arranged within said tubular support of a diameter greater than the width of said slot, whereby said anchor member can swing in said slot and revolve about its own axis relatively to said tubular member, and a key receiving clip pivotally connected to the other end of said anchor member.

1,418,060. WHEEL ANTISLIPPING ATTACHMENT. WILLIAM A. BIGGS, Meridian, Miss. Filed July 17, 1919. Serial No. 311,417. 3 Claims. (Cl. 152—14.)



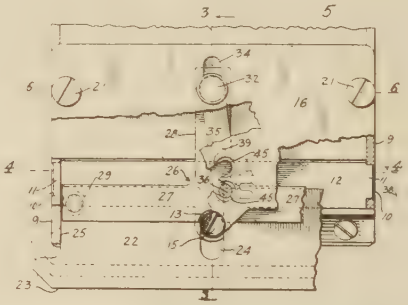
1. An attachment of the character described comprising a body portion consisting of vulcanized rubber having fabric embedded therein, said body portion being of a curved formation to be applied to a vehicle tire and conform to the surface thereof, and spaced integral traction ribs disposed radially of the body, said ribs having a straight wall on one side, and a bevelled wall on the other.

1,418,061. SKYLIGHT. BENJAMIN P. BLASKI, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Blaski Manufacturing Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 19, 1920. Serial No. 425,127. 27 Claims. (Cl. 108—31.)



1. In combination, a framework including upper and lower supporting members, closure means for said framework comprising upper and lower sections, means hingedly connecting said upper and lower sections to said upper and lower supporting members, respectively, links pivotally connected at one end to said sections, respectively, and means operatively associated with said links and so adapted that the operation of one of said sections is counterbalanced by that of the other section.

1,418,062. CALCULATING MACHINE. ROBERT G. C. BOA, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Remington Accounting Machine Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 21, 1921. Serial No. 463,154. 17 Claims. (Cl. 235—59.)



1. In a calculating machine, the combination of a carriage, a follower forming part of a totalizer-actuator control mechanism, a carrier adjustable to different positions along said carriage, a cam adjustable on said carrier and co-operative with said follower, a guide fixed on the carrier, and an operating member connected to said cam and engaging and movable bodily along and guided by said guide and which determines the point of adjustment of the adjustable cam by the adjustment of said operating member along the fixed guide.

1,418,063. MEAT SLICER. WILLIAM F. H. BRAUN, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to The Braun Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Sept. 29, 1921. Serial No. 504,098. 3 Claims. (Cl. 17—24.)

3. In a meat slicer the combination of a traveler provided at one side with a fixed undercut wall and at the other side with a pintle rod and feed screw, a meat table slidable in respect to the traveler and having a side wall co-operating with the fixed side wall of the traveler, and two hinge knuckles, turnably and slidably mounted on the rod and in mutual engagement for sliding motion and whereof one is provided with a half nut for engaging and disengaging the screw and whereof the other is provided with a wall and a fastening device for engaging and disengaging the meat carriage.

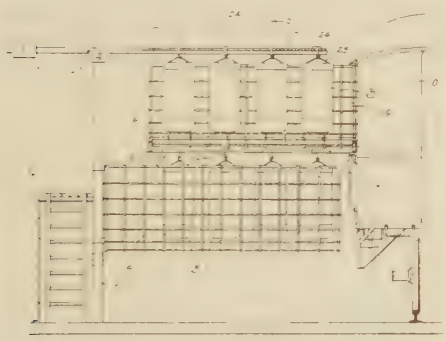
1,418,064. MAIL-BAG-DELIVERY APPARATUS. GEORGE D. BREMNER, Brooklyn, N. Y., and ELMER E. TROUTMAN, Ashland, Pa. Filed July 27, 1921. Serial No. 487,890. 3 Claims. (Cl. 258—17.)



1. The combination with relatively movable and stationary objects, of a bag supporting comb-like member on one of said objects and a bag receiving net carried by the other of said objects said net comprising a rigid frame holding the net with bag-receiving portion at an inclination to cause a lifting action on the bag when engaging it and also including a concave bottom into which the bag ultimately is received, the mechanism being so designed that when the movable object passes the stationary one any number of bags supported on the member will be received by the net and thereby slip from the teeth of the comb-like member.

1,418,065. SAMPLING APPARATUS. ROBERT LEE BRUNER, Corinth, Miss. Filed July 6, 1920. Serial No. 394,379. 9 Claims. (Cl. 73—21.)

1. In a sampling apparatus of the character described, in combination, a conduit having an opening in its side wall, a closure plate for said opening, said closure plate having an opening constituting the sampling orifice of said conduit, a baffle arranged on the inner surface of said closure plate adjacent said sampling orifice, a rotatable disk arranged on said closure plate and having a sampling orifice adapted to periodically register with the sampling orifice of said closure plate, a throttle plate for controlling the sampling orifice of said disk, a rotatable shaft carrying said disk, a bearing for said shaft spaced from said closure plate, a stepped bearing for said shaft carried by said closure plate, and means for imparting rotation to said shaft.

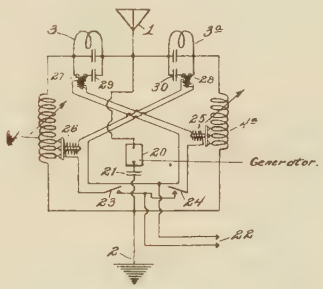
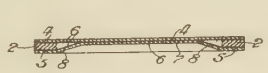
1,418,066. RADIOTRANSMITTING SYSTEM. THEODORE R. BUNTING, Norfolk, Va. Filed June 2, 1920. Serial No. 385,903. 1 Claim. (Cl. 250—9.)



In a radio transmitting system employing continuous or undamped waves the frequency of which is altered to accomplish signalling, the combination of two parallel radiating circuits consisting of the same antenna and the earth, between which are two electrical circuits each of which includes a tuning inductance and an impedance circuit composed of an inductance shunted by a capacity, each impedance circuit tuned to the frequency of the opposite radiating circuit and the two radiating circuits tuned to oscillate at frequencies sufficiently different to render negligible the impedance of each impedance circuit to the oscillating current of the radiating circuit of which it is a part, means for independently changing the value of the electrical constants of the two radiating circuits to accomplish the transmission of two messages, and simultaneously with each operation to automatically compensate, for such change, the value of the electrical constants of the impedance circuit included in the opposite radiating circuit.

1,418,067. WOODEN PANEL. JOSEPH BUTLER, Auckland, New Zealand, assignor to The Kauri Timber Company Limited, Melbourne, Victoria, Australia, a Company of Victoria. Filed July 5, 1921. Serial No. 482,567. 2 Claims. (Cl. 217—17.)



1. A composite panel for packing cases, comprising a flat, skeleton frame, and outer and inner veneer sheets disposed at their marginal portions against the opposite side faces of said frame; the outer veneer sheet having a well-defined, flat central area which is impressed inwardly of the panel and disposed immediately against and secured directly to the central portion of the inner veneer sheet, the portion of the outer sheet which lies between its said marginal and central portions being inclined relatively thereto.

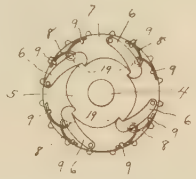
1,418,068. AUTOMOBILE STARTING DEVICE. JOHN F. COLLINS, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Sept. 7, 1918. Serial No. 253,038. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—54.)



In a device of the character described, a ratchet wheel adapted to be fixed to a shaft to be rotated, a wheel journaled on said shaft adjacent said ratchet wheel, dogs pivoted to one face of the last mentioned wheel adapted to coact with the ratchet wheel, said dogs each having a chamber in its back near its head and springs each connected at two points to the second named wheel, each spring having a loop intermediate its ends for registration with the chamber in one of the dogs as specified.

1,418,069. WHEEL. WILLIAM P. DALRYMPLE, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Chicago Steel Wheel Co., Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 28, 1919. Serial No. 320,357. Renewed Oct. 13, 1920. Serial No. 416,778. 23 Claims. (Cl. 301—63.)

5. A wheel comprising in combination a hub, a rim, and a rigidly-dished sheet metal plate adapted by hooked engagement with said rim to support said hub.

1,418,070. ARTIFICIAL-TOOTH CROWN AND SECURING MEANS THEREFOR. ENOCH M. FREDERICKS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Joy Tooth Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Nov. 10, 1919. Serial No. 336,905. 7 Claims. (Cl. 32—30.)

4. The combination with a tooth crown having a post receiving inwardly enlarged tapered cavity therein and provided with one or more grooves in its surface adjacent to the outer end of said cavity, said groove or grooves leading from the cavity to the outer surface of the crown, the crown also having a reduced and substantially annular portion and a substantially annular shoulder around the outer extremity of said cavity through which said grooves are extended, a metallic band located in the outer extremity of the cavity against the walls thereof and having in its inner surface one or more longitudinally extending grooves registering with the grooves of the crown, a securing post located at one of its ends in the band and having a portion within the cavity tapered from its inner end towards the inner end of the band.

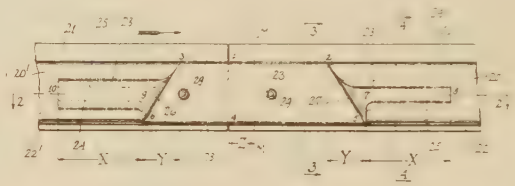
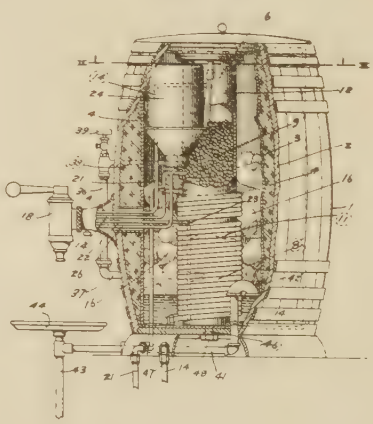
1,418,071. WELDED JOINT. CHESTER F. GAILOR, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed July 16, 1921. Serial No. 485,251. 25 Claims. (Cl. 238—164.)



2. A structure comprising two aligning members and a plate bridging the joint between them and having central and end portions welded to said members and unwelded connecting portions between such central and end portions, said connecting portions being bent laterally.

1,418,072. COMBINATION CARBONATOR AND DISPENSING BARREL. ARCH B. GREEN, San Francisco, Calif., assignor of one-half to U. G. Walker, San Francisco, Calif. Filed Aug. 24, 1921. Serial No. 495,022. 4 Claims. (Cl. 225—21.)



1. A combination carbonator and dispensing barrel, comprising a dispensing barrel and a carbonator disposed therein, said carbonator including a tank, means for passing water through the same, means for carbonating the same by agitation and percolation, and means manipulated from the outside of the barrel for controlling the intake and outlet ports for the water.

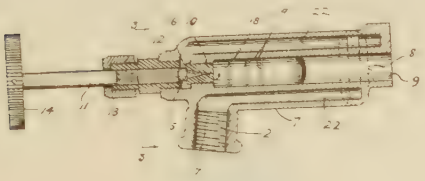
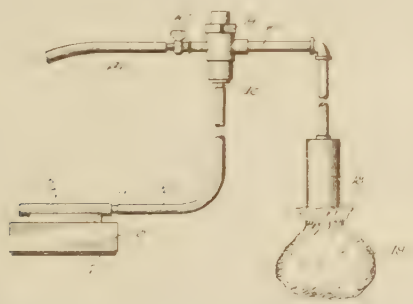
1,418,073. FUEL VALVE. PHILIP H. GUNDERMANN, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 3, 1921. Serial No. 449,556. 3 Claims. (Cl. 158—53.)



3. In combination, a casing having a combustion chamber, a fuel passage in said casing adjacent said chamber, a valve seat having an opening therein connecting said passage with said chamber, said valve seat comprising a plug removably secured in said casing, a valve for closing the opening in said seat and provided with a stem extending through said casing, and removable means for supporting said stem in said casing, said supporting means being arranged when removed to provide an opening in said casing through which said valve seat plug may be removed.

1,418,074. ELECTROTYPING-CASE POLISHER. ORA DWANE HARDEN, Chicago, Ill., assignor, by mesne assignments, of one-half to Charles E. Summers, Chicago, Ill. Filed Mar. 11, 1921. Serial No. 451,646. 2 Claims. (Cl. 91—75.)



1. In a device of the character described, the combination of a brush having a back with a body of bristles connected thereto; a row of centrally disposed tubes extending through the back into the body of bristles; a centrally disposed pipe, secured to the back in which the tubes terminate; a yielding airproof housing, extending around the back and around the bristles and terminating above the free ends of the bristles, whereby to draw air and small material particles through the brush bristles when the air in the pipe is attenuated and an aspirator connected to said pipe.

1,418,075. BALL RACK. ERNEST HEDENSKOOG, Muskegon, Mich. Filed Apr. 22, 1918. Serial No. 229,901. 7 Claims. (Cl. 46—6.)

1. A ball rack, comprising a casing providing a plurality of channels in which the balls may repose, a discharging device, a support for a receptacle beneath said device and means comprising a notched locking bar and a pivoted member normally engaged in the notch of said bar and removable therefrom by positioning the receptacle on said support for preventing the operation of said discharging device until arrangement is made for the disposition of the discharged balls.

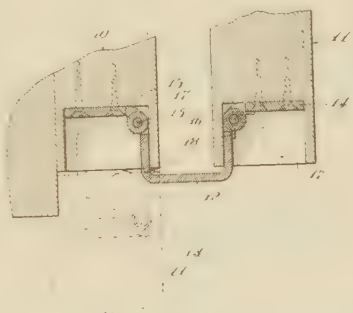
1,418,076. HINGE. ALBERT S. HEDSTROM, Oak Park, Ill. Filed Sept. 26, 1921. Serial No. 503,127. 4 Claims. (Cl. 16—163.)



3. A hinge comprising an intermediate member in the form of a channel, supporting members pivotally connected with the ends of the arms of the channel, and a coiled spring having a plurality of turns about the pivot pin upon which one of said supporting members is mounted on said intermediate channel member, said spring having a bearing on both of said members for producing a tendency for the supporting member to stand at one of the limits of its motion with respect to the channel member.

1,418,077. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. JOSEPH B. HOLDEN, Syracuse, N. Y., assignor to Remington Typewriter Company, Ilion, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Original application filed Mar. 2, 1920, Serial No. 362,675. Divided and this application filed Jan. 5, 1921. Serial No. 435,221. 2 Claims. (Cl. 197—151.)

1. The combination of a block 70 having a reduced bearing 72 and a still further reduced threaded part 68, a gear 73 journaled on said bearing, a post 65, 67 screwed onto said part 68 and having mounted thereon a ribbon spool which is operatively connected with said gear 73, and a drive shaft 85 journaled in said block 70, and having a pinion 86 adapted to drive said gear 73.

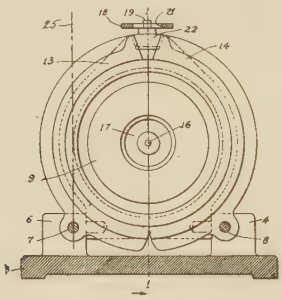
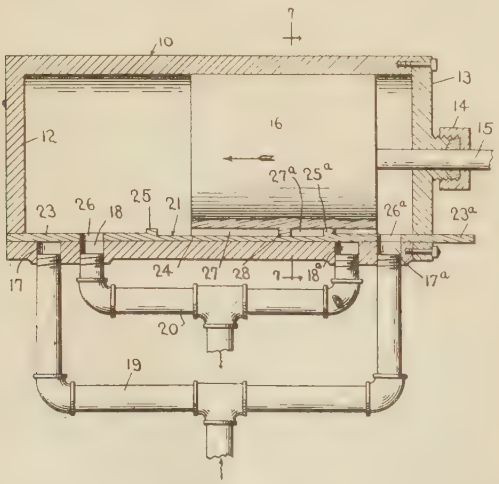
1,418,078. CASTING APPARATUS. THEODORE A. HORTON, New York, N. Y. Filed July 23, 1919. Serial No. 312,799. 8 Claims. (Cl. 22—153.)



1. In casting apparatus the combination of two pairs of opposite pivoted members, each pair disposed at right angles to the other pair, one pair of said members closing into coactive engagement and the other pair closing into coactive engagement with the first mentioned pair, respectively, each of said members of each pair having its center of gravity between a vertical plane through its pivotal axis and that face thereof which coacts with another one of the members.

1,418,079. STEAM CYLINDER. GEORGE R. HUFF, Sasakwa, Okla., assignor of one-fourth to Harry H. Diamond and one-fourth to Charles L. Orr, both of Holdenville, Okla. Filed July 23, 1921. Serial No. 487,127. 2 Claims. (Cl. 121—129.)

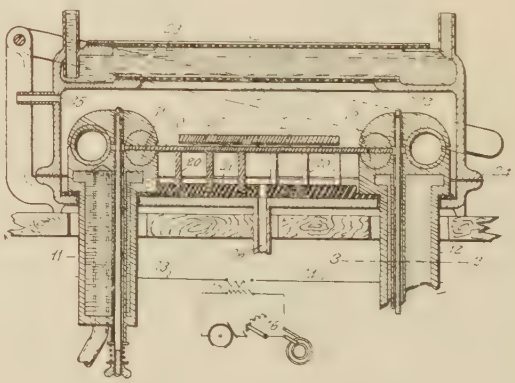


1. In an engine, a cylinder having intake and exhaust ports therein, a piston operating in the cylinder, a valve slidably mounted within the cylinder and controlling the intake and exhaust ports, said pistons having pockets formed therein, stops formed upon the valve for sliding movement within the pockets, and an abutment formed upon the piston between the pockets for engagement with the stops and actuating the valve.

1,418,080. DRILL FEEDING MECHANISM. HARRY C. JOHANSEN, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Apr. 17, 1918. Serial No. 229,163. 44 Claims. (Cl. 255—22.)

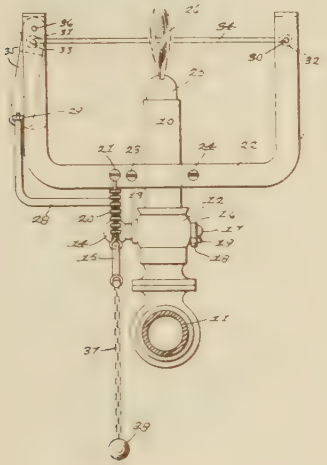
1. In a drilling apparatus, a drive rod, means for simultaneously rotating said rod and moving it longitudinally, and means for moving said rod longitudinally independently of its rotation, said means being each operable independently of the other or operable simultaneously to augment the rate of said longitudinal movement.

1,418,081. ALLOY AND PREPARATION OF THE SAME FOR CONTACT BODIES AND IGNITION POINTS. CLEMENS A. LAISE, Weehawken, N. J. Filed May 2, 1921. Serial No. 466,337. 9 Claims. (Cl. 75—1.)



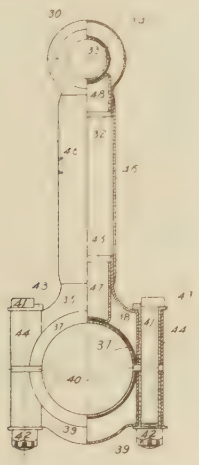
1. An alloy containing about 87 to 97 per cent by weight of tungsten, about 10 to 3 per cent of molybdenum, and not more than one per cent yet a substantial amount of vanadium.

1,418,082. AUTOMATIC SAFETY GAS SHUT-OFF. ISIDOR B. LASKOWITZ, New York, N. Y. Filed May 20, 1921. Serial No. 471,214. 3 Claims. (Cl. 67—116.)



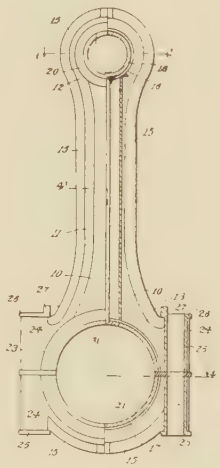
1. In a device of the character described including a thermostatic rod, in combination with a gas fixture and a valved burner, a mantle having its lower metal socket longitudinally slotted for the reception of said thermostatic rod, substantially as described and for the purpose set forth.

1,418,083. CONNECTING ROD. HEBRON B. LAYMAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Layman Pressed Rod Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 5, 1916. Serial No. 88,989. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—17.)



1. A multi-part connecting rod shell including a shank, an independent sheet metal member apertured to receive a wrist pin, and having a lining within said aperture and means connecting the lining with the shank, whereby the thrust of the wrist pin may be transmitted to the shank independent of the head member.

1,418,084. CONNECTING ROD. HEBRON BERNARD LAYMAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Layman Pressed Rod Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 7, 1916. Serial No. 135,603. 14 Claims. (Cl. 74—17.)

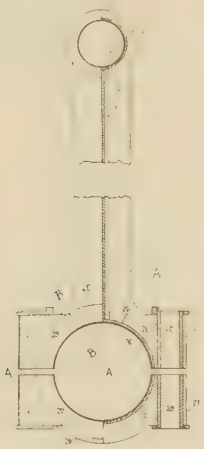


12. A connecting rod having a plurality of abutting parts, each of said parts having a shank portion and smaller and larger end portions, and inwardly extending cuff portions upon the said end portions, and a reinforcing member within the shank portion and abutting at its end against the aforesaid cuff portions to stiffen the shank portion and the junctions of the shank and end portions.

1,418,085. CONNECTING ROD. HEBRON BERNARD LAYMAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Layman Pressed Rod Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 3, 1917. Serial No. 159,398. 36 Claims. (Cl. 74—17.)

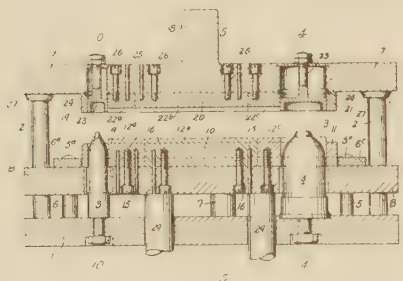
2. A connecting rod shell having an apertured end provided with a pin boss; said boss composed of flanged cuffs secured to the sides of the rod shell and around the aperture, and a liner bushing secured to and uniting the said flanged cuffs.

1,418,086. CONNECTING ROD. HEBRON BERNARD LAYMAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Layman Pressed Rod Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 12, 1917. Serial No. 161,399. 12 Claims. (Cl. 74—17.)



1. A connecting rod having a shell comprising a plurality of flat sheet metal plates, and means spacing and joining said plates at their end portions.

1,418,087. METHOD OF MANUFACTURING SHEET-METAL CONNECTING RODS. HEBRON B. LAYMAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to The Layman Pressed Rod Company, Inc., New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 11, 1918. Serial No. 228,004. 5 Claims. (Cl. 29—156.5.)



1. The method of forming a sheet metal connecting rod, link, lever or the like, embracing cutting out a blank to the desired form and involving a shank portion and end portions, cutting holes of the desired form in the said end portions, and providing bosses in the end portions by "spreading" the said holes.

1,418,088. BROOM FOR SWEEPERS. MOSES VOLNEY LIDDELL, Mattituck, N. Y., assignor to Austin Manufacturing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed May 27, 1920. Serial No. 384,527. 7 Claims. (Cl. 15—180.)

1. In a broom, a circular base having outwardly and downwardly presented flanges forming an outwardly presented annular seat, segmental splint carriers adapted to fit in said seats, and bolts located between opposed ends of splint carriers and drawing said splint carriers by their said ends into said seat.

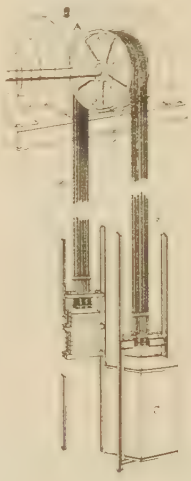
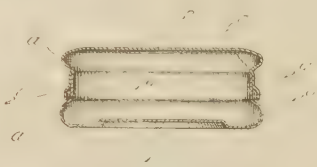
1,418,089. SPRING CABLE HITCH. DAVID L. LINDQUIST, Hartsdale, N. Y., assignor to Otis Elevator Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed June 18, 1919. Serial No. 305,142. 8 Claims. (Cl. 187—1.)



5. In a traction elevator, the combination of a grooved driving sheave, hoisting ropes for the car and counterweight in the grooves, the car and counterweight, hung from the ropes, and a multi-cored swivel plate, hooks securing the swivel plate to the car, and permitting rotation of the plate, the top weight of the counterweight being also multi-cored, rods in the cores in the plate and top weight of the counterweight, with their free ends threaded and projected below the plate and counterweight, one end of the rods secured to the ropes, and springs on the free ends of the rods beneath the plates and counterweight, and nuts beneath the springs threaded on the end of the rods, whereby the effective length of the leads of the ropes is equalized.

1,418,090. COVERED BOX. ALBERT J. MATTER, Merrimac, Mass., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Geo. J. Kelly, Inc., Lynn, Mass., a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Aug. 28, 1919. Serial No. 320,448. 1 Claim. (Cl. 220—24.)



A box comprising a body and cover fitting together as described, said cover having an expansion flare construction by which its fit upon the box-body may be loosened through pressure, said box-members provided with radially-projecting shields, respectively above and below the flare or flares.

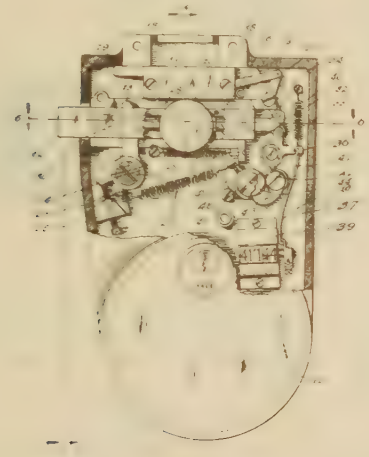
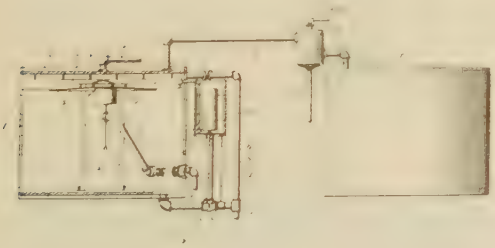
1,418,091. COIN-CONTROLLED LOCK. DONALD C. MORGAN, Indianapolis, Ind., assignor to American Sanitary Lock Co., Indianapolis, Ind., a Corporation of Indiana. Filed Oct. 29, 1920. Serial No. 420,338. 18 Claims. (Cl. 194—74.)



15. In a coin-controlled lock, the combination of a withdrawable bolt having a coin slot through it, and means arranged to cooperate with a coin in said coin slot for actuating the bolt, said means extending longitudinally of the slot and being of greater thickness than the coin slot and projecting out of the plane of the coin slot on either side thereof.

1,418,092. APPARATUS FOR WASHING OUT AND REFILLING BOILERS. SPENCER OTIS, Chicago, Ill., assignor to National Boiler Washing Company, Chicago, Ill., a Corporation of Maine. Filed May 15, 1919. Serial No. 297,220. 16 Claims. (Cl. 183—3.)

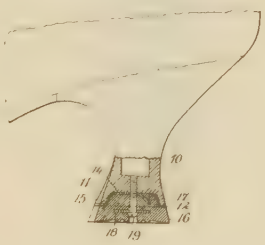


1. A boiler blow off and wash-out system comprising a tank having a single compartment in which it receives and separates steam, water and sludge, means delivering steam, water and sluge from locomotives, directly and collectively to said tank, means conveying away steam from the top of said tank, means conveying away sludge from the bottom of said tank, and means drawing off wash-out water from the upper portion of said tank below the water level therein.

1,418,093. GOLF-CLUB CARRIER. ROBERT S. PARMATER, Elkhart, Ind. Filed June 20, 1921. Serial No. 479,109. 8 Claims. (Cl. 150—1.5.)

1. In a portable golf club holder, in combination, a base element; an upright hollow frame element mounted on the base element; a ball chamber within said frame element; and a manually operative device for discharging a ball from said chamber.

1,418,094. SHOE HEEL. JOSEPH M. RANKO, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 31, 1921. Serial No. 457,175. 5 Claims. (Cl. 36—40.)



1. The combination with a heel body having a non-circular socket or recess in the under surface, of a lift having a top or backing plate having its peripheral edge substantially coinciding with the outer surface of the heel body and provided with a raised portion substantially fitting said recess, a composition layer secured to said plate, a stiffening plate smaller than said raised portion and spaced therefrom within said composition, said plates having central registering apertures, and an attaching screw extending into the heel body and having its head within the composition, below said stiffening plate.

1,418,095. HANDLE AND METHOD OF MAKING SAME. SOREN RINGER, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 25, 1920. Serial No. 391,845. 6 Claims. (Cl. 29—148.2.)

1. A handle, comprising a continuous tubular member having its ends bent to project in parallelism and at right angles to the plane of the face of the object to which the handle is adapted to be attached, and a wooden plug in each tubular end, the member being bent adjacent the inner end of each plug to hold the plug in position.

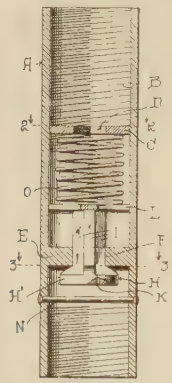
1,418,096. SAFETY VALVE FOR FLUID-PRESSURE PIPES. WILLIAM B. ROYER, Baltimore, Md., assignor of one-half to David E. Shriver, Baltimore, Md. Filed Aug. 11, 1919. Serial No. 316,671. 1 Claim. (Cl. 137—152.)



A safety device for fluid pressure conduits comprising a cylindrical casing having a constricted integral valve seat therein, a valve proportioned to seat in said valve seat and having a stem inserted therethrough axially of the casing, a spider carried rigidly by the stem upon the side of the seat opposite the valve and slidable with the extremities of its legs in contact with the interior of the casing, a spring bearing directly upon the spider, and a disk having a central passage bearing upon the spring opposite the spider and adjustable longitudinally of the casing.

1,418,097. MINERAL-OIL AND CARBOHYDROGEN-GAS EXTRACTING PROCESS. GOTTFRIED SCHNEIDERS, Berlin-Friedenau, Germany, assignor to Aktiengesellschaft "Eos," Glarus, Switzerland. Filed Sept. 2, 1919. Serial No. 321,275. 5 Claims. (Cl. 262—1.)

1. The process of extracting mineral oil and carbohydrogen gas from oil deposits which process consists in making a passage through the porous, bituminous and gaseous deposit with the aid of an air-dam that is shifted into the deposit and that, being air-tight, prevents dangerous gases and the oil from entering the passage, and in removing the gas and oil from the deposit by means arranged in a space separated from the gaseous deposit by the said air-dam.

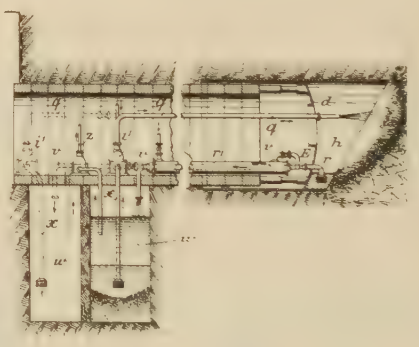
1,418,098. MINERAL-OIL AND CARBOHYDROGEN-GAS EXTRACTING PROCESS. GOTTFRIED SCHNEIDERS, Berlin-Friedenau, Germany, assignor to Aktiengesellschaft "Eos," Glarus, Switzerland. Original application filed Sept. 2, 1919, Serial No. 321,275. Divided and this application filed Aug. 15, 1921. Serial No. 492,486. 3 Claims. (Cl. 262—1.)



1. The process of removing oil-bearing sand from its deposit and of simultaneously subjecting it to an oil separating treatment consisting in dislodging the sand from its deposit by a jet of fluid so that by the action of the jet and by the friction set up between the grains of sand, said grains are freed of the bitumen which adheres to them.

1,418,099. MALTED MACHINE. SOLOMAN SIGAL, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed July 15, 1921. Serial No. 484,901. 9 Claims. (Cl. 259—135.)

1. A device of the class described, comprising a vertical shaft mounted for rotative and longitudinal movement, a paddle fixed thereto, a motor spring, a drive connection between said spring and shaft, and means connecting the spring and shaft whereby longitudinal downward movement of said shaft winds said spring.

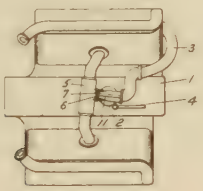
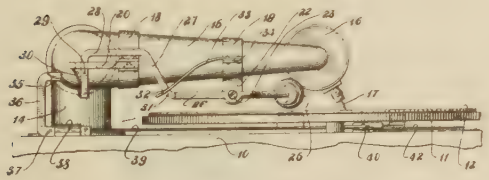
1,418,100. CARBURETOR. HOWARD B. SIMMONS, Toledo, Ohio. Filed Apr. 12, 1917. Serial No. 161,509. 18 Claims. (Cl. 123—55.)



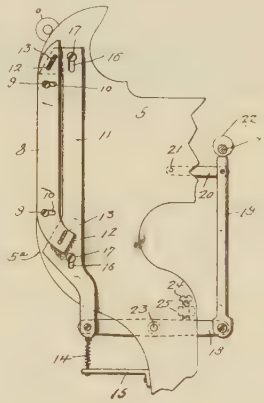
1. In a device of the class described, the combination with an intake manifold connected to both sides of a twin motor; of a carburetor connected to said manifold; a partition in said manifold opening for dividing the mixture of air and fuel from the carburetor and directing it to both sides of the motor; and means for supplying auxiliary air to the manfold opening on either side of said partition.

1,418,101. PHONOGRAPH ATTACHMENT. PETER SIMON, Elizabeth, N. J. Filed July 16, 1919. Serial No. 311,150. 2 Claims. (Cl. 274—15.)



1. A means for automatically returning the sound box and stylus of phonographs to inactive position, comprising a rubber roller, an arm secured to the tune arm of the phonograph carrying said roller, a guide provided with an opening and secured to said tune arm, a flat detent spring adapted to normally engage below the extreme end of said guide beyond the opening therein to hold one end of said arm in its lowered position and to raise its other end carrying said roller, and an adjustable bar adapted to engage said spring at the end of a record, for allowing it to move upwardly through the opening of said guide to lower said roller into engagement with the record plate at an angle thereto for returning the sound box and stylus into inactive position.

1,418,102. PRINTING-PRESS ATTACHMENT. GEORGE K. SINCLAIR, Louisville, Ky. Filed Oct. 8, 1921. Serial No. 506,415. 4 Claims. (Cl. 101—362.)

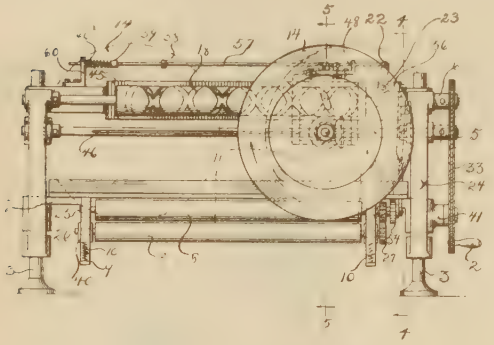


1. The combination with the bed of a printing press and the back-shaft of the press; of guide rails positioned alongside and parallel to the inking roller guide edges of the bed, and normally flush with said edges, supports on the bed for said rails, reciprocatory shifter bars carried by the bed, connections between the bars and the rails for projecting the latter from the guide edges, levers carried by the bed and connected to the shifter bars for operating the same, set screws carried by the bed and engageable with the levers, pitmen connected to the levers, and means on the back-shaft for operating the levers.

1,418,103. GLOVE. JOHN ANTHONY SMITH, Spokane, Wash., assignor to Thumthum Products, Inc., Spokane, Wash. Filed Apr. 9, 1918. Serial No. 227,436. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—9.)

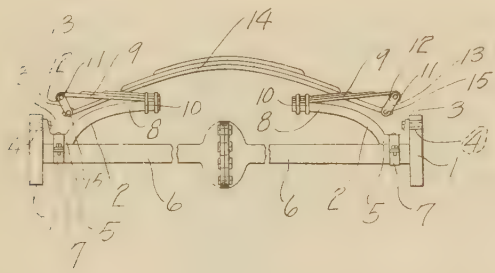
A glove having two thumbs, one on each side of the body of the glove, the two being oppositely disposed, and means for externally and positively fastening the thumb in a doubled position, such means comprising a fastener having a part secured to the outer surface of the inner end of the thumb and a co-operating part secured to the outer surface of the outer end of the thumb.

1,418,104. SLICING MACHINE. LOUIS SPISELMAN, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Nov. 14, 1921. Serial No. 514,891. 9 Claims. (Cl. 17—24.)



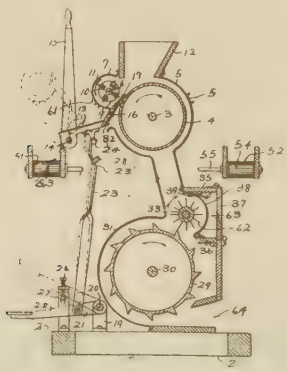
1. In a machine for slicing fish, means for engaging the skin of the said fish and feeding the same, and cutting means adapted to cut the flesh of the said fish into slices and means for operating the said cutting means, so that the skin of the said fish is substantially untouched.

1,418,105. SHOCK ABSORBER FOR AUTOMOBILES. THOMAS A. STUDDARD, Carbon Hill, Ala. Filed Jan. 7, 1922. Serial No. 527,534. 1 Claim. (Cl. 267—45.)



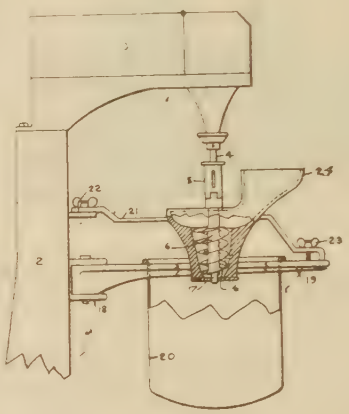
A shock absorber for automobiles, comprising a bifurcate, arcuate arm having a shank portion secured to the axle housing and flange; and leaf springs secured at their inner ends to the ends of the forks of the arm and having their outer ends swingingly connected to the end of the ordinary spring.

1,418,106. COTTON GIN. EDWARD R. TISCHER, Houston, Tex., assignor of forty per cent to Gus Emmert, Harris County, Tex. Filed Mar. 16, 1920. Serial No. 366,251. 10 Claims. (Cl. 13—7.)



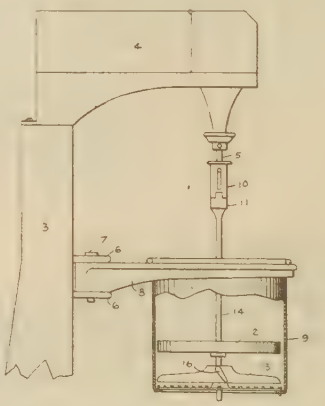
1. A cotton gin including a casing, a ginning roller rotatably mounted therein, a stripping roller arranged to cooperate with the ginning roller, loosely mounted fingers carried by the stripping roller, a shoe arranged in tangential relation to the ginning roller and provided to arrest seed cotton carried into contact with it by the ginning roller to permit the fingers of the stripping roller to operate against said cotton to strip the seed from the lint thereof.

1,418,107. FOOD MACHINE. JOSEPHINE TRUST and HENRY TRUST, Park Ridge, N. J., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Meteor Mixing Machine Co., Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 18, 1919. Serial No. 324,604. 1 Claim. (Cl. 17—20.)



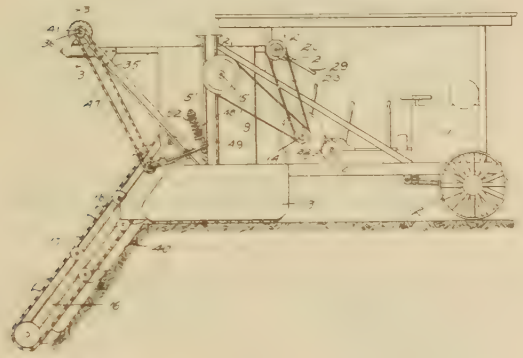
In a machine of the class described, power and transmission mechanism at the top thereof, and a tool spindle depending therefrom, a food machine beneath said spindle having a worm feed in axial alignment with said spindle, and a hopper at one side of said spindle for feeding said food machine, and in combination therewith a removable pail beneath said food machine, and brackets extending from said mechanism for retaining said food machine and pail in position.

1,418,108. FOOD MACHINE. JOSEPHINE TRUST and HENRY TRUST, Park Ridge, N. J., assignors, by mesne assignments, to Meteor Mixing Machine Co., Inc., a Corporation of New York. Filed Sept. 18, 1919. Serial No. 324,606. 1 Claim. (Cl. 146—9.)



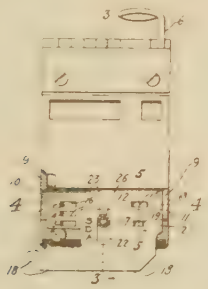
In a machine of the class described, a vertical spindle and means for detachably securing a tool shaft therein, means for retaining a receptacle beneath said spindle, means for immovably retaining a grater in the bottom of said receptacle, a feeder upon said spindle, a weight above said feeder for feeding material to said feeder, and said feeder having blades pitched at an angle so as to press material in the direction of said grater, and said grater adapted to provide bearing for said tool shaft.

1,418,109. DIGGING MACHINE. GEORGE A. VAUGHN and CHARLES E. STAHL, Newton, Iowa, assignors to The Parsons Company, Newton, Iowa. Filed July 16, 1921. Serial No. 485,279. 8 Claims. (Cl. 37—24.)



4. In a machine of the class described, the combination of a main frame, a boom pivotally supported at one end on said frame carrying digger devices arranged to travel in an endless path, an adjustable supporting element for said boom and a yielding device for yieldingly preventing upward swinging movement of said boom.

1,418,110. CALCULATING MACHINE. JOHN C. WAHL, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Remington Accounting Machine Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 19, 1921. Serial No. 462,621. 4 Claims. (Cl. 235—59.)



1. In a calculating machine, the combination of a carriage, a follower forming part of a totalizer-actuator control-mechanism, a carrier adjustable to different positions along the carriage, a plate carried by said carrier and having a cam co-operative with said follower during the travel of the carriage to automatically shift said follower, and means for affording an adjustment of said plate on its carrier to different set positions and for holding it in any of said positions, said means comprising a threaded stud secured to the carrier and passing freely through a slot with closed ends in said cam plate to permit an adjustment of the plate relatively to the stud but to limit the extent of such adjustment and prevent the plate from dropping from the stud and being accidentally detached from the machine, and a thumb screw on said stud to aid in holding the cam plate in its adjusted position.

1,418,111. CALCULATING MACHINE. JOHN C. WAHL, Chicago, Ill., assignor to Remington Accounting Machine Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Apr. 19, 1921. Serial No. 462,622. 12 Claims. (Cl. 235—59.)

8. In a calculating machine, the combination of a carriage, a follower forming part of a totalizer-actuator control mechanism, a carrier on said carriage, a cam adjustable on said carrier and co-operative with said follower, two adjusting levers operatively connected with said cam at different points in the length of the latter, and hand-controlled means for effecting the adjustment of said levers and including means for compelling them to move in unison.

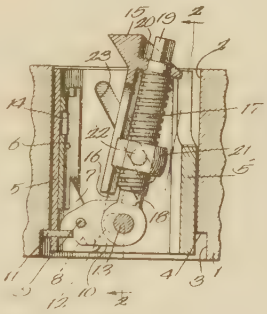
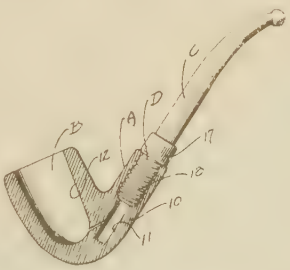
1,418,112. PRINTING-ELEMENT HOLDER. HERRIOTT S. WARNOCK, Chicago, Ill. Filed Nov. 3, 1921. Serial No. 512,419. 12 Claims. (Cl. 101—385.)



1. A printing element holder including a hollow carrier; a clamping jaw upon the carrier and having a stem within and in pivotal connection with the carrier; and mechanism serving to turn the jaw and having complemental elements in sliding engagement, one of these elements being upon the carrier and the other assembled with the clamping jaw.

1,418,113. PIPE, CIGAR, AND CIGARETTE HOLDER. JOHN WAWRICKA, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 8, 1920. Serial No. 364,229. 4 Claims. (Cl. 131—12.)



1. In an attachment for smoking appliances, a coupling for the tobacco holding portion thereof and a bit, said coupling including a socket for the reception of the bit, and a sleeve adapted to fit in the bore of a tobacco holding portion, said bore having a shoulder formed therein intermediate its ends, a smoke filter including a tubular casing arranged to fit in the sleeve of the coupling members, absorbent material arranged in the casing, crossed wires carried by one end of the casing and adapted to be detachably associated with the sleeve of the coupling, the outer end of the casing engaging said shoulder of said bore of the device when assembled in position to prevent accidental displacement thereof.

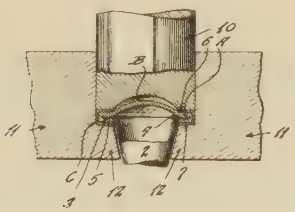
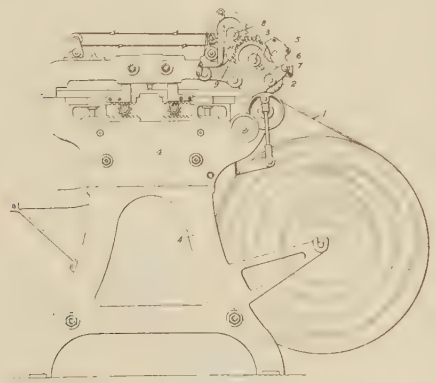
2. A new article of manufacture comprising a tubular casing, absorbent material arranged in the casing, and crossed wire members having the ends thereof inserted in one terminal of the casing.

1,418,114. METHOD OF SEALING CONTAINERS. FREDERICK WESTERBECK, St. Louis, Mo. Filed May 27, 1920. Serial No. 384,556. 4 Claims. (Cl. 113—116.)



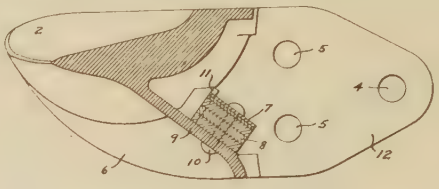
1. The method of sealing containers which includes forming each of said containers with a closure-receiving flange having a raw edge, placing a soft metal closure member on said closure-receiving flange, locating a relatively firm thrust-receiving ring on said soft metal closure member whereby a portion of said soft metal closure member is confined between said relatively firm thrust-receiving ring and the raw edge of said closure-receiving flange, and then expanding said closure-receiving flange to imbed its raw edge in said soft metal closure member.

1,418,115. PROCESS OF AND MACHINE FOR CUTTING SHEET MATERIAL. SETH WHEELER, Castleton, N. Y. Filed Mar. 6, 1918. Serial No. 220,758. 11 Claims. (Cl. 164—68.)



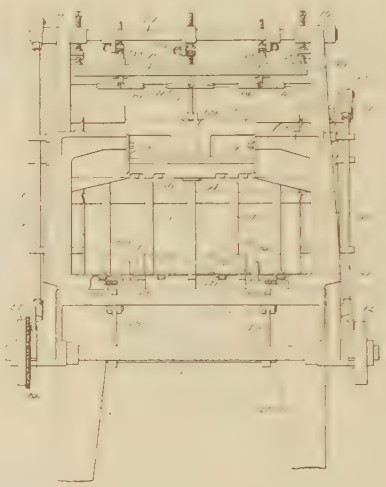
2. The method of cutting sheet material which comprises feeding forwardly a web of sheet material at a substantially uniform rate, piercing portions of the web by a cutter to at least partially sever the same, and then moving the cutter in the direction of the feed at a speed sufficiently greater than the rate of feed of the web to push forward the cut portion of the web and separate the same completely from the remainder of the web.

1,418,116. WATER WHEEL. WILLIAM MONROE WHITE, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Jan. 17, 1921. Serial No. 437,780. 14 Claims. (Cl. 253—136.)



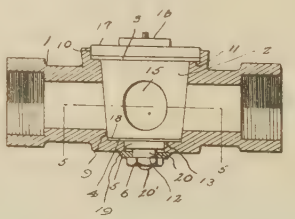
1. A water wheel bucket having a pocket formed to permit addition or removal of weights to balance the water wheel.

1,418,117. FEEDING DEVICE FOR SLITTERS. MAGNUS E. WIDELL, Maywood, Ill., assignor to American Can Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Sept. 13, 1919. Serial No. 323,556. 24 Claims. (Cl. 271—55.)



1. An automatic feed for a slitter for cutting metal sheets and between which the sheets are fed across a bed, comprising in combination a holder for a stack of sheets and sheet blanks, means for removing a sheet from said stack and depositing it by gravity into feeding position upon the bed, and a two motion feed automatically engaging said sheet and advancing it progressively into engagement with said cutter, and means for delivering sheets successively from said holder to an element of said two-motion feed and in a forward direction opposite to the rearward direction of feeding.

1,418,118. STOP COCK. CHARLES H. WISE, Oil City, Pa. Filed Jan. 8, 1921. Serial No. 435,885. 3 Claims. (Cl. 251—91.)



1. The herein described stop cock comprising a casing body having diametrically opposite ports and a taper bore extending at right angles to and between the ports and having an enlargement at one end and a reduced portion at its opposite ends, forming interior abutments, packing washers arranged in the bore and against said abutments, a taper plug arranged in the taper bore of the casing body and having a diametrical aperture in the same plane as said ports and also having a flange adjacent to one end and an angular portion at said end and further having a spindle and reduced portions thereon, one of the reduced portions being threaded, a metallic nut keyed on one reduced portion of the spindle and bearing against the casing body, and a nut mounted on the threaded portion of the spindle.

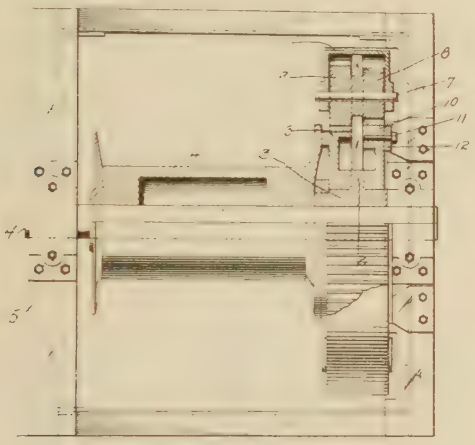
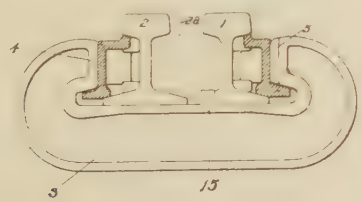
1,418,119. STUMP PULLER. KARL C. WOLCOTT, Florahome, Fla. Filed Mar. 25, 1920. Serial No. 368,593. 2 Claims. (Cl. 74—34.)



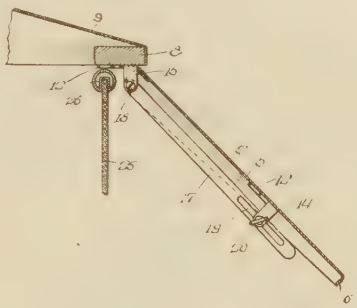
1. In a stump pulling device, a spoked driver adapted to receive power at its periphery, inwardly extending ears carried by the driver in juxtaposition to the spokes, a fixed gear on one side of the spokes and a revoluble drum on the other side of the spokes, the drum provided with gear teeth, planet pinions in pairs, each member of a pair integrally joined with the other member with a reduced diameter between the members of the pair, the pinions carried by the ears with the spokes extending into the channel made by the reduced portion, one of the pinions of each pair co-meshing with the fixed gear and the other of the pinions co-meshing with the teeth of the drum.

1,418,120. GUARD-RAIL CLAMP. EMIL CARL ZIMMERMAN, New York, N. Y., assignor to Q & C Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Maine. Filed Mar. 24, 1920. Serial No. 368,210. 2 Claims. (Cl. 238—21.)



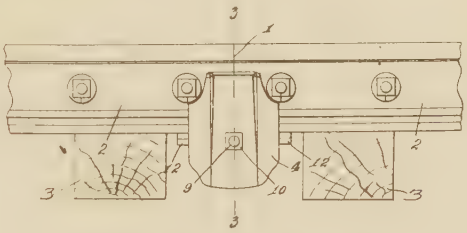
1. A rail clamp comprising a clamp bar or yoke member having inwardly directed end portions and a shoulder formed thereon upwardly projecting from its upper or rail engaging surface intermediate of said end portions, a wedge member formed with a rail engaging portion and an inclined wedging surface adapted to be interposed between one end of the yoke and a rail for clamping the rail against said shoulder and means for securing said wedge member in assembled position, said shoulder being of substantially the height of the rail base and non-projecting thereover, substantially as described.

1,418,121. STORM PROTECTOR FOR WINDSHIELDS OF AUTOMOBILES. JOSEPH RENÉ AYOTTE, Chicago, Ill. Filed Jan. 31, 1921. Serial No. 441,154. 1 Claim. (Cl. 296—95.)



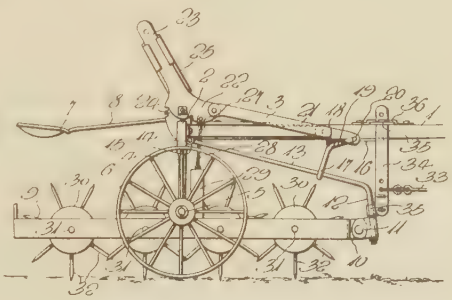
A windshield protector for automobiles, comprising a plate hinged at its top edge to the front cross bar of the automobile top; a bracket attached to said bar; a similar bracket attached to the underside near the lower edge of the plate; a rod pivoted in the upper bracket and slidable in the lower bracket and means to prevent the sliding engagement of the lower bracket and rod to hold the plate in adjusted inclined position.

1,418,122. RAIL CLAMP. DAVIS AMBROSE, Louisville, Ky. Filed Nov. 12, 1921. Serial No. 514,730. 3 Claims. (Cl. 238—191.)



1. In combination with the abutting ends of two railway rails and angle plates connecting the rails; of a clamp comprising two sections constructed to engage the angle plates arranged beneath the bottom of the rails, at the meeting ends of the said rails, means connecting the clamp sections below the rails, and spring influenced wedge members between the clamp sections and the bottom of the rails.

1,418,123. AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENT. ANDREW AXELTON, Graettinger, Iowa. Filed Dec. 22, 1921. Serial No. 524,214. 5 Claims. (Cl. 55—11.)



1. An agricultural machine comprising a main frame, an auxiliary frame beneath the main frame carrying earth working means, a stirrup carried by the main frame for vertical adjustment, a hanger bar pivotally connected with the main frame and extending forwardly through the stirrup and having its forward end connected with the auxiliary frame, actuating means for adjusting the stirrup, and holding the stirrup in an adjusted position with the hanger bar held at a desired incline, and suspending means connected with the stirrup actuating means and auxiliary frame intermediate the length of the auxiliary frame.

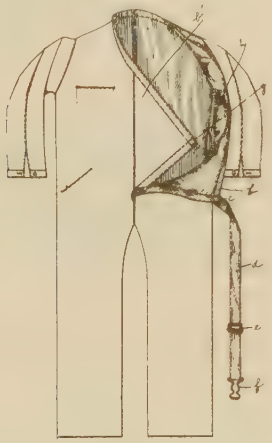
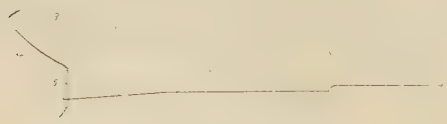
1,418,124. OVERALLS. SAMUEL BERKOWITZ, New York, N. Y., assignor to himself and Benjamin Lubliner, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Mar. 9, 1921. Serial No. 450,899. 2 Claims. (Cl. 2—144.)



1. In an overall or the like, the combination of two flaps located at the front of the garment, the said flaps comprising substantially the entire front of the body portion of the garment above the belt line thereof and having their bottoms below the said belt line and ending adjacent the crotch portion of the garment, the ends of said flaps being spaced from the sides of the garment when the garment is in a closed condition, one of said flaps having a belt provided with a fastening device, the side of the garment adjacent the end of the other flap being provided with a slit, the said other flap having complementary fastening means connected thereto, and adapted to be fastened to the first mentioned fastening means.

1,418,125. METAL-WORKING TOOL. WILLIAM P. CARROLL, Horton, Kans. Filed Aug. 26, 1921. Serial No. 495,474. 3 Claims. (Cl. 29—95.)



1. A metal working tool of the character described, comprising a body member provided at one end with an upwardly and forwardly projecting finger, and a cutting member at the forward end of said body member, said cutting member having two cutting edges spaced apart at its forward end.

1,418,126. TRANSMISSION MECHANISM. FRANK CARTLIDGE, Claremont, N. H., assignor to Sullivan Machinery Company, a Corporation of Massachusetts. Filed Apr. 18, 1918. Serial No. 229,389. 33 Claims. (Cl. 192—58.)

4. In a transmission mechanism, a rotatable driving member having an eccentric bore, a driven member carrying a blade and disposed therein, means for permitting an escape of fluid through said blade carrying member at will, and means for automatically pumping fluid to said blade carrying member through said driving member.

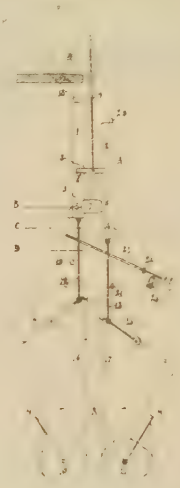
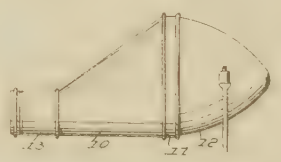
1,418,127. CONTROLLING DEVICE FOR SIGNALS HAVING SEVERAL POSITIONS. VITAL CESAR, Brussels, Belgium. Filed June 28, 1920. Serial No. 392,489. 4 Claims. (Cl. 246—489.)



1. A device to control a railway signal which can be moved to three different positions comprising an entrained part connected with the signal to be moved, two entraining parts moved by distinct levers, fixed stop pieces limiting the displacement of said two entraining parts and suitable connections effective alternately between said entraining parts and the entrained part, in such a manner that each of the entraining parts can, during part of its course, entrain the part connected with the signal, then continue its course after movement of said part has been stopped by connection with the other entraining part.

1,418,128. LAMP ATTACHMENT. AUGUSTUS A. COBB, Marion, Mass. Filed July 14, 1920. Serial No. 396,099. 1 Claim. (Cl. 240—48.4.)



A headlight dimmer attachment having a shell provided with means for attachment to the casing of an automobile headlight, and an outlet sleeve disposed at the forward end of the shell with its lower wall in the plane of the lower wall of the shell, the outlet sleeve being transversely elongated and the top wall of the shell being inclined downwardly and forwardly and merging with the upper wall of the sleeve.

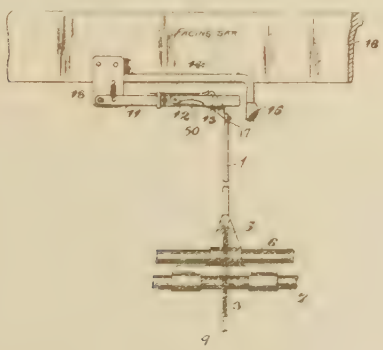
1,418,129. SELF-MEASURING VISIBLE LIQUID PUMP. DONLEY SAXTON COLLINS, Cedar Rapids, Iowa. Filed Jan. 3, 1920. Serial No. 349,224. 5 Claims. (Cl. 221—99.)

1. In a self measuring and dispensing device for liquids a pair of tanks having means to indicate the quantity of liquid therein, connections with controlling means for permitting supply of liquid to enter either of said tanks, connections for delivering the overflow from either tank to the other, and means associated with the said inlet means to permit the discharge of the contents of either or both of said tanks at will.

1,418,130. TWIST LACE MACHINE. WILLIAM COOMBES, Hyson Green, Nottingham, England. Filed Jan. 18, 1922. Serial No. 530,159. 12 Claims. (Cl. 96—20.)



1. In a twist lace machine, the combination with carriages and means for moving them backward and forward, of pivotally supported weft thread carriers, traversing means therefor, and means for deflecting the carriers upon their pivots while being traversed, whereby they may pass below the paths of movement of the carriages as the latter move backward and forward.

1,418,131. MOTIVE-POWER SYSTEM FOR AIRCRAFT. GLENN H. CURTISS, Garden City, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to Curtiss Aeroplane and Motor Corporation, Buffalo, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 11, 1919. Serial No. 303,502. 5 Claims. (Cl. 244—25.)

1. In a power apparatus for aeroplanes, the combination of an internal combustion engine, a throttle valve therefor, an air velocity device comprising a Pitot tube and a manometer tube, a reversible electric motor operatively connected with said throttle valve, and electrical energy supply connections leading through said device to said motor for the purpose set forth.

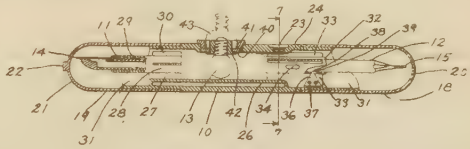
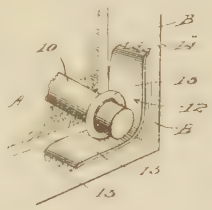
1,418,132. WRITING-LIGHTING DEVICE. JOHN JOSEPH DEVINE, Middletown, Conn. Filed Apr. 24, 1920. Serial No. 376,384. Renewed Apr. 4, 1922. Serial No. 549,471. 6 Claims. (Cl. 240—8.4.)



1. A writing-lighting device having a tubular body that is open at the ends, a writing device projecting from one of the said ends, and a lighting device located within the said body and positioned therein so as to permit the light therefrom to be projected laterally through both of the said open ends.

1,418,133. STAIR-ROD FASTENER. IRVIN W. DIEHL, Duluth, Minn. Filed May 2, 1919. Serial No. 294,134. 3 Claims. (Cl. 16—141.)



3. In a stair carpet fastening device, the combination with a confining rod, of a pair of fastener elements for said rod each including a spring plate of inherent resiliency to normally maintain the same in flat manner, said plate having a series of sharpened teeth upon each extreme end thereof outturned toward one side of said plate, and a rod retaining ring swivelly connected to the opposite side of said plate in order that the same may rotate around an axis transversely of the plane defined by said plate, said plates being of such resiliency as to permit their attachment in the angle formed by the tread and riser of a stair way, to have the rings thereof mounted for swivelling extending outwardly adjacent the angle formed by said tread and riser, so that said rings may be adjusted into alignment to receive said confining rod.

1,418,134. WHEEL CARRIER. EMIL R. DRAVER, Richmond, Ind. Filed Dec. 31, 1917. Serial No. 209,763. 5 Claims. (Cl. 296—37.)

1. The combination with an automobile body, of a carrying receptacle for extra wheels or rims, comprising a back plate incorporated as a rigid part of said body, the lower portion thereof being projected below said body, a cover plate detachably applied to said back plate with its lower portion also projecting below the bottom of said automobile body, and a cover securing device applied to the central portions of said back plate and cover, that portion of said back plate that is below said securing device being detachable from said body.

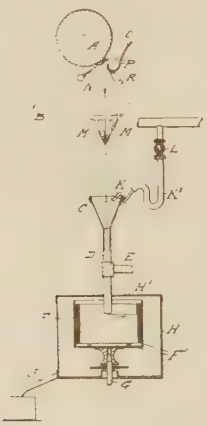
1,418,135. MANUFACTURE OF VISCOSE SOLUTIONS. WILLIAM PORTER DREAPER, London, England. Filed Nov. 14, 1921. Serial No. 515,157. 4 Claims. (Cl. 260—100.)

1. The preparation of a xanthate solution by first removing air from a cellulose mass, treating the cellulose mass from which air has been removed with a caustic alkali solution at a temperature of below five degrees and afterwards treating it with carbon disulphide.

1,418,136. MANUFACTURE OF ARTIFICIAL THREADS OR FILAMENTS. WILLIAM PORTER DREAPER, London, England. Filed Nov. 15, 1921. Serial No. 515,378. 15 Claims. (Cl. 18—54.)



1. A process of spinning precipitated artificial threads, filaments and the like, consisting in that the product of precipitation is subjected to the action of a constantly flowing stream of liquid as it is guided into a receptacle under the action of centrifugal force exerted thereon in such receptacle.

1,418,137. MOLD. WARREN D. DRUSE, Kahoka, Mo. Filed June 14, 1920. Serial No. 388,914. 1 Claim. (Cl. 18—18.)

A device of the class described comprising annular members having heating chambers, the said members including curved walls which cooperate to define a cavity for the reception of a tire casing, the curved walls and the inner walls of the annular members defining relatively sharp edges adapted to be engaged in the grooves between the body of a tire casing and the beads thereof, thereby to hold the casing positively in such a position that the beads of the tire casing will be disposed in the central opening of the annular members and out of alinement with the heating chambers.

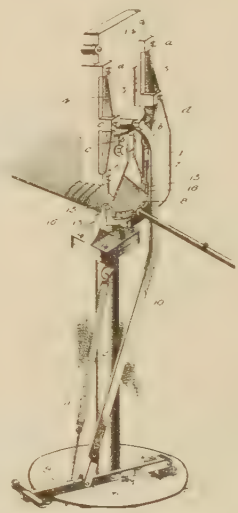
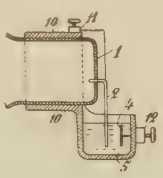
1,418,138. BROOM TRIMMER. GEORGE W. DUVALL and NORMAN H. BEEBE, Davenport, Iowa, assignors to Modern Broom Machinery Company, Davenport, Iowa, a Corporation of Iowa. Filed Aug. 28, 1918. Serial No. 251,815. 3 Claims. (Cl. 300—17.)



1. The combination with a main frame having a form thereon upon which the broom is adapted to rest, the form flanked by vertically extending lugs, said lugs having vertical grooves at their inner edges, of a head, knives adjustably connected therewith in position to trim the broom to conform substantially with the shape of the form, with their outer edges in position to move vertically in the grooves of the lugs, and means for reciprocating the head.

1,418,139. APPLIANCE FOR REGULATING THE HARDNESS OF RÖNTGEN-RAY TUBES. HJALMAR FREDERIK EIKEN, Skorping, Denmark. Filed Jan. 15, 1920. Serial No. 351,698. 1 Claim. (Cl. 250—35.)



A device for controlling the vacuum in a Röntgen-tube comprising an electrolyte-container having a tubular extension embracing the Röntgen-tube, and an electrode communicating with said tube and extending into said container, the gas liberated from the electrolyte being conducted through said electrode.

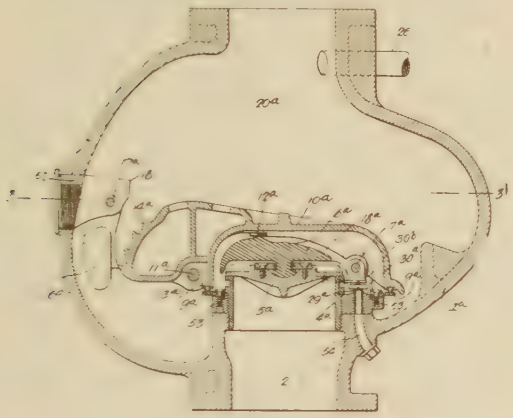
1,418,140. DIFFERENTIAL DRY-PIPE VALVE. POWELL EVANS, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Globe Automatic Sprinkler Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Nov. 7, 1919. Serial No. 336,462. 9 Claims. (Cl. 169—22.)



1. An accelerator consisting of a casing having an inlet and an outlet and provided with a closed chamber connected to receive fluid under pressure from the inlet; a normally closed valve between said inlet and outlet; with a member movable under the action of the fluid under pressure in said chamber for opening the valve when the pressure in the inlet falls to a predetermined point.

1,418,141. TRAFFIC SIGNAL. GEORGE W. EWING, Cincinnati, Ohio. Filed May 9, 1921. Serial No. 468,076. 1 Claim. (Cl. 116—47.)

A vehicle signal comprising an elongated rod, brackets to mount said rod for free rotation at one side of a vehicle with its ends projecting beyond the front and the rear of the vehicle body, signal members disposed to operate respectively in the front and rear of the vehicle, brackets to which said signal members are attached, said signal members and last mentioned brackets due to their weight adapted to normally hang vertically and angularly disposed portions on the second mentioned brackets attachable to said rod.

1,418,142. LUBRICATING-OIL DISPENSER. ALFRED R. FENAES and WILLIAM H. KENNEDY, Houston, Tex. Filed Sept. 12, 1921. Serial No. 499,881. 7 Claims. (Cl. 221—67.)

1. An oil dispensing device including a tubular container, a reservoir, a tube leading from the reservoir and entering the bottom of the container and communicating also with the top thereof, and means controlling the flow of fluid through said tube, said means including a valve seat in the tube, a valve arranged to seat thereon, a float chamber underneath said seat and a float connected to the valve and located in said chamber.

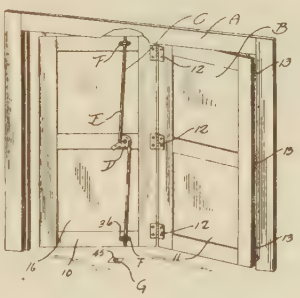
1,418,143. DOOR BOLT. PETER H. FERRIER, Jr., Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 23, 1921. Serial No. 447,057. 5 Claims. (Cl. 292—6.)



1. In a door bolt, the combination with a door, of a bolt member provided with a slot extending inwardly upon the longitudinal center thereof, a crank disc centrally pivoted upon said door, said bolt eccentrically pivoted upon said disc in said slot, whereby said bolt will be advanced or retracted upon oscillation of said disc, and a rocking guide member for said bolt.

1,418,144. REVERSIBLE SIGN. CHARLES A. FETTERS, Washington, D. C. Filed Aug. 29, 1921. Serial No. 496,366. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—128.)

A sign comprising a plurality of sign sections, said sections being connected together by pivotally connected U-shaped members, the pivotal points of the U-shaped members being in vertical alignment with each other and located substantially centrally of the sign section, lugs and depressions carried by the pivotally connected U-shaped members, said lugs and depressions forming means whereby the sign sections will be maintained in the same vertical plane after a pivotal action of any of the sign sections.

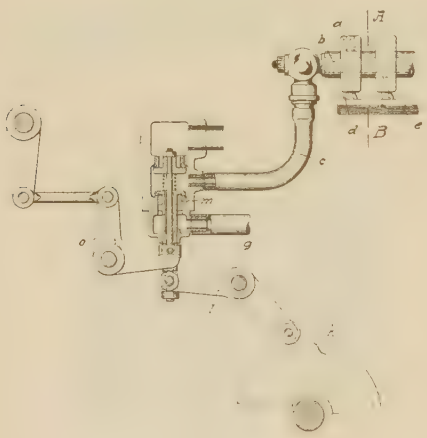
1,418,145. SHEET-FEEDING DEVICE FOR HIGH-SPEED PRINTING PRESSES. JOHANN FISCHER, Augsburg, Germany. Filed Jan. 14, 1922. Serial No. 529,267. 3 Claims. (Cl. 271—26.)



1. In a vacuum feeding device for high speed printing presses including suction and pressure conduits, means for periodically admitting compressed air into the suction conduit for the purpose of effecting a rapid deposit of the sheet from the suction head onto the conveyer device.

1,418,146. BOTTLE FILLING AND CAPPING MACHINE. EARL C. FOGLE, Elkton, Va., assignor of one-third to Edward C. Martz and one-third to John W. Morrison, both of Harrisonburg, Va. Filed Apr. 22, 1920. Serial No. 375,801. 21 Claims. (Cl. 226—77.)

1. A bottle filling and capping machine comprising a supporting frame, stationary tables mounted in said supporting frame, a vertically movable table beneath said stationary tables, a rocker frame movable longitudinally above said stationary tables, fluid gages arranged in pairs in said stationary tables, gages of one stationary table serving to only partially fill bottles brought into engagement therewith, the gages carried by the remaining stationary table serving to complete the filling operation, means for conveying bottles across said vertically movable table, a main operating shaft, means controlled by said main operating shaft to raise said vertically movable table to bring certain of the bottles upon said vertically movable table into engagement with the two sets of fluid gages, means controlled by said main operating shaft to operate said rocker frame, and means to supply a cap for each bottle at the completion of the filling operation thereof.

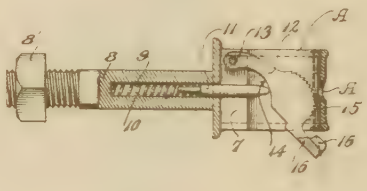
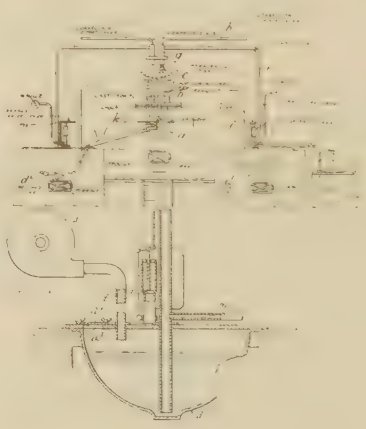
1,418,147. REIN HOLDER. OLIVER G. GILBERTSON, Osage, Iowa. Filed Mar. 15, 1921. Serial No. 452,622. 4 Claims. (Cl. 280—184.)



1. In a rein holder, a body member having a strap receiving portion, a strap engaging member swingingly supported thereon, and a yielding plunger mounted at one side of the swinging member and normally impinging the latter to hold it in strap engaging position.

1,418,148. REFINING OF LEAD. HENRY HARRIS, London, England. Filed Jan. 29, 1920. Serial No. 354,852. 3 Claims. (Cl. 266—34.)



1. An apparatus for refining metals, comprising a heated pot adapted to contain the molten metal, a vertical open-ended cylinder adapted to contain a molten reagent and having its lower end beneath the surface of the molten metal in the pot, a distributor at the upper part of the cylinder, and a device for charging the distributor with the molten metal.

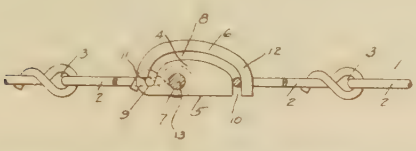
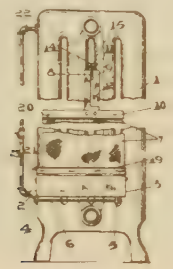
1,418,149. TIRE-CHAIN FASTENER. JOEL W. HUBBLE, Jacksonville, Ill. Filed Nov. 17, 1919. Serial No. 338,514. 1 Claim. (Cl. 24—69.)



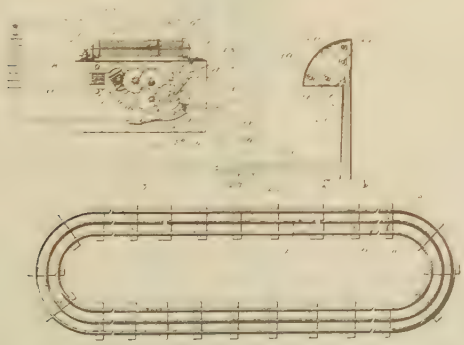
In a tire chain fastener, in combination, an elongated body having one straight edge, a fastener opening to receive a connecting element for one end of a chain, said opening located eccentrically to the ends of the body, and a cam shaped slot in said body, said slot opening out of said straight edge and terminating in the body at a point in proximity to said fastener opening.

1,418,150. HUMIDIFYING ATTACHMENT FOR RADIATORS. PHILIP T. JACKSON, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed Jan. 10, 1920. Serial No. 350,609. 9 Claims. (Cl. 237—78.)



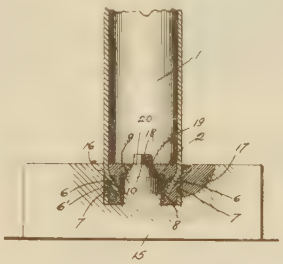
3. The combination with a sectional radiator of a humidifying device comprising a water duct; a narrow and relatively high trough communicating at one end with the duct; a sheet of absorbent material having its lower part lying in said trough and its upper part extending above the same to form an evaporating surface, the side walls of the trough extending above one end to permit of the sheets of absorbent material being introduced between the side walls from said end.

1,418,151. TOY ELECTRIC RAILWAY. HARRY E. LINDIG, Sunbury, Pa. Filed Feb. 18, 1922. Serial No. 537,615. 6 Claims. (Cl. 104—153.)



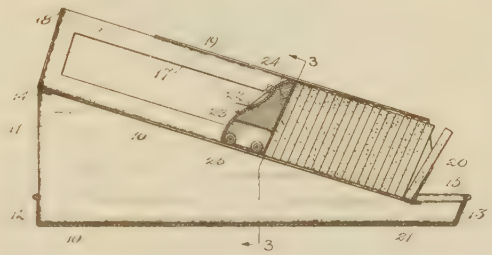
1. In a toy electric railway, an endless track, a third rail parallel with the track and having an insulated section, a current source connected to the track and third rail, and a motor driven switch adapted to alternately connect said insulated section with and disconnect said section from the power source.

1,418,152. CAST-METAL END FOR CONVEYER ROLLERS. ROBERT SMITH LOGAN, Louisville, Ky., assignor to Dow Wire & Iron Works, Louisville, Ky., a Corporation of Kentucky. Filed Oct. 11, 1920. Serial No. 416,280. 9 Claims. (Cl. 64—17.)



1. A conveyer roller including a tubular body provided near each end thereof with a plurality of openings transversely through the wall of the roller, a cast metal end in each end portion of the roller, each cast metal end including lugs entering the said openings in the roller, and a central metal bushing in each cast metal end for the reception of a bearing.

1,418,153. BREAD SERVER. CHARLES LORBER, Louisville, Ky. Filed Jan. 6, 1922. Serial No. 527,359. 3 Claims. (Cl. 211—29.)



3. In a device of the kind described, a bread container having a forwardly inclined front wall extending from the bottom towards the top and the said container being open in the front above said front wall, means to support the container in an inclined position with the front lower than the rear, and means within the container for urging sliced bread to the front thereof, said last mentioned means comprising a follower movable longitudinally of the container, balls rotatably mounted in the bottom of the follower and resting on the bottom of the container and a weight disposed in the lower part of said follower.

1,418,154. FRONT TRUCK FOR STREET-SWEEPING MACHINES. CHARLES WALTER LUND, Willows, Calif. Original application filed Apr. 11, 1919, Serial No. 289,326. Divided and this application filed Mar. 10, 1921. Serial No. 451,150. 5 Claims. (Cl. 280—124.)

1. In a truck, front and rear fixed brackets each including a base and parallel vertical side bars rising therefrom, a pair of parallel horizontal bars extending between said brackets and contacting with the inner sides of said side bars, a wheel mounted between said horizontal bars, the latter being pivoted to the side bars of one of said

brackets, a transverse bar connecting the ends of said horizontal bars in the other bracket, a bolt rising from the base of said other bracket through an opening in said transverse bar, said bolt having an abutment spaced above said transverse bar, and a coiled spring interposed between said abutment and said transverse bar.

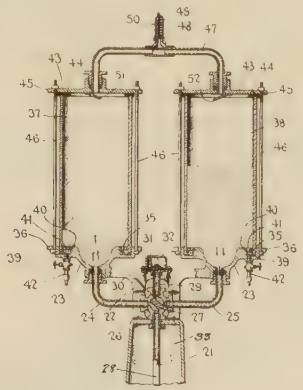
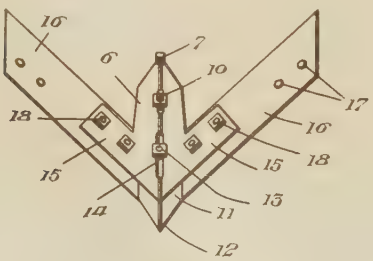
1,418,155. SEALED JOINT FOR LIQUID RECEPTACLES. JOHN C. MCKALLIP, Houston, Tex. Filed May 4, 1917, Serial No. 166,437. Renewed Mar. 4, 1920. Serial No. 363,284. 7 Claims. (Cl. 285—45.)



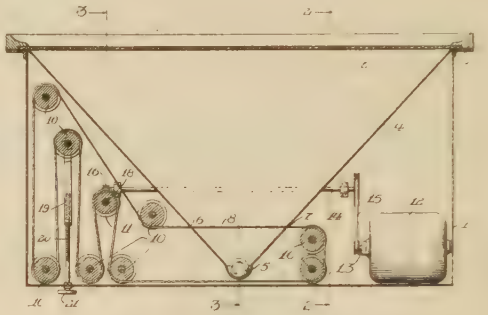
7. In a measuring device for gasoline, comprising base plates having annular grooves and gaskets at the bottom thereof, open ended cylindrical glass vessels engaging with their end edges in said grooves, the edges of said vessels being seated upon said gaskets, packing rings between the sides of said grooves and said vessels, and means for soaking said packing rings with water.

1,418,156. PLOW. RICHARD MARLOW, Ralph, Ala. Filed Sept. 25, 1920. Serial No. 412,718. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—9.)



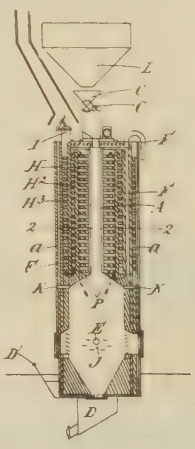
A plow comprising a frog having extensions near its forward end extending toward the opposite sides, said frog having a ridge between said extensions, a point piece bearing on the frog over said ridge, said point piece having its opposite ends pointed and being adapted to be reversed end for end, a clamping bolt extending through said point piece midway between the ends thereof for clamping said piece on the frog, the frog having a longitudinal slot at said ridge receiving said bolt, a pair of wings each in the shape of a parallelogram having adjacent ends overlapping said extensions, and bolts for removably clamping the end portions of said wings on said extensions, said wings having apertures near their opposite ends for the engagement of the last named bolts and the wings being reversible end for end for attachment on said extensions, the adjacent ends of the wings abutting the side edges of said point piece with said point piece and wings flush with one another.

1,418,157. ADVERTISING DEVICE. ALFRED O. MICKELSON, Chicago, Ill. Filed Feb. 12, 1921. Serial No. 444,411. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—32.)



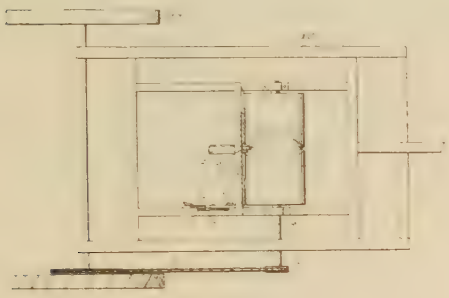
An advertising device comprising a pyramidal reflector, an electric bulb at the apex of said reflector, said reflector having slots in two of its opposite side walls reaching from the top to the bottom of the reflector, an endless tape passing through the slots and of a width substantially equal to the lengths and means for moving the tape.

1,418,158. GAS GENERATOR. SAMUEL MOORE, Scunthorpe, England. Filed Dec. 7, 1921. Serial No. 520,670. 5 Claims. (Cl. 48—71.)



4. In gas generating apparatus of the class described, a retort, a regenerating chamber surrounding said retort, a decomposing chamber beneath said retort, air and steam inlets at the base of the decomposing chamber, and air and steam inlets at the top of said regenerating chamber for alternating up and down runs.

1,418,159. COTTON CHOPPER. JAMES T. ODELL, Birmingham, Ala. Filed Aug. 22, 1919. Serial No. 319,268. 3 Claims. (Cl. 97—45.)

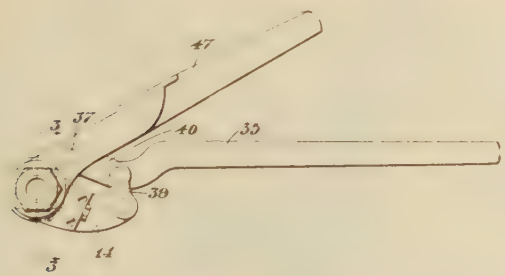


1. A cotton chopper having a rotary drum provided with a cam groove, a hoe having its stem universally mounted and provided at an intermediate point with a guide pin carrying a roller engaging with the groove of said drum, and movable means for guiding said stem in a path parallel with the axis of the drum.

1,418,160. BUILDING BLOCK. FRED PATEE, Casper, Wyo. Filed June 21, 1920. Serial No. 390,331. 2 Claims. (Cl. 106—24.)

1. A building block composed of asbestos aggregate between 5 and 7 parts; Portland cement 1 part; hydrated lime between 10 and 20 per cent of the weight of the cement, the same being mixed with a suitable quantity of water.

1,418,161. WRENCH. FRED FORREST PEASE, East Braintree, Mass. Filed June 2, 1920. Serial No. 386,130. 10 Claims. (Cl. 81—60.)



2. A wrench comprising a hub, a brace member journaled on the hub, an actuator member, a clutch connecting the actuator member and hub, a toggle connected with the actuator member, and means for operating the toggle to turn the actuator member.

1,418,162. FABRIC-MEASURING CHART AND ROLLER THEREFOR. JOHANNES T. PEDERSEN, Flushing, N. Y., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Measuregraph Company, a Corporation of Missouri. Filed Dec. 27, 1919. Serial No. 347,867. 4 Claims. (Cl. 40—86.)

1. In a fabric measuring and cost computing machine, the combination of a casing having a reading point, a measuring roller, a take-up roller driven by the measuring roller and having a chart with rows of computed figures attached thereto, and a shim wrapped between the roller and the chart, the shim being of a predetermined length operating to bring the rows of computed figures into alignment with the reading point to correspond with the length actually measured by the measuring roller.

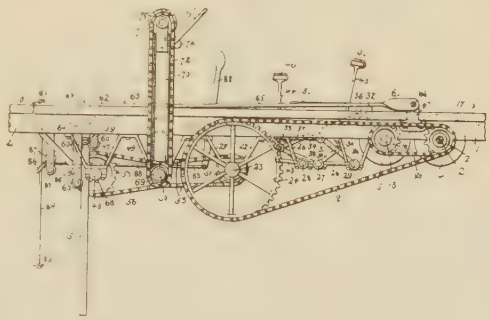
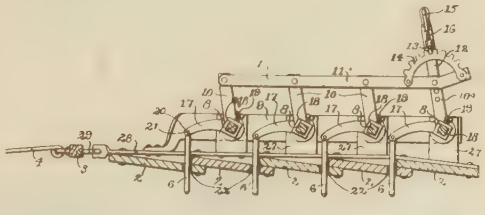
1,418,163. TRUCK AND DUMP WAGON. WILLARD A. PETTEYS, Wilcox, Nebr. Filed Oct. 12, 1920. Serial No. 416,338. 7 Claims. (Cl. 214—49.)



1. In an apparatus of the class described, a supporting body having openings to receive the rear wheels of a motor driven vehicle, a platform to receive the forward wheels of a motor driven vehicle, rotatable drums disposed in position to be engaged by the rear wheels of the motor driven vehicle when they drop through the body openings and rotatable thereby, means for elevating said platform to dispose the vehicle in discharging position, means for causing the motion of the drums to be transmitted to the platform elevating means, a yoke device swingingly supported, a chock device swinging from said yoke device and adapted to be disposed over one of said rollers, a shaft having an arm extending therefrom, a link coupling said arm to said yoke device, and means for oscillating said shaft.

1,418,164. CULTIVATOR. HERBERT H. PIPER, Jackson, Mo., assignor of one-half to Eliza C. Piper, Jackson, Mo., and one-half to John A. Withers, Cape Girardeau, Mo. Filed Aug. 2, 1920. Serial No. 400,591. 7 Claims. (Cl. 55—23.)



1. In a cultivator, the combination of a deck having means for drawing the same along the ground, and having a plurality of openings therethrough, a flexible frame having a plurality of swivel bars rotatably supported above the deck and including means for connecting the swivel bars to rotate the same in unison on their axes, a plurality of arms carried by the swivel bars and extending substantially horizontally therefrom, a plurality of teeth having joints connecting the same to the arms at points substantially in vertical alignment with the openings respectively and extending downwardly in a substantially vertical direction through the openings, means for rotating the swivel bars in unison to raise or lower the teeth with respect to the deck, and means carried solely by the flexible frame and independent of the deck for locking the flexible frame in a plurality of different positions.

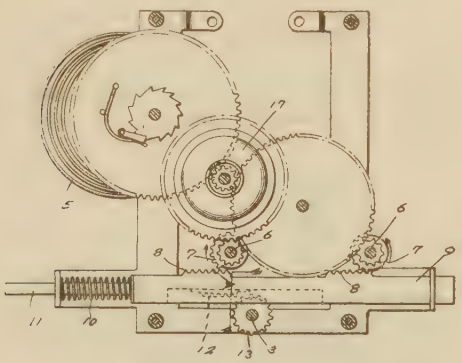
1,418,165. FAN. ISIDORE J. PONSTEIN, New Orleans, La. Filed Aug. 24, 1920. Serial No. 405,727. 1 Claim. (Cl. 230—1.)

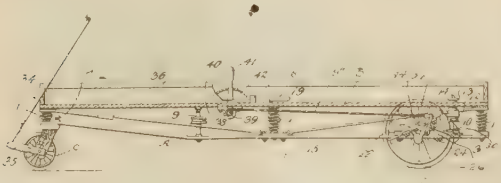


An apparatus of the character described comprising a base, a hollow stem provided thereon, a motor arranged in said base, a fan shaft passed through said stem, a reciprocating member in the base, a pinion provided on the fan shaft, a rack on the reciprocating member engaging said member, a fan connected with the shaft and means for causing the motor to reciprocate said member, said means consisting of a pair of shafts driven in opposite directions by the motor, mutilated pinions provided on said shafts and racks engaged by said pinions, spring means for resisting the movement of said reciprocating member.

1,418,166. VULCANIZATION OF RUBBER AND OTHER LIKE SUBSTANCES. BENJAMIN DAWSON PORRITT, Edinburgh, Scotland, assignor to The North British Rubber Company, Limited, Edinburgh, Scotland. Filed Mar. 7, 1919. Serial No. 281,202. 6 Claims. (Cl. 18—53.)

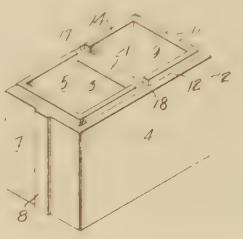
1. The method of accelerating vulcanization which consists in adding to the mixture to be vulcanized an anhydrous compound resulting from the interaction of strong alkali with the nuclear monohydroxy derivatives of benzene in which the hydrogen of the hydroxyl group is replaced by the radicle.

1,418,167. BRAKE MEANS. WILLIAM K. PORTER, Pittsburgh, Pa. Original application filed June 30, 1920, Serial No. 392,984. Divided and this application filed Apr. 5, 1921. Serial No. 459,011. 9 Claims. (Cl. 188—8.)



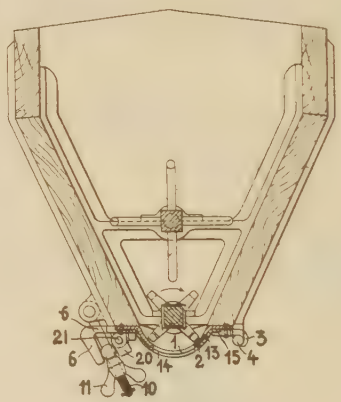
1. In a convertible sled and wheeled vehicle including a main frame and interchangeable sled runners and wheels, brake operating means mounted upon said main frame, and sled and wheel brakes adapted to be interchangeably connected to the brake operating means.

1,418,168. BUILDING BLOCK. EDWIN PRESTON, Oakland, Calif. Filed Aug. 2, 1920. Serial No. 400,581. 1 Claim. (Cl. 72—41.)



A hollow building block comprising end and side walls having top and bottom faces, a web parallel to and of the same thickness as said end walls arranged to connect said side walls together whereby a pair of transversely aligned openings are formed in said block, a substantially continuous shoulder formed along each of the upper edges of said openings except the edge defined by said web, the terminating faces of said shoulders being parallel to and in the plane of the adjacent face of said web, and a continuous shoulder extending along the bottom edges of said block spaced from the inner sides of said openings and having its lower face flush with the bottom of said web.

1,418,169. FERTILIZER-DISTRIBUTING MACHINE. WILHELM PRINTZ, Kettwig-Ruhr, Germany. Filed Dec. 12, 1921. Serial No. 522,154. 3 Claims. (Cl. 221—118.)



1. In a machine for distributing fertilizer, a box for receiving the fertilizer, a slotted bottom hinged on said box, a slotted gate cooperating with said bottom, means for securing said bottom to said box in operative position, means embodying a pivoted angular member for securing said gate to said bottom in operative position, said bottom securing means in its operative position engaging one leg of said angular piece to cause the other leg of said angular piece to support said gate.

1,418,170. EYEGLASS TEMPLE HOLDER. FRED RADCLIFFE, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed Oct. 6, 1921. Serial No. 505,781. 2 Claims. (Cl. 88—53.)

1. A joint clip for spectacles having a means for attachment to the temple, and a spring carried by said clip for yieldingly holding the temple in a position perpendicular to the lens frame, the clip having parallel leaves arranged at opposite sides of the plane of the temple and knuckle and being slotted longitudinally adjacent to the latter.

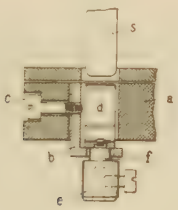
1,418,171. PLUG AND SOCKET CONTACT. BRUNO RAETTIG, Cologne-Lindenthal, Germany. Filed Sept. 17, 1921. Serial No. 501,422. 4 Claims. (Cl. 173—332.)



1. In an electrical connector, a contact member, an insulating support for said contact member formed with an opening to permit of limited angular movement of said contact in said support, an L-shaped carrier supported within said opening with one of its arms disposed transversely to the axis of said opening, said arm being apertured, a terminal member formed with a neck screw-threadedly engaging said contact, said neck passing loosely through said aperture for displaceably supporting said contact member.

1,418,172. COATING FOR THE PRESERVATION OF WOOD, PASTEBOARD, MASONRY, LEATHER, SHEET IRON, ETC. EUGEN RECK, Charlottenburg, Germany, assignor to Freeses Patent Eisenschutz und Schraubenwellenbekleidung für Schiffe G. m. b. H., Charlottenburg, Germany. Filed Jan. 6, 1921. Serial No. 435,564. 10 Claims. (Cl. 134—42.)

7. An improved coating for the preservation of wood, pasteboard, masonry, leather, sheet iron, fabric, and the like, composed of minium with one-half of the quantity thereof of wood-tar mixed together with a diluting liquid.

1,418,173. SPRING TOOTH FOR CULTIVATORS. ARTHUR W. REYNOLDS, Newtown, Conn. Filed Dec. 8, 1920. Serial No. 429,057. 8 Claims. (Cl. 55—97.)

1. A spring tooth of the character described, comprising a pair of reversible plates adapted to be clamped to opposite sides of a bar and each having a vertically arranged groove, said grooves being arranged at some point other than the longitudinal centers of the plates, and a pair of separable springs carried in said grooves and supported from said bar, said plates with grooves constituting means for securing the pair of springs to said bar either side by side or one forward of the other.

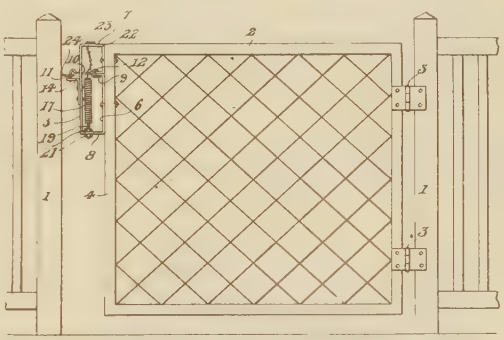
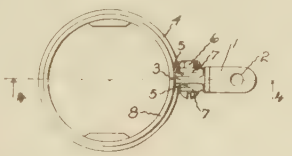
1,418,174. GATE LATCH. STEPHEN A. RZATKIEWICZ, Milwaukee, Wis. Filed Aug. 4, 1921. Serial No. 489,768. 4 Claims. (Cl. 292—125.)



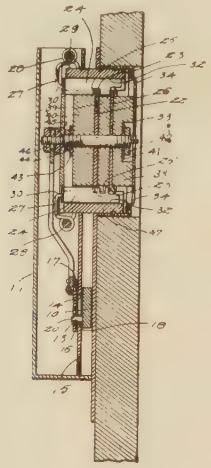
1. A gate lock comprising a frame formed of a strap bent into rectangular formation with the adjacent ends of the strap directed inwardly, a hook pivoted to the adjacent ends of the strap and having the bill end thereof projecting through the opposite side of the frame strap, a spring extending between said hook and the bottom of the frame, a guard plate secured to the outer side of the frame and having an opening therein to receive the extreme end of the hook bill, and an eye bolt receiving said hook at a point above the guard plate.

1,418,175. TIMING MECHANISM. WOLFGANG E. SCHWARZMANN, Longmeadow, Mass., assignor to American Bosch Magneto Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 11, 1920. Serial No. 430,015. 6 Claims. (Cl. 200—25.)



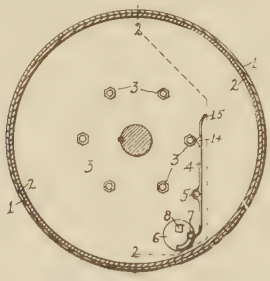
3. In a timing device for magnetos comprising an interrupter housing having a cam ring, the combination of an annular band parted along a radius thereof and having radially extending portions at the parting thereof, a timing arm having a tongue between said portions and means for securing said portions to said tongue and for tightening said band about said ring.

1,418,176. COMBINATION LOCK. LENARD EARL SHEETS, Campo, Colo. Filed July 1, 1920. Serial No. 393,267. 5 Claims. (Cl. 70—54.)



1. A lock having a bolt actuating spindle carrying a peripherally notched disc, a concentric series of tumblers movable in parallelism with the axis of the disc and provided with seats or notches for respective registration with the disc, springs respectively and detachably engaged with said tumblers for yieldingly holding them in their normal position, certain of the tumblers having their seats or notches normally out of registration with the disc, and retaining means for respective engagement with the tumblers for repressing the same in opposition to their actuating springs to vary the positions of their seats or notches with relation to the plane of the disc.

1,418,177. AUTO BURGLAR ALARM. DAVID B. SHELLER, Tacoma, Wash. Filed Oct. 9, 1920. Serial No. 415,842. 3 Claims. (Cl. 116—33.)



1. An auto-theft alarm, comprising in combination with a vehicle brake-drum; a spring-bar pivotally mounted within the brake-drum, a rotatable cam mounted within the drum and formed with an arcuate slot, means connecting one end of the pivoted spring bar with the slotted portion of the cam for positively throwing the other end of bar into and out of alarm-giving position, and means for rotating the cam to throw the pivoted bar into and out of the path of studs attached to a rotating portion of the brake-drum to make and break contact with the studs.

1,418,178. ROTARY SLICER AND GRATER. JOSEPH M. STELMACH, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Aug. 12, 1920. Serial No. 402,958. 1 Claim. (Cl. 146—11.)

A rotary slicer comprising a supporting structure, a cutting disk rotatably mounted thereon and provided with a plurality of circumferentially arranged apertures adjacent its edge, a driven pinion arranged thereunder and having its teeth cooperating with said apertures, said disk being provided with an upstanding annular flange, a hopper structure hinged to said supporting structure and embodying the ring like plate adapted to encircle the upstanding flange of the cutting disk and to be arranged over the apertures of the disk, and means whereby the ring like plate is spaced above the cutting disk.

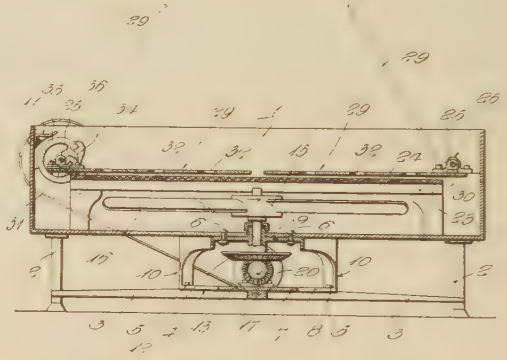
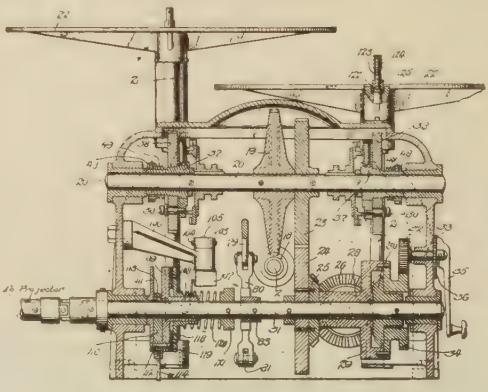
1,418,179. CARPET BEATER. EMMA H. STONER, Enid, Okla. Filed Mar. 2, 1921. Serial No. 449,010. 7 Claims. (Cl. 15—12.)



2. A carpet beater comprising a carpet support, a carpet beater loosely mounted for swinging movement, a rotatable carrier, a beater engaging element movably associated with said carrier and yieldably held in position for engaging said beater, and means for moving said beater engaging element out of engagement with said beater as the carrier rotates.

1,418,180. MULTIPLE-RECORD TABLE FOR MOTION-PICTURE MACHINES. WILLIAM PRESTON STUNZ, Lansdowne, Md., and LEWIS RICHARD GILBERT, Kalamazoo, Mich., assignors to The Webb Talking Pictures Company, a Corporation of Delaware. Filed July 12, 1920. Serial No. 395,595. 9 Claims. (Cl. 88—16.2.)



1. A plurality of record supporting tables, a counting mechanism for each record table having successively acting dials adapted to be set for the number of revolutions of each record employed, and means for rotating one record table and its companion counting dials in unison and stopping the rotation of the other table while its companion counting dials are being adjusted for the record of that table.

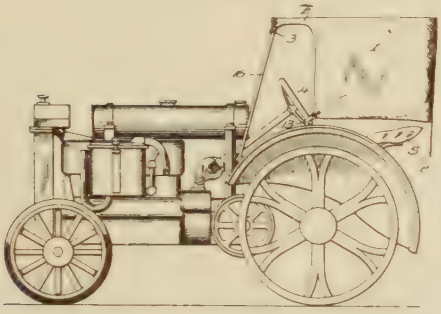
1,418,181. TRACTOR ATTACHMENT. A A SUNDE, Ute, Iowa. Filed July 15, 1921. Serial No. 484,952. 4 Claims. (Cl. 280—150.)



1. The combination with a tractor having a canvas engine hood; of a top frame carried by the tractor and shaped to conform to the shape of the hood, said hood being usable alternately on the engine or the frame as a protector for the engine or the driver.

1,418,182. INHALER. BENJAMIN C. TABOR, Ashland, Oreg. Filed Dec. 19, 1919. Serial No. 345,978. 6 Claims. (Cl. 128—195.)

1. An inhaler, a mask to mount the medium to be inhaled, an ear-engaging hook, and bails extending from the hook separated at and secured to the mask to spread the same.

1,418,183. GRAPHIC RECORDER. CHARLES B. THWING, Philadelphia, Pa., assignor to Thwing Instrument Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of Pennsylvania. Filed Mar. 11, 1921. Serial No. 451,445. 10 Claims. (Cl. 234—5.5.)

1. In a graphic recorder, the combination of a record-receiving element, a marking element, electrical means normally determining the position of said marking element relative to the receiving element, and mechanical means for shifting the marking element to a specified position against the force exerted thereupon by the said normal position-determining means.

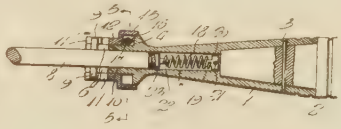
1,418,184. SCREW DRIVER. CHARLES TRUNICK, Farrell, Pa. Filed Aug. 12, 1920, Serial No. 402,938. Renewed Apr. 7, 1922. Serial No. 550,515. 1 Claim. (Cl. 279—93.)



A screw driver comprising a handle having a longitudinally extending socket formed therein, a collar formed upon the handle intermediate the depth of the socket, the forward end portion of the handle having longitudinally extending side slots cut from its end and communicating with the socket, a sleeve rotatably mounted upon the forward end portion of the handle and having bayonet slots cut from its end for registering with the slots of the handle, the sleeve having an outstanding collar fitting upon the collar of the handle and forming a spring housing, a pin extending from the handle through an angular slot formed in the sleeve to limit rotary movement of the sleeve, pins carried by the sleeve and collar of the handle and extending longitudinally of the handle in opposite directions within the spring housing, a spring positioned within the spring housing and having connection with the pins of the sleeve and handle collar to yieldably retain the sleeve against rotary movement out of a locking position, a protector sleeve fitting upon the slotted sleeve for covering the slotted sleeve and outer end portion of the side pin, and a bit fitting into the socket and having side pins for fitting into the registering slots of the sleeve and handle.

1,418,185. WORK HOLDER FOR ENDLESS CONVEYERS. ERNEST K. VAN BUSKIRK, Binghamton, N. Y., assignor of one-half to Harold Ivan Harris, Binghamton, N. Y. Filed Apr. 19, 1920. Serial No. 375,099. 5 Claims. (Cl. 198—131.)

1. In a work-holding device for a chain conveyer, a chain-link, a base-plate seated on and united with the outer side of said chain-link, a jaw mounted upon said base-plate and adjustable longitudinally of the same, means for releasably holding said jaw in an adjusted position, and a second jaw extending in overhanging relation to the first jaw and having a work-engaging face extended parallel to the work-engaging face of the first jaw.

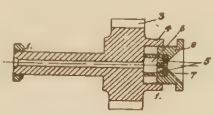
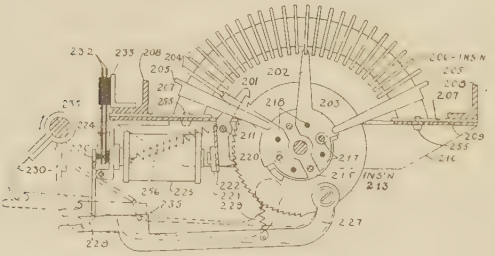
1,418,186. MANUFACTURE OF NAILS AND THE LIKE. MARK HOWARTH, Padgate, Warrington, England. Filed Sept. 30, 1919. Serial No. 327,525. 1 Claim. (Cl. 10—34.)



The herein described process of making helically grooved nails, consisting in drawing wire through an aperture formed by balls and revolving the balls around the wire being drawn, cutting the wire beyond the balls into determinate lengths and forming heads on said lengths.

1,418,187. AUTOMATIC TELEPHONE SYSTEM. DAVID S. HULFISH, Toronto, Ontario, Canada. Filed May 27, 1918. Serial No. 236,833. 27 Claims. (Cl. 179—18.)



14. In a telephone system, a line, two searching switches operative to serve said line contemporaneously, means for advancing said two switches simultaneously into preliminary selective positions, and further means for advancing one of said switches to said line.

1,418,188. BOOT OR SHOE. JOSEPH H. JACOBS, Miles City, Mont. Filed June 12, 1920. Serial No. 388,568. 1 Claim. (Cl. 36—1.)

A metal boot or shoe, comprising an inner member shaped to form the same with a vamp, counter and sole, and an outer hollow member correspondingly shaped with the inner member but of a greater size than the inner member so that the said inner member is wholly received in the outer member but held away from contact therewith except at the upper edge of both of the members, and both of said members being connected at their said upper ends and the space between the inner and outer members providing a vacuum chamber, and a fabric upper stitched to the jointed upper edge of the inner and outer members.

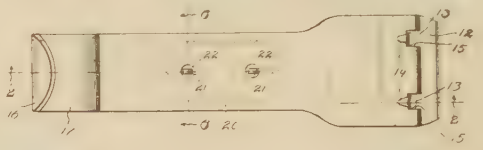
1,418,189. SCRAPING TOOL. JOHN A. KIMBALL, Taylorville, Ill. Filed July 25, 1921. Serial No. 487,538. 2 Claims. (Cl. 145—47.)

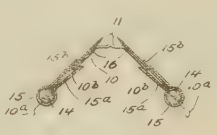


1. A tool of the character described, comprising a handle made up of separable sections, a cutting blade adapted to be positioned between the sections and project beyond one end of the tool, said blade having openings, cooperating means on the respective sections for clamping the blade between the latter, and said sections being designed to unitedly define a loop at the opposite end of the handle, the component parts of said loop being resilient for interlocking association for the purpose specified.

1,418,190. HAT HANGER. EVAN JAMES LEWIS, Canonsburg, Pa. Filed May 7, 1920. Serial No. 379,632. 1 Claim. (Cl. 2—186.)

In a hat hanger, a flat rigid strip of material adapted to be secured at one end to a hat, and a pointed securing member loosely secured through said strip at the other end thereof and disposed at right angles to the plane of the strip.

1,418,191. SAFETY RAZOR. ROBERT W. MCGARVEY, Sparrows Point, Md. Filed Nov. 7, 1919. Serial No. 336,349. 25 Claims. (Cl. 30—12.)



1. In a safety razor, in combination, two razor blade supporting plates rigidly secured together at an angle, the space between the plates being unobstructed and each plate being of a size and shape to be conveniently grasped and held as a handle by the fingers, and a razor blade secured to each of said plates, the adjacent edges of said blades constituting cutting edges.

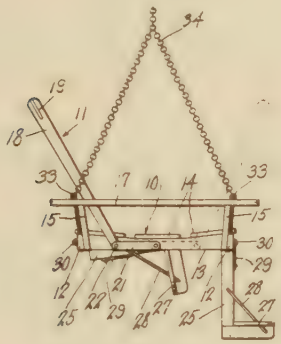
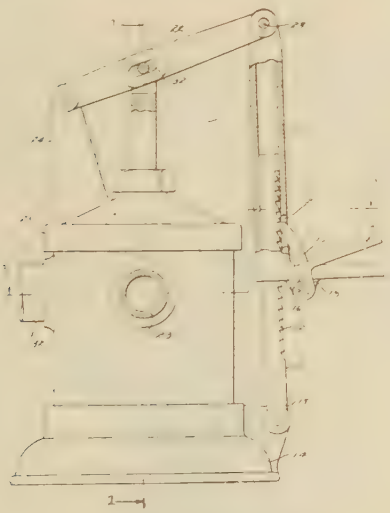
1,418,192. SWING. BENJAMIN F. MALOTT, Greenville, S. C. Filed July 23, 1921. Serial No. 487,080. 1 Claim. (Cl. 155—68.)



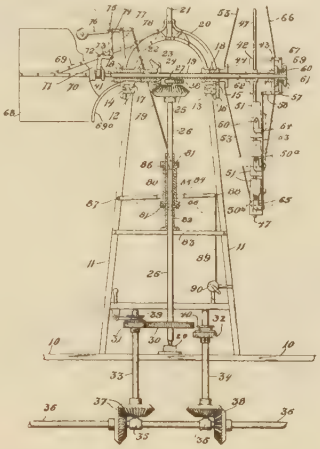
A combined bench and swing comprising a seat, a back secured to the seat, means connected to the seat, whereby the swing may be suspended, means whereby the back may be reversed, spaced legs hingedly secured beneath each longitudinal edge of the seat, whereby the legs may be folded upward beneath said seat, a combined foot rest and brace connecting the legs and means for holding the legs in folded or unfolded position.

1,418,193. PEDAL-CONTROL LIQUID MIXER. WILLIAM MEIER, New York, N. Y. Filed Oct. 25, 1919. Serial No. 333,151. 6 Claims. (Cl. 277—18.)



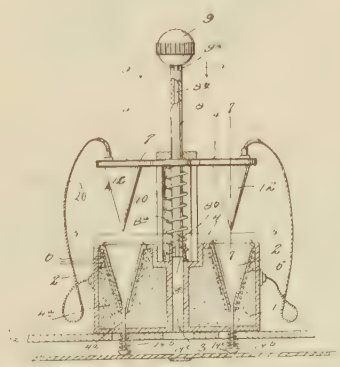
1. In a device of the character described comprising hot and cold water inlets, valve gates therefor, each of said gates having an inclined surface thereon, a spring-pressed spindle, a gate-actuating member mounted on said spindle and arranged to successively actuate said gates, a means connected to said spindle including a pedal, a pawl associated therewith, and a relatively movable toothed member adapted to cooperate with said pawl, whereby the said gate actuating member may be controlled by movement of said foot pedal.

1,418,194. WINDMILL. POLIKARP MELNICK, Camden, N. J. Filed July 2, 1921. Serial No. 482,156. 5 Claims. (Cl. 170—69.)



1. In a wind actuated power producing mechanism the combination of a supporting framework surmounted by an annular track, a turntable rotatable on said track by means of a mill vane, a horizontal tubular shaft rotatable in bearings on said turntable, an inner shaft longitudinally movable in said tubular shaft, a wind-wheel attached on the outer end of said hollow shaft and including a series of interconnecting tangentially pivoted wings of concavo-convex cross section, said wind-wheel comprising an inner and outer spaced hub, the inner hub including a series of radial arms between which the aforesaid wings are journaled, means for bracing said arms together and to the aforesaid spaced hubs, angled levers pivoted about the perimeter of the outermost hub and having all their arms on one side of their pivotal points operatively connected to elbow members on the axes of the wing planes, a collar on the inner shaft in operative engagement with the other arms of said angled levers whereby they are simultaneously rocked to effect the angular deflection or opening outwards of said wing vanes, means for automatically closing said wing vanes, and manually operable means for effecting the outward movement of the aforesaid inner shaft.

1,418,195. ICE-CREAM-CONE MACHINE. RICCARDO MIGLIETTA, Meriden, Conn. Filed Mar. 28, 1921. Serial No. 456,452. 5 Claims. (Cl. 107—58.)



1. In an apparatus for the purpose described, the combination of a body, inverted cone-shaped receptacles disposed in said body and open at their upper ends, resistance coils disposed in the body in close proximity to the receptacles and connected with the source of electric energy, a guide rising from the body, a head movable up and down in the guide and also movable about its center in the guide, a spring for raising said movable head, a stem connected with the head, a guide for said stem, inverted cone-shaped members carried by the head, resistance coils in said male members, and flexible conductors intermediate the body and said resistance coils.

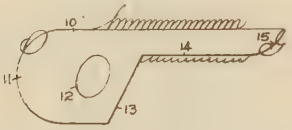
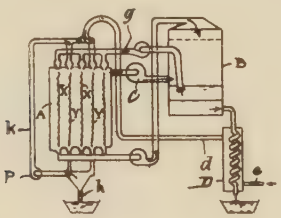
1,418,196. INSTRUMENT FOR TEACHING AND PERFECTING PENMANSHIP. PATRICK F. MOFFETT, Worcester, Mass. Filed June 15, 1921. Serial No. 477,842. 2 Claims. (Cl. 35—8.)



2. As an article of manufacture, an instrument for the purpose described comprising a flat thin body having an upper horizontal bounding surface and a lower horizontal bounding surface connected by a semi-circular end constituting a handle for manipulating the instrument and a guide for starting capital letters and having an inclined edge extending upwardly from the lower horizontal surface at an angle and stopping short of said upper horizontal surface and having a horizontal edge extending therefrom parallel to said upper horizontal surface connected to it by a curve at the end, and provided with an oval opening therethrough at a distance inside the inclined straight edge and having its axis parallel therewith.

1,418,197. PROCESS FOR EVAPORATING LIQUIDS. EINAR MORTERUD, Torderod, near Moss, Norway. Filed Oct. 15, 1918. Serial No. 258,271. 7 Claims. (Cl. 127—9.)



1. The process of evaporating liquids, which comprises compressing the vapor from a solution to be evaporated, transmitting by contact the condensation heat of the compressed vapor to an intermediate material that is insoluble in the condensate from the solution being evaporated, and evaporating the solution by the heat absorbed by said material.

1,418,198. HAT. HARRY N. NEPPELL, New York, N. Y. Filed Apr. 26, 1921. Serial No. 464,512. 3 Claims. (Cl. 2—114.)

1. A novelty hat comprising a crown and a frame having a head receiving opening, and circumferentially spaced supporting strips secured to the brim having disengageable connection at their free ends to the crown to constitute a means for connecting the crown to the brim whereby to permit of the folding of the crown against the brim upon disengagement of certain of the supporting strips from the crown and bending the remaining strips.

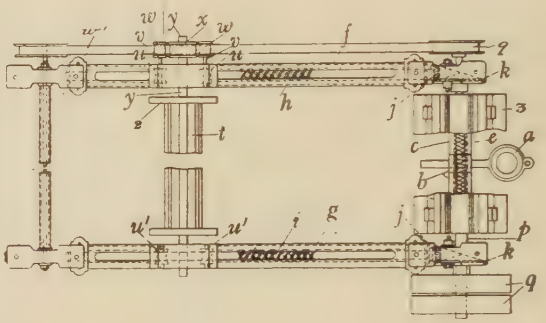
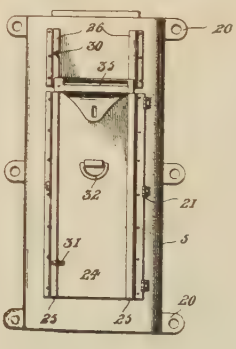
1,418,199. CLOTH-PILING MACHINE. DAVID GEORGE NORTON and ALBERT DUROT, Manchester, England, assignors to Sir James Farmer & Sons Limited, Salford, Manchester, England. Filed Dec. 9, 1920. Serial No. 429,564. 2 Claims. (Cl. 8—19.)



1. In cloth piling machines, the combination with the usual cloth guide reciprocated across the machine, of tubular rails extending the length of the machine upon which the winch carriage rides, right and left hand screws extending through the said tubular rails, means upon the carriage engaging the said screws through slots in the tubular rails, and means for rotating the winch as it is reciprocated by the screws, as set forth.

1,418,200. COMBINATION MILK-BOTTLE RECEPTACLE AND MAIL BOX. JOSEPH PANIK and STEVE CLEBO, West Park, Ohio. Filed July 23, 1921. Serial No. 487,012. 6 Claims. (Cl. 232—44.)



1. In a milk bottle receptacle of the class described, a casing provided with a top closure having means automatically operable upon insertion of a milk bottle within the casing for locking the same in closed position, said casing being provided with a side opening through which said milk bottle may be withdrawn, a door for said side opening including a hinged frame provided with vertical guide ways, a panel slidable in said guide ways for closing the opening of the frame, and means to simultaneously lock the frame in closed position and the panel in its position for closing the opening of the frame.

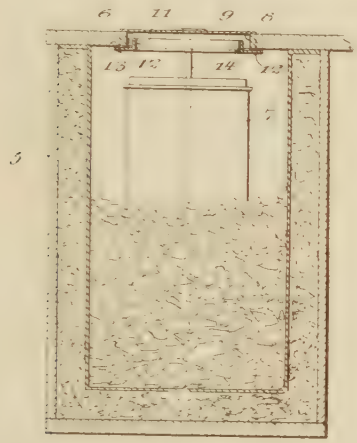
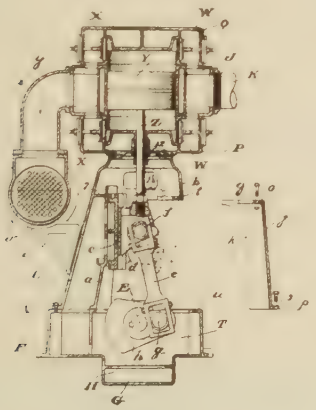
1,418,201. CLOSURE. PETER PAPPAS, Kankakee, Ill. Filed Oct. 29, 1921. Serial No. 511,262. 5 Claims. (Cl. 217—56.)



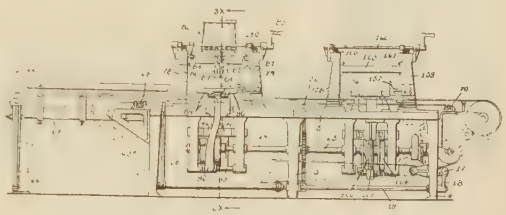
1. The combination with a closure having an opening therein and a cover therefor; of a gutter attachment in said opening.

1,418,202. VERTICAL COMPRESSOR UNIT. FREDERICK W. PARSONS, Elmira, N. Y., assignor to Ingersoll-Rand Company, Jersey City, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed May 20, 1921. Serial No. 471,133. 6 Claims. (Cl. 230—32.)



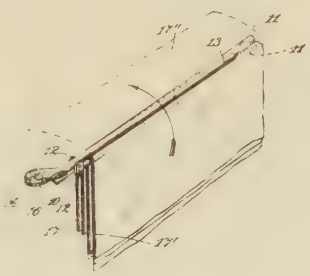
1. A supporting frame for a vertical compressor unit, comprising a hollow base affording a bearing for a main crank shaft, a main frame mounted on said base and consisting of a column open at one side and having inner and outer walls at the opposite side, a top portion overhanging the open side of the column, and a closure for said open side in the form of a removable section of the side of the column constituting a combination cover plate and front support, the inner vertical wall of the column affording means for supporting a cross head guide, whereby the front of the column may be removed without disconnecting or disturbing the operative parts of the machine.

1,418,203. BOTTLE-FILLING MACHINE. THEODORE E. PENNOCK, Rochester, N. Y. Filed Apr. 3, 1919. Serial No. 287,270. 21 Claims. (Cl. 226—76.)



21. In a bottle filling machine, the combination of two platens, smooth belts moving parallel to said platens, one on each side of the platens, means for transferring bottles from one belt to the first platen, means for filling the bottles, said transferring means thereafter moving them to the second belt, said second belt advancing the bottles to the second platen, means for transferring the bottles from the second belt to the second platen, a bridge against which said second platen operates to drive corks into said bottles, said transferring means moving the bottles from said second platen to the first belt, said belts moving intermittently and being timed to move while the platens are up.

1,418,204. PAPER-HOLDING DEVICE. FREDERICK R. W. ROSS, Orange, N. J. Filed Feb. 12, 1921. Serial No. 444,566. 4 Claims. (Cl. 129—38.)



1. In a paper holding device, in combination, a plurality of separate spaced parallel fingers, a binding member pivotally attached to the parallel fingers and abuttable thereon in normal position and means for revolving the binding member upon its pivot to disengage the binding member and parallel members.

1,418,205. TOOL-OPERATING MACHINE. ANDREW SALATA, New York, N. Y. Filed Mar. 29, 1921. Serial No. 456,682. 5 Claims. (Cl. 29—76.)

1. A tool-operating machine, which comprises a casing, a tool carrier reciprocally mounted therein, one end of said carrier adapted to extend outside of the casing, means for operating the tool, said means being disposed within the casing; and tool fastening means disposed on said carrier outside of said casing.

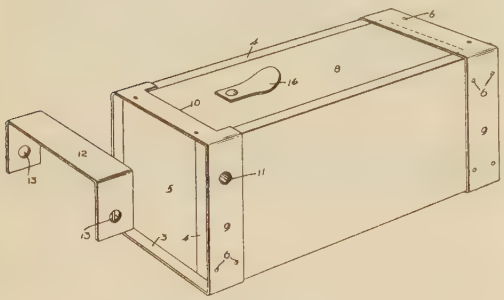
1,418,206. TYPE BOX. WILLIAM A. SEARS, Leon, Kans. Filed Apr. 6, 1921. Serial No. 458,938. 4 Claims. (Cl. 217—69.)



1. A rectangular box of the character stated including a bottom, side walls and end walls, said end walls having recesses in their inner upper edges forming shoulders, metal encircling bands around the end members, the width of said bands being substantially the same as the thickness of the end members, one of said bands having a recess therein registering with a recess in the end member which it encircles, a removable cover resting on the shoulders, and means for retaining the cover in position.

1,418,207. BASEBALL TARGET. EDWARD CROSSMAN SHEARS, Portland, Oreg. Filed July 26, 1921. Serial No. 487,628. 2 Claims. (Cl. 124—15.)

1. A baseball target structure comprising a body having a cut-out therein, and a target element pivotally hung on said body at said cut-out and partly filling the latter so that the cut-out of the body and the swingable element jointly present an opening through which a ball may pass, said target element having a stop member extending laterally to overlap the rear surface of the body above the pivotal center of the target element to limit the forward swinging movement of the latter and determine its normal position, the lower portion of said target element being overbalanced to maintain said element normally in the plane of the body, and a second stop element on said target element at the back below the pivotal axis and overlapping the rear surface of the body to limit the rearward swinging movement of the target element.

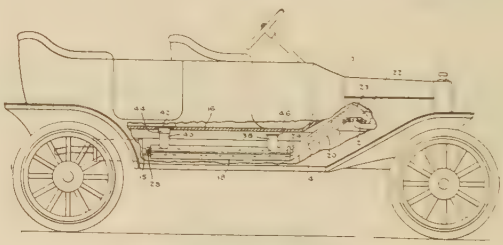
1,418,208. HEATING ATTACHMENT FOR MOTOR VEHICLES. JAMES D. SHOTWELL, Minneapolis, Minn., assignor to Shotwell Johnson Company, Minneapolis, Minn. Filed Jan. 31, 1921. Serial No. 441,177. 3 Claims. (Cl. 237—123.)



1. A heating attachment for motor vehicles comprising a casing for surrounding the exhaust pipe thereof, said casing having a fresh air opening at its forward end and at its rear portion being in two longitudinally divided parts, means for securing said divided parts together, a pair of transverse spring arms secured respectively to said divided parts, and adapted to fit upon the exhaust pipe, a branch pipe extending upwardly from said casing and a register for the vehicle floor attached to said branch pipe.

1,418,209. GAS ENGINE. JOHN E. SMITH, New York, N. Y., assignor of one-third to Thomas T. Gaunt, and one-third to William D. N. Perine, both of New York, N. Y. Filed June 8, 1918. Serial No. 239,014. 6 Claims. (Cl. 123—79.)

1. In a gas engine, the combination of a cylinder; a piston working therein; a single combined inlet and exhaust valve opening into the cylinder and alone controlling the intake and exhaust of the engine; a variable throw cam working in timed relation with the piston and serving to close the valve at different points of the compression stroke; means under the control of the operator for adjusting said cam; and means for injecting fuel directly into the cylinder through the valve opening when the piston is moving through the intake stroke.

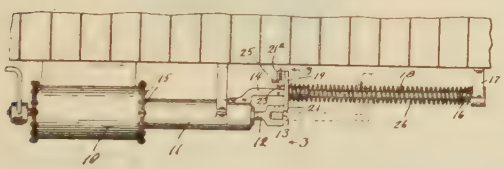
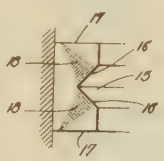
1,418,210. AIR-BRAKE SYSTEM. WILLIAM HENRY SOUTHER, West St. John, New Brunswick, Canada. Filed May 12, 1921. Serial No. 469,070. 8 Claims. (Cl. 116—127.)



1. A device for registering the travel of the piston of an air brake comprising a stationary guide bar of substantial length, a slider movably supported thereby arranged to be engaged by the piston and moved outwardly along said guide bar, manually-operated means arranged releasingly to hold said slider in moved positions on said guide bar, and a spring engaging said slider to oppose the outward movement thereof.

1,418,211. PISTON RING. HENRY STOFFERS, Newark, N. J. Filed May 12, 1921. Serial No. 468,888. 3 Claims. (Cl. 74—109.)



1. As an article of manufacture, a piston ring provided with an inner annular groove having angularly disposed faces and increased grain density extending at a right angle to the angular faces of the groove.

1,418,212. FISHING TOOL. CHARLES STRAND, Burkburnett, Tex. Filed Nov. 20, 1920. Serial No. 425,447. 1 Claim. (Cl. 294—104.)

A fishing tool comprising a tubular body, a plate of concavo-convex shape in cross section secured in the tubular body adjacent to the lower end thereof, arms formed by the upper end of said plate being bifurcated, said arms having their inner surfaces concaved, a jaw of a concavo-convex shape in cross section having one end sharpened and its opposite end provided with an offset ear disposed between the arms of the aforementioned plate, a pivot passing through said tubular body, concaved surfaces of said arms, and said jaw respectively, and a spring secured within the tubular body engaging the jaw to swing the same to active position.

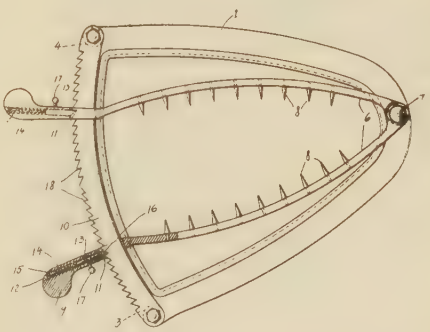
1,418,213. MEAT HOLDER. ROMAN SVIONTEK, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 20, 1921. Serial No. 478,968. Renewed Apr. 24, 1922. Serial No. 556,358. 3 Claims. (Cl. 17—14.)



1. A meat holder of the character described comprising swinging arms mounted on a support; a segmental rack mounted on said support; slots in said arms slidably embracing said rack; handles on said arms; bores extending through said handles and communicating with the slots in said arms; and spring pressed pins slidably mounted in said bores normally engaging said rack, substantially as described.

1,418,214. GAME. THOMAS J. SYLVESTER, Philadelphia, Pa. Filed May 28, 1921. Serial No. 473,296. 3 Claims. (Cl. 46—41.)

1. A toy or game, as herein described, comprising a board having a circular depression providing a runway for a sphere, said board having radial depressions forming pockets which communicate with the runway and into which the sphere is designed to be guided, said board having imprinted thereon opposite each pocket the name of the several States constituting the United States and figures representing the electoral votes of the several States.

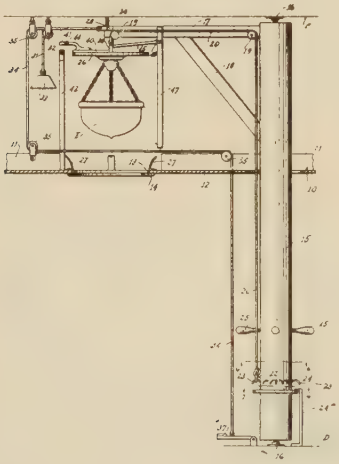
1,418,215. ELECTRIC-FIXTURE-DISPLAY DEVICE. CHARLES K. THEOBALD, Jonesboro, Ark. Filed Oct. 12, 1921. Serial No. 507,319. 14 Claims. (Cl. 211—17.)



1. A display device comprising the combination of a false ceiling having a hole therein, of an upright rotatable post carrying a series of arms located above the false ceiling, flexible members trained over pulleys on the arms and being detachably secured at the lower end of the post, said flexible members carrying fixtures to be displayed, said post being rotatable to bring a selected arm and fixture above the hole whereby the fixture may be subsequently lowered by means of the associated flexible member.

1,418,216. SILO AND METHOD OF ERECTING SILOS. BLANCHARD B. VORSE, Des Moines, Iowa, assignor to Western Silo Company, Limited, a Corporation of West Virginia. Filed May 9, 1917. Serial No. 167,546. 3 Claims. (Cl. 20—1.4.)

1. The method of erecting a silo so as to resist wind action which consists in making in the ground an annular hole having a larger diameter than the finished silo is to have, forming a silo foundation in the bottom of said hole, embedding anchoring means in said foundation during the formation thereof, erecting on said foundation a stave silo, securing in the anchoring means and adjacent the top of the silo bracing means extending diagonally of said silo, and filling the space between the lower portion of the silo and the surrounding earth wall with concrete, whereby the silo is firmly supported and cannot be distorted or collapsed by wind pressures.

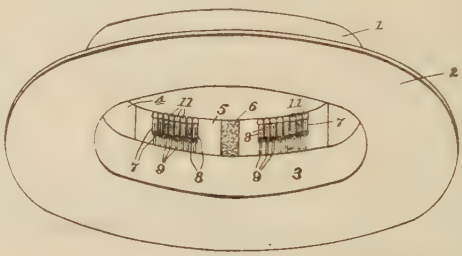
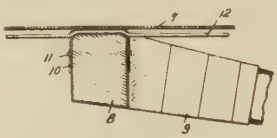
1,418,217. MATCH HOLDER FOR HATS. JOSEPH L. WARNER, Phoenix, Ariz. Filed July 29, 1919. Serial No. 314,034. Renewed Oct. 15, 1921. Serial No. 508,718. 5 Claims. (Cl. 206—20.)



2. The combination with a card to fit in the crown of a hat, of a match holder mounted on said card and comprising a tube of elastic material somewhat smaller in internal diameter than the head of the match, whereby said head will expand the tube when inserted therein and thus be retained in place, a portion of said tube being slit longitudinally to facilitate the removal of the match therefrom.

1,418,218. BOW. GROVER CLEVELAND WELTER, Roswell, N. Mex. Filed Jan. 25, 1921. Serial No. 439,816. 1 Claim. (Cl. 296—118.)



A bow including a body portion, a layer of metal presenting a smooth outer face encircling said body portion adjacent its points of contact with the top covering to be supported by said bow, said metal being formed with openings, the top supporting straps being adapted to pass through said openings and being clamped in this position by means of the body of said metal.

1,418,219. TOWEL CABINET. HARVEY C. WHEELER, Lexington, Mass. Filed Jan. 28, 1921. Serial No. 440,771. 2 Claims. (Cl. 45—32.)

1. A towel cabinet comprising a case having sides, spindles revolubly supported in said sides, and a length of toweling terminally attached to said spindles and designed to be wound thereon, each spindle having a reduced portion at one end and a neck at its other end, and turning means connected with said neck exterior to the case, one of said sides having holes revolubly receiving said reduced ends, and the other side having two holes for each spindle, one of which holes fits the said neck and the other of which loosely receives both an end of the spindle and the turning means, each small hole opening into its associated large hole, but none of the holes cutting through to the front edge of the cabinet sides.

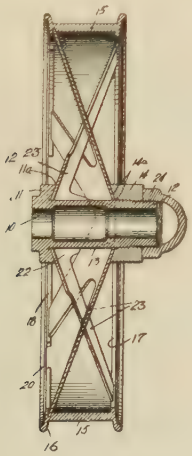
1,418,220. GOLF BALL. JOHN WHITE, Sunningdale, England. Filed Oct. 22, 1920. Serial No. 418,794. 4 Claims. (Cl. 46—4.)

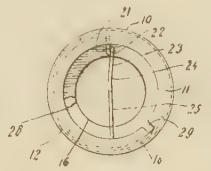
1. A golf ball having a plurality of flat bottomed depressions formed on its outermost surface and having recesses with spherical surfaces formed in the flat bottoms of said depressions, so as to provide intermediate between said surface and lowest point of said recesses a surface that is at least approximately parallel to said outermost surface.

1,418,221. VEHICLE WHEEL. WILLIAM T. WILDER, St. Paul, Minn. Filed Aug. 6, 1920. Serial No. 401,741. 5 Claims. (Cl. 301—64.



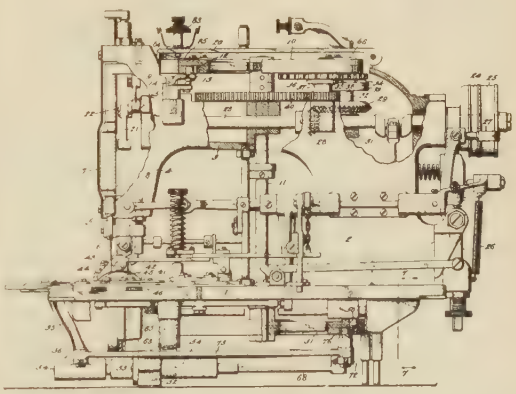
1. A wheel, comprising a hub, a flanged rim provided with gaps, two conical sheet metal spoke members slidably mounted on the hub and having interlocking engagement with the flanges of the rim, and means on the hub for forcing the spoke members toward each other, whereby the spokes will be forced into firm interlocking engagement with the flanges of the rim.

1,418,222. PICTURE FRAME, BUTTON, BADGE, AND THE LIKE. ISAIAH N. ZELLER, Chicago, Ill. Filed Apr. 29, 1919. Serial No. 293,456. 2 Claims. (Cl. 40—1.5.)



1. A button or like article comprising a rigid shell having an opening on its face adapted to display a picture card placed behind it, the outer edge of said shell being turned backward to form an annular rim to hold said card in position, a transparent material permanently secured over said rim and covering the outer surface of said shell and means adapted to detachably seat within said rim and engage said card whereby different cards may be interchangeably received within said button without removing said transparent material.

1,418,223. BUTTONHOLE-SEWING MACHINE. EDWARD B. ALLEN, Newtown, Conn., assignor to The Singer Manufacturing Company, Elizabeth, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Aug. 12, 1920. Serial No. 403,072. 23 Claims. (Cl. 112—73.)



1. A buttonhole sewing machine having, in combination, stitch-forming mechanism, a work-holder, and feeding and barring mechanism for relatively moving the stitch-forming mechanism and work-holder to sew around and bar one end of a buttonhole, said feeding and barring mechanism including means for relatively moving the stitch-forming mechanism and work-holder to and fro repeatedly in an inclined direction across one end of the buttonhole during the barring operation.

1,418,224. GEARING ATTACHMENT FOR CLOTHES WRINGERS. EMIL ARTHURS, Portsmouth, Ohio. Filed Aug. 4, 1920. Serial No. 401,163. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—34.)

The combination with a main shaft and a support therefor, of an attachment which comprises a gearing unit adapted to be fastened to one end of said shaft, said unit comprising a collar having a bore, said collar fastened to one end of the shaft, an arm on said collar, a pinion on said arm, a casing adapted to be fixed relative to the support, an internal ring gear on the inner face of the casing, said ring gear meshing with said pinion, a second pinion meshing with the first-named pinion, a stub shaft on which said second pinion is mounted, said stub shaft being journaled at one end in the bore of said collar, a cover on said casing having an aperture forming a bearing for said stub shaft, and a handle adapted to be fastened to the outer end of said stub shaft.

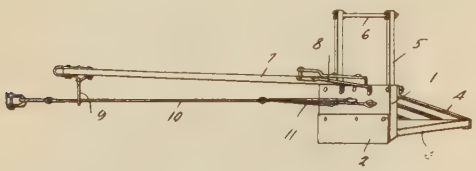
1,418,225. ROAD LEVELER. WILLIAM R. BANWART, West Bend, Iowa. Filed Sept. 23, 1918. Serial No. 255,304. 1 Claim. (Cl. 37—5.)



A road scraper including an upstanding board, a scraper plate secured to the front face thereof and extending below the lower edge of the board and throughout the length of the board, a platform fixed relative to and extending rearwardly from the board close to but above the lower edge of the board, bracing devices connecting the rear portion of the platform to the upper portion of the board, said platform constituting means for supporting the weight of the driver at desired distances from the scraper and at either side of the center thereof, thereby to vary the action of the scraper upon the soil engaged thereby, a draft device connected to the upper portion of the board adjacent the center thereof, said board being obliquely disposed relative to the draft device, and a hand rail fixedly connected to and supported above the board and adapted to be grasped by the driver standing on the platform.

1,418,226. COMBINATION PNEUMATIC LOCKING AND SIGNALING APPARATUS. EDWARD M. BOYLE, Watertown, N. Y. Filed June 25, 1921. Serial No. 480,491. 6 Claims. (Cl. 116—12.)

5. A locking and signaling apparatus including a door-catch, a pivotally mounted latch arranged for engagement and disengagement with said door-catch, a pneumatic device including a chamber, a piston having a rod which piston is movable in said chamber, springs acting on said piston; a member carried by said rod and adjustable thereon with relation to said latch with which it engages upon the upward movement of said rod, and a pneumatic signal device including a passage in communication with the said chamber, and a whistle in operative connection with said passage, the said piston being movable to cut off communication between the said passage and said chamber.

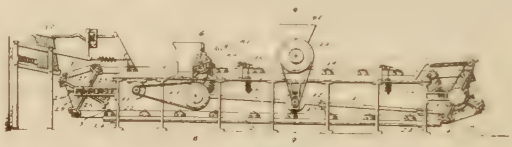
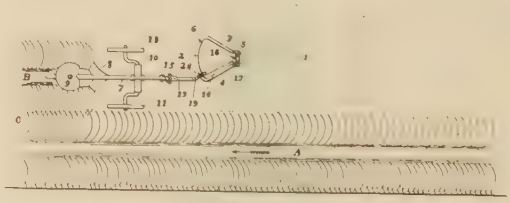
1,418,227. MACHINE FOR FORMING PLASTIC TILE. HOLDEN BROCK, St. Louis, Mo. Filed Feb. 4, 1921. Serial No. 442,467. 9 Claims. (Cl. 25—99.)



1. A machine of the character described including an endless carrier having spaced side bars and cross bars forming a lengthwise series of open material receiving spaces, links between the side bars supporting the said cross bars, a series of form plates constituting removable bases for said spaces, means for feeding the form plates into the successive spaces of the carrier at one point in the length of the latter, means for discharging the form plates from the carrier at another point in the length of the latter, and means between the said points for feeding, working and surfacing plastic material within the carrier spaces on the form plates.

1,418,228. TRACTOR HITCH. THEOPHILUS BROWN, Moline, Ill., assignor to Deere & Company, Moline, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Aug. 16, 1919. Serial No. 318,061. Renewed Oct. 28, 1921. Serial No. 511,107. 4 Claims. (Cl. 213—67.)



1. The combination with a tractor drawn implement of a hitching mechanism connecting the implement to the tractor including a segment mounted on the tractor, a drawbar pivotally connected forwardly to the segment and extending rearwardly to pivotal connection with the implement, and means to automatically secure said segment and drawbar together at either end of the segment.

1,418,229. FISH LURE. GEORGE T. BUDDLE, Chicago, Ill. Filed June 22, 1921. Serial No. 479,606. 3 Claims. (Cl. 43—42.)

1. A fishing lure including a body portion having a shoulder formed intermediate its ends, a hook secured to the body portion and having an eye formed at one end thereof, a shoulder formed on the hook, a fish attracting means secured to the hook adjacent to the shoulder thereof, and means for securing a fish line to the lure to cause the lure to move through a stream at various angles.

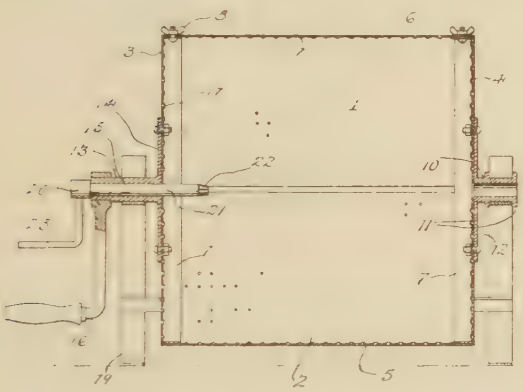
1,418,230. POTATO-PEELING APPARATUS. HUBERT J. CAPELLMAN and ROBERT HAYHURST, South Chicago, Ill. Filed Sept. 25, 1920, Serial No. 412,681. Renewed Apr. 15, 1922. Serial No. 553,010. 3 Claims. (Cl. 146—14.)



In a potato peeling apparatus, a cylindrical receptacle a handle for rotating said receptacle, and a potato eye removing cutter extending through said handle and having its cutting edges disposed within the receptacle

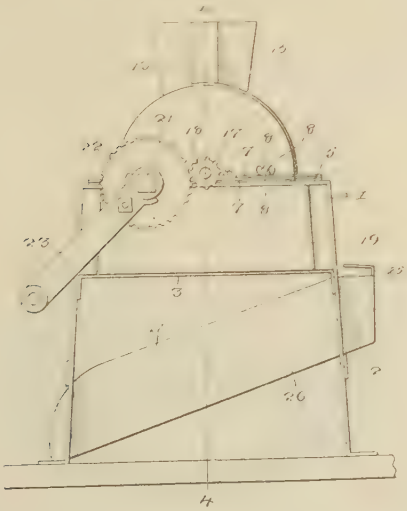
1,418,231. TOMATO MASHER. FRANK CARLINO, Buffalo, N. Y. Filed Dec. 30, 1921. Serial No. 525,846. 1 Claim. (Cl. 146—9)



In a tomato masher, a frame, a cross sectionally rounded receptacle mounted thereon and having its lower rounded face reticulated, said receptacle having an opening at the top on one side thereof, guides surrounding the opening, an arched door received in the guides and normally closing the opening, a tomato delivery hopper at one side of the receptacle, a shaft extending centrally and longitudinally through the receptacle and journaled in bearings on the frame, a downwardly inclined hopper supported on the frame below the reticulated bottom of the receptacle, an arm centrally secured on the shaft, plates adjustably secured to the ends of the arm, wiper strips adjustable between the plates and in contacting engagement with the inner wall of the receptacle, and means on the frame for imparting a rotary motion to the shaft

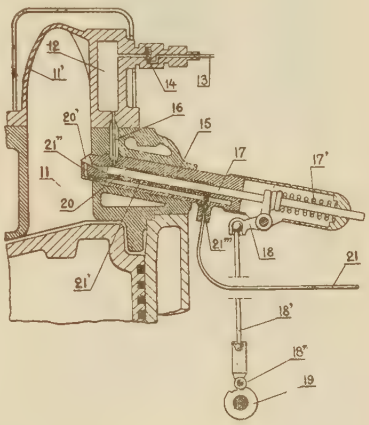
1,418,232. PROCESS AND APPARATUS FOR FUEL INJECTION IN INTERNAL-COMBUSTION ENGINES. LOUIS AUGUSTE CHARLES, Paris, France. Filed Dec. 27, 1921. Serial No. 525,131. 4 Claims. (Cl. 123—33.)



1. In an apparatus of the character described, an internal combustion engine including a compression chomber, an injection gas container, an injector connected with the compression chamber and container, said container being adapted, at the end of the compression period of the engine, to contain air at the same density as the compression chamber, a closing device associated with the injector, means for introducing the fuel into said container immediately after the closing of said closing device, controlling means for thec losing device whereby open communication between the container and compression chamber is maintained during the exhaust period of the engine, and fuel supply means for the injector, said injector being adapted to introduce into and effect spraying of the fuel in the compression chamber by means of hot gas under pressure from the container incident to the opening of the closing device, said controlling means maintaining the closing device in open position from the beginning of the introduction of fuel into the compression chamber until the end of the following compression period of the engine and acting at the end of the compression period to close communication between the compression chamber and the container.

1,418,233. PROCESS FOR PRESERVING IN THE FRESH CONDITION ORGANIC MATTERS AND PARTICULARLY MEAT AND FISH. LOUIS ALBERT CONSTANT CHOLET, Montreuil-sous-Bois, France. Filed Jan. 10, 1921. Serial No. 436,332. 2 Claims. (Cl. 99—14.)

2. A process for the preservation of meat in the fresh state, which consists in subjecting the meat to be preserved to the simultaneous action of a sharp cold but at a temperature not capable of causing the freezing of the meat, that is to say not lower than —1° C., and of a volatile antiseptic gaseous sulphur dioxid for instance, during the entire duration of the refrigeration,—in then subjecting the meat to the action of a current of sterilized air, brought to a temperature of about 50 to 60° C., during a sufficient time for reheating only the surface of the meat and in then gradually lowering the temperature of this current of air.

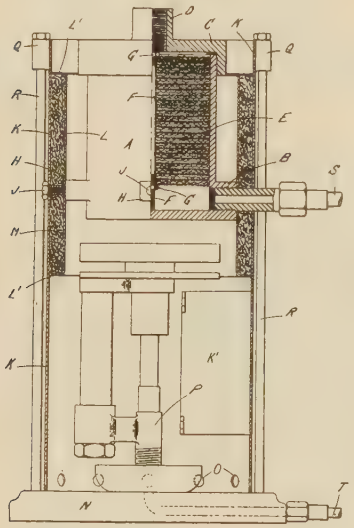
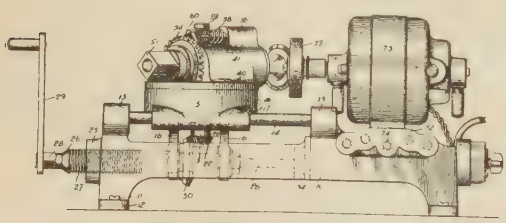
1,418,234. LIQUID VAPORIZER. EDWIN CLEARY, London, England. Filed Sept. 7, 1921. Serial No. 499,000. 3 Claims. (Cl. 122—501.)



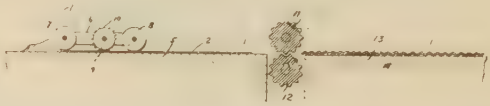
1. An apparatus for use in vaporizing liquids comprising, a tubular vessel closed at both ends and having an inlet at the bottom and an outlet at the top, packing within the vessel consisting of a plurality of centrally apertured wire gauze discs superposed one upon the other with their surfaces held in contact one with another throughout the surfaces of the discs, a rod extending through the apertures in said discs, means for securing the superposed discs on the rod, and a heat generator beneath said vessel.

1,418,235. GRINDING MACHINE. WILLIAM J. COLLINS, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed May 21, 1921. Serial No. 471,385. 3 Claims. (Cl. 51—106.)



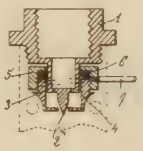
1. A valve grinding device comprising a base, a table movable longitudinally of said base, a valve holder carried by said table, a train of gearing for rotating said valve holder, means for driving said train of gearing, means for engagement with one of the gears of said train of gearing for locking the same against operation, and means for releasing another of the gears of said train of gearing to permit the driving member of the train of gearing to rotate without driving said train of gearing.

1,418,236. PROCESS OF MAKING CORRUGATED WIRE GLASS. WALTER COX and ARNO SHUMAN, Philadelphia, Pa., assignors to Pennsylvania Wire Glass Company, Philadelphia, Pa., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 14, 1920. Serial No. 430,643. 2 Claims. (Cl. 49—86.)



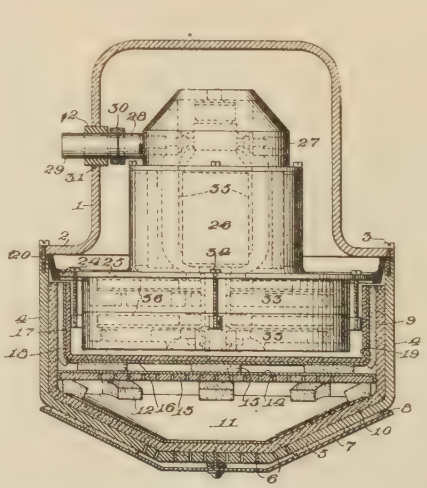
2. The method of making corrugated wire glass which consists in rolling a flat sheet of wire glass with mesh having twists adapted to tighten to increase the distance between them, and while the sheet retains some of its initial heat corrugating the sheet and tightening the twists by passing it between corrugated rollers, substantially as described.

1,418,237. GAS AND AIR REGULATING DEVICE FOR INCANDESCENT MANTLE BURNERS. OTTO PAUL CRAMER, Geneva, Switzerland. Filed Aug. 15, 1921. Serial No. 492,436. 6 Claims. (Cl. 67—121.)



1. A gas and air regulating device for incandescent mantle burners, comprising a burner tube, a cylindrical injector core mounted in the tube and having a smooth periphery and a regulating needle, a regulating socket surrounding the core and having screw-threads formed on its outer periphery, a nut mounted on said threads and having a flanged end, a packing compressed between said flanged end and the end of the socket engaging the periphery of the core and forming a gas-tight connection with the latter, and a pin on the socket engaging an inclined slot in the burner tube.

1,418,238. PNEUMATIC POWER GENERATOR. STANLEY S. CRAMER, Camden, N. J. Filed Nov. 2, 1920. Serial No. 421,249. 7 Claims. (Cl. 230—11.)



1. The combination of a sectional container, with a gasket having a portion removably secured between and supported by the adjacent portions of said container, and a pump casing supported by another portion of said gasket in spaced relation to the walls of the container.

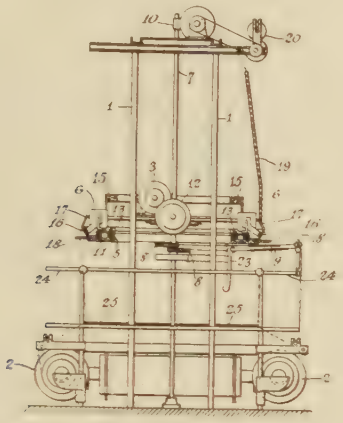
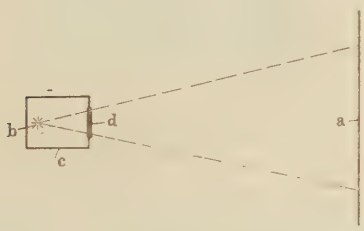
1,418,239. WEAVING PROCESS AND LOOM THEREFOR. SILVIO BENIGNO CRESPI, Milan, Italy. Filed Mar. 21, 1918. Serial No. 223,861. 2 Claims. (Cl. 139—7.) (Granted under the provisions of the act of Mar. 3, 1921, 41 Stat. L., 1313.)



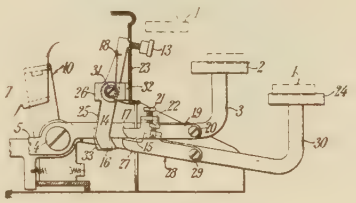
1. A circular loom comprising a center framing having warp beams arranged at the bottom and take-up beams for the finished cloth arranged at the top, devices for collecting the warp threads unwinding from the different warp beams into a single tube, a reed having the same perimeter as the section of the warp tube and designed to form the race for the shuttles, heddle sets, eccentrics for imparting continuous reciprocating motion to said heddle sets, a circular box having a revolving cover as a support for shuttle driving magnets, metal sheets arranged above the cloth formation level and gradually changing from a curved shape at the bottom to a flat shape at the top, and means for cutting the woven fabric into a predetermined number of longitudinal pieces, substantially as and to the purpose set forth.

1,418,240. APPARATUS FOR THE PRODUCTION OF LUMINOUS IMAGES AND THE LIKE. MAURICE CURIE and MARCEL ERNEST VARINOIS, Paris, France. Filed May 19, 1920. Serial No. 382,674. 2 Claims. (Cl. 250—34.)



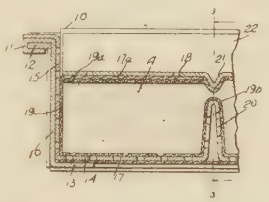
1. An apparatus for carrying out the process of production of luminous images comprising a board on which the invisible designs, images or inscriptions are traced by means of a paint or varnish the base of which is formed of phosphorescent bodies,—any source of light preferably concealed from the view of the spectators,—a screen for selecting the rays, arranged between the source of light and the board covered with invisible images or inscriptions traced by means of the phosphorescent paint, the said screen giving only passage to obscure or invisible rays which, being projected on the said board, produce the permanent excitation of the phosphorescent paint with which are drawn the invisible images or inscriptions and the apparition of luminous images as long as the projection of obscure or invisible rays lasts.

1,418,241. TYPEWRITING MACHINE. WILLIAM A. DOBSON, Hartford, Conn., assignor to Underwood Typewriter Company, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of Delaware. Filed Apr. 30, 1920. Serial No. 377,750. 9 Claims. (Cl. 197—80.)



1. In a typewriting machine having a front wall, in combination, a case-shift mechanism, a case-shift key-lever projecting through said front wall, a movable locking member back of the front wall, a lug back of said wall and shiftably supported on said key-lever, and means actuable at the front of said wall for variably adjusting the lug on the lever.

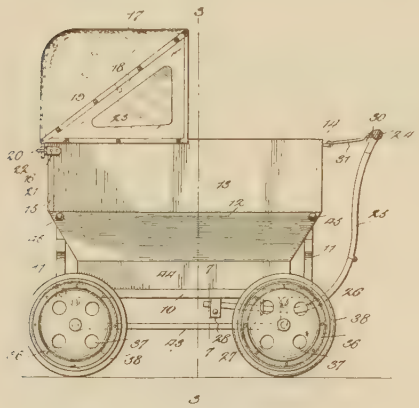
1,418,242. CHEESE MOLD. SAMUEL FIELDMAN, New York, N. Y. Filed Aug. 27, 1921. Serial No. 495,921. 8 Claims. (Cl. 31—21.)



2. A cheese mold including a frame having holes in its sides for the escape of whey, a foraminous element removably fitting in said frame at the bottom and having upturned ends, a foraminous follower plate fitting within said element and adapted to be disposed above the cheese in the mold, and separate elongated pressure strips accommodated in the frame above the follower plate to receive the pressure when the mold is in a press; together with a fabric strip in the mold beneath said foraminous element, said strip having a length to be turned inwardly over the cheese between the latter and the follower plate, and a second fabric strip on top of said foraminous element and disposed at right angles to the first strip, the ends of the second-mentioned strip having a length to be folded at its ends over the first strips.

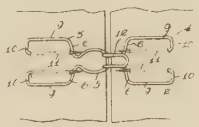
6. A cheese mold including a bottomless frame having perforated sides and a separate perforated element extending across the bottom of said frame and having upturned portions extending laterally outward over the top of the frame and detachably supported by the latter, said upturned portions extending into the frame to lie along the inner faces of the opposite perforated sides of said frame.

1,418,243. FOLDING BABY CARRIAGE. Gerald Forde, New York, N. Y. Filed May 27, 1921. Serial No. 472,989. 2 Claims. (Cl. 280—36.)



1. A baby carriage comprising a foldable handle structure, a foldable hood structure, and a body structure including ends respectively supported by co-operation of said handle structure and hood structure with respective ends.

1,418,244. HOOK AND EYE. Mattie D. Forrest, Marion, Ind., assignor of one-half to John H. Forrest, Marion, Ind. Filed Nov. 11, 1920. Serial No. 423,395. 2 Claims. (Cl. 24—88.)



1. A device of the character stated, comprising a hook member and an eye member, each formed of a single piece of wire, the wires forming the members being bent at their intermediate portions to provide engaging hooks and eyes, each of the wires then being flared apart providing shoulders, said shoulders bent to provide keepers, the ends of each wire then extending in parallelism away from the shoulders and including return bends, said wires terminating in parallel pins located between the parallel portions above mentioned, and the free ends of said pins adapted to be held by the keepers.

1,418,245. BLOWPIPE. Edmond Fouché, Paris, France. Filed Dec. 27, 1919. Serial No. 347,668. 6 Claims. (Cl. 158—27.4.)

1. In a gas blowpipe, the combination with a central pipe through which one of the gases passes, of a pipe concentric with the former through which the other gas passes, having a constricted portion of conical form at the upper part of the concentric pipe to deliver the gas in the form of an annular jet and to form an ejector, a chamber in the form of an enlarged pipe forming a mixing chamber for the gases, a nozzle terminating said chamber, a screw regulating device for moving said central pipe axially, and means for bringing to the base of the mixing chamber a jet of gas perpendicular to the annular jet.

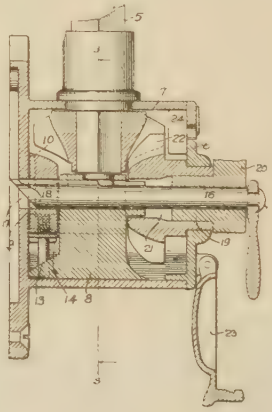
1,418,246. PROCESS OF TREATING GASES. Joseph C. W. Frazer, Baltimore, Md., Arthur B. Lamb, Washington, D. C., and David R. Merrill, Newark, N. J. Filed Feb. 12, 1919. Serial No. 276,635. 21 Claims. (Cl. 23—10.)

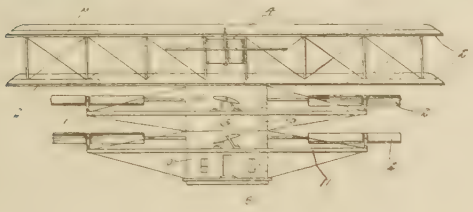
19. In a process of removing from gases catalytic poisons that are more readily oxidized, subjecting said gases to the action of catalysts at temperatures below 100° C.

1,418,247. AWNING BOX. David Froehlich, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Jan. 14, 1921. Serial No. 437,337. 1 Claim. (Cl. 74—7.)



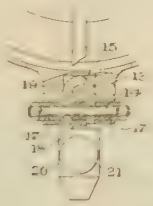
An awning box, including a driving member, a driven member, a dog adapted to engage one of said members, means for normally retaining said dog in projected position, a guide post, said guide post being formed with a key hole, said dog being formed with an opening, and a key adapted to be inserted through said key hole opening and into the dog opening for retracting said dog, said key being formed with a beveled outer end, and a key way secured to said key and co-operating with said key hole opening for preventing a rotation of the same.

1,418,248. COMBINED AEROPLANE AND HELICOPTER. JOSEPH THOMAS FULCHER, Guntersville, Ala. Filed Aug. 6, 1920. Serial No. 401,653. 2 Claims. (Cl. 244—15.)



1. In a flying machine, an upright hollow body of cylindrical form having vertical slots, a motor arranged in the vertical center of the body and having a horizontal drive shaft and a spur gear at the outer end thereof and exteriorly of the body, lower and upper annular drums surrounding and spaced from the body and provided above and below said spur gear with annular racks intermeshed with the same, upper and lower wheels surrounding and carried by said drums, radial rock shafts journaled in said wheels and carrying blades, curvilinear cranks fixed on the inner ends of said rock shafts and arranged at the inner sides of the drums and each carrying spaced anti-friction wheels, adjustable annuli surrounding the body and extending between the anti-friction wheels of said cranks, and vertically-movable manually adjustable brackets arranged at the inner side of the body and connected with said annuli to deflect the same, the connections being disposed and movable in the vertical slots of the body.

1,418,249. SOUND BOX FOR TALKING MACHINES. ALBERT HARDY GAY, London, England. Filed Apr. 20, 1921. Serial No. 462,817. 1 Claim. (Cl. 274—35.)



A sound box for talking machines having a bifurcated stylus bar bracket, a fulcrum pin mounted in the respective arms of the bracket, a stylus bar mounted on the pin between the arms of the bracket, a strip mounted on the pin on opposite sides of the stylus bar mounting and serving to maintain said stylus bar mounting in a predetermined position longitudinally of the pin and spaced from the arms of the bracket, and an insulating section arranged between the pin and the stylus bar mounting

1,418,250. ADJUSTABLE INSOLE. HARRY C. GEORGE, Morris Township, Morris County, N. J., assignor to Arrowsmith Manufacturing Company, Morristown, N. J., a Corporation of New Jersey. Filed Dec. 17, 1917. Serial No. 207,422. 10 Claims. (Cl. 36—71.)

1. A device of the character described, comprising an insole proper of flexible material, a piece of material adapted to be applied thereto and to have its major portion lie on one side of the longitudinal axis thereof, and means for holding the said piece of material located in the interior of the insole, said piece of material having a recess engaged by said holding means, said piece of material being movable to a position in which its major portion lies on the opposite side of said longitudinal axis, and in substantially the same relation to the insole as in the first position, the said holding means being constructed and arranged to hold the said piece of material in both positions.

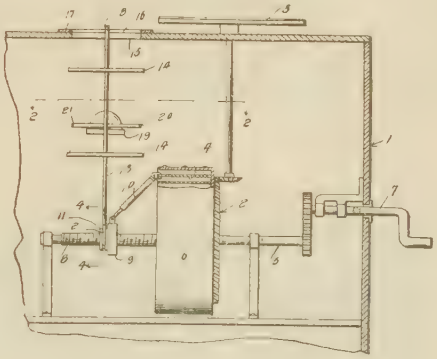
1,418,251. PHONOGRAPH ATTACHMENT. SAMUEL J. GINSBURG, Denver, Colo. Filed May 3, 1921. Serial No. 466,552. 4 Claims. (Cl. 185—44.)



4. In combination, a phonograph including a cabinet and a spring motor having a spring connected to a rotatable shaft and a rotatable casing, feed threads on said shaft, a feed nut on said feed threads and adapted to be moved in one direction by the rotation of said shaft, an adjustable telescopic arm connecting the feed nut to the outer convolution of the spring for causing said feed nut to rotate with the casing and move on the shaft in a direction opposite to the first named direction, a grooved collar formed on said nut, an indicating rod having a forked end engaging the grooved flange, guides carried by the cabinet and receiving the indicating rod, an indicating plate carried by said cabinet, a pointer carried by the indicating rod and movable over the plate, an alarm located in the cabinet, and actuating arms for said alarm and adapted to be engaged by the indicating rod when the latter reaches the approximate end of its movement in either direction.

1,418,252. MAIL-EXCHANGE DEVICE. JOHN E. GLASS, Marion, Ky. Original application filed Feb. 4, 1919, Serial No. 274,947. Divided and this application filed Nov. 26, 1920. Serial No. 426,423. 7 Claims. (Cl. 258—11.)

1. A mail transfer device of the character described comprising supporting means, a receptacle mounted thereon and having receiving and delivery compartments, the top and bottom walls of said compartments being slotted, and means independent of the receptacle for supporting a mail sack within said delivery compartment.

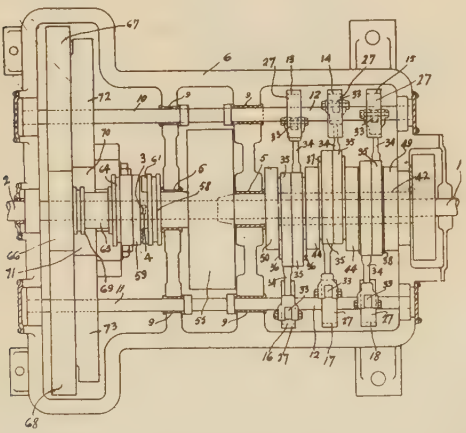
1,418,253. METAL-ETCHING COMPOUND. HARRY C. GLEOCKLER, Schuylkill Haven, Pa. Filed May 23, 1921. Serial No. 471,938. 2 Claims. (Cl. 41—43.)

1. A metal etching compound consisting of bluestone, a saline substance, an acid, and water mixed in the approximate proportions as stated.

1,418,254. TRANSMISSION MECHANISM. ROBERT GRANT and JOSEPH STANLEY RUSSELL RIGBY, Vancouver, British Columbia, Canada. Filed Mar. 31, 1920, Serial No. 370,116. Renewed Apr. 18, 1922. Serial No. 555,224. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—53.)



1. In transmission mechanism, the combination with the driving shaft and driven shaft, of a central gear mounted on said driven shaft to be rotatable therewith and capable of lateral slidable movement thereon, rotatably mounted gears engaging said central gear, rotatably mounted gears adjacent said first mentioned gears and normally out of engagement with said central gear, idler gears normally engaging said second-mentioned gears and into mesh with which the said central gear may be carried by lateral slidable movement, and mechanism adapted for engagement with the driving shaft by which its drive is transmitted by a series of successive impulses to said first and second-mentioned gears coincidently whereby rotation of said central gear is effected in either direction when moved laterally to mesh respectively with the said gears.

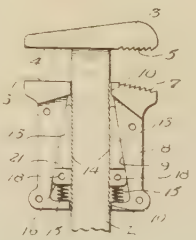
5. Means for transmitting motion from a drive to a driven shaft, comprising a series of interlocked eccentric disks freely mounted on the drive shaft, a series of driven clutches on the driven shaft, eccentric straps operatively connecting said clutches and disks, a sleeve normally free on said drive shaft and having a drive connection with one of said disks and releasable means for clutching the sleeve to the drive shaft to rotate therewith, said means comprising a friction drum carried by the sleeve, a member slidable on the drive shaft and drum engaging means carried by said member adapted to engage the drum upon movement of the member in one direction and to be disengaged with the drum upon movement of the member in the opposite direction.

6. Means for transmitting motion from a drive shaft to a counter shaft comprising a toothed sleeve rotatable on the drive shaft and a series of interlocked eccentric discs having toothed slots receiving the sleeve therethrough, a clutch establishing driving connection between the eccentric disks and the driving shaft, driving clutches on the counter shaft, eccentric straps operatively connected between said clutches and discs, and means for varying the throw of said discs comprising a gear on the toothed sleeve, a series of idler gears meshing with said sleeve gear, and an internal ring gear meshing with said idler gears.

1,418,255. REAMER. HARRY A. GREENLEE, Pawhuska, Okla. Filed Dec. 13, 1920. Serial No. 430,277. 2 Claims. (Cl. 255—73.)

1. A reamer for the purpose set forth, including a shank, a body coextensive therewith, but arranged laterally with respect to one face thereof, a flared wall connecting the body with the shank, a head on the outer end of the shank arranged laterally with respect to the face thereof that is flush with the face of the shank, said head having its face which aligns with the face of the head and shank provided with a V-shaped depression that enters the bottom thereof and that has its walls flared outwardly to provide a pocket, and cutting jaws to the opposite sides of the pocket.

1,418,256. WRENCH. HARRY GUTMAN, Chicago, Ill. Filed July 22, 1921. Serial No. 486,816. 1 Claim. (Cl. 81—148.)



In a wrench, a shank having portions of its edges roughened, a movable jaw on said shank, gripping pawls carried within said movable jaw and positioned one upon each side of said shank, said gripping pawls provided with roughened surfaces for gripping engagement with the roughened surfaces of said shank, and springs within said movable jaw and engaging said pawls for normally urging the pawls into gripping engagement with the shank, a slidable plate, pins carried by said plate and engaging said gripping pawls for moving said pawls out of gripping positions upon movement of the plate.

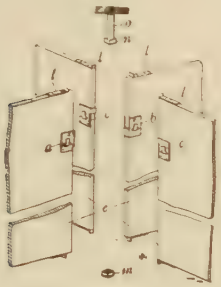
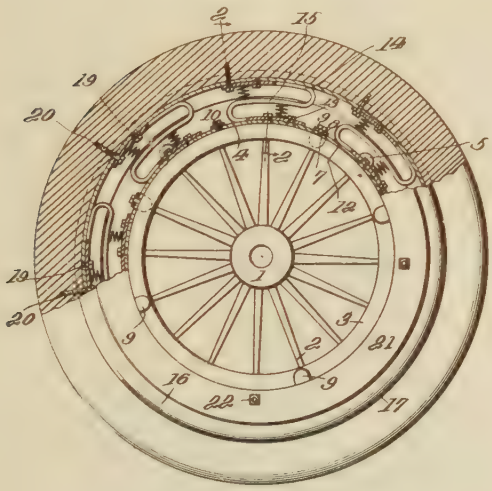
1,418,257. PARTITION CONNECTION. WILLIAM GEORGE HAY, Liverpool, England. Filed Dec. 15, 1920. Serial No. 430,956. 2 Claims. (Cl. 20—4.)



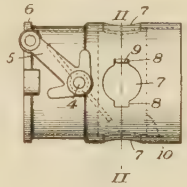
1. In a partition connection, the combination comprising angle pieces for attaching to the upper and lower edges of the partitons, upper and lower sockets for engaging the angle pieces, the lower socket being fixed, and a stem on which the upper socket can slide, substantially as described.

1,418,258. STEEL SPRING TIRE. WINFIELD S. HAYDEN, Palmyra, Mo. Filed Oct. 31, 1919. Serial No. 334,840½. 2 Claims. (Cl. 152—32.)



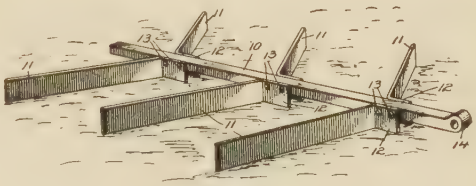
1. A spring steel tire for wheels comprising an inner felly and an outer tire carrying rim, substantially S-shaped springs disposed between said rims having their ends bent to conform to the curvature of said rims and secured thereto by spaced bolts and coil springs disposed between the loops of said S-shaped springs intermediate the spaced bolts.

1,418,259. AIR-INLET-CONTROL DEVICE FOR CARBURETORS. VICTOR R. HEFTLER, Detroit, Mich., assignor to The Zenith Carburetor Company, Detroit, Mich., a Corporation of Michigan. Filed July 15, 1920. Serial No. 396,583. 9 Claims. (Cl. 277—69.)



9. In an air inlet control device for carburetors, a casing having a control means for regulating the flow therethrough, said casing having side holes and an internal expanding band of a sufficient diameter to receive said means and having holes registering with the casing holes and provided with a projection extending through the casing for turning the band, said holes and said band controlling the admission of air to the casing and said first mentioned means thereafter controlling the flow of such air through the casing, substantially as described.

1,418,260. CLOD CRUSHER. CLAIRE C. HOOD, Dore, N. Dak. Filed June 22, 1920. Serial No. 390,693. 1 Claim. (Cl. 97—44.)



An implement of the class described comprising a central supporting member adapted to be coupled at one end to a moving apparatus, and a plurality of earth engaging blades of greater vertical width than the supporting member and having their inner portions directed forwardly in parallel relation to the supporting member and attached thereby to opposite sides of the same and extending in rearwardly and reversely oblique direction from the supporting member with the earth engaging edges of the blades extending below the lower lines of the supporting member.

1,418,261. DISPLAY STAND FOR DISCHARGE CERTIFICATES. CHARLES L. HOUSEHOLDER, Washington, D. C. Filed June 5, 1919, Serial No. 302,078. Renewed Nov. 3, 1921. Serial No. 512,575. 1 Claim. (Cl. 40—148.)

A display stand comprising a frame rectangular in shape and having its upper end open and having the upper ends of its side members beveled, the inner faces of the side members and the bottom member of the frame being grooved, panes of glass slidably engaged within the grooves in said side members and set within the grooves in said bottom member, said panes of glass being spaced apart whereby to accommodate therebetween a sheet to be displayed, a top member for said frame having beveled ends conformingly engaging the beveled upper ends of said side members and being provided with a slot through which the panes of glass extend, and a cap piece having the same length as said top member and carrying dowel pins engaged within sockets in said top member.

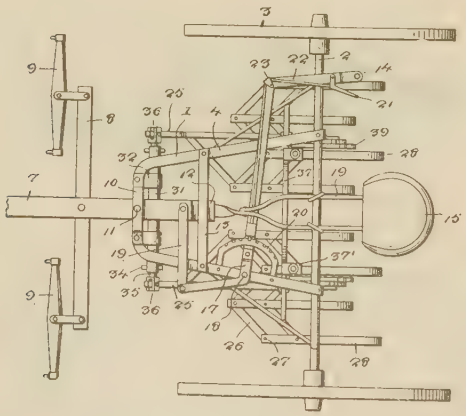
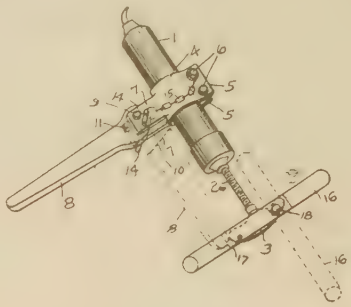
1,418,262. HAND-STEERED, WHEELED, CONVERTIBLE CULTIVATOR AND PLANTER. MONROE HUDGENS, Cookeville, Tenn. Filed June 15, 1920. Serial No. 389,169. 3 Claims. (Cl. 278—37.)



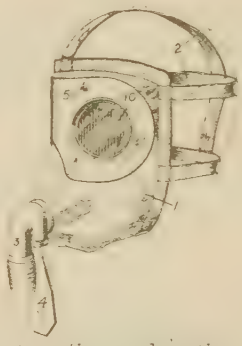
1. A hand steered wheeled construction, comprising an axle, ground wheels carried by the same, a main frame connected to and extending forwardly from the axle, said main frame being of U-shape in plane with the bight of the loop foremost, transverse spaced straps fixed to the main frame in rear of the forward end thereof and forming between them a raceway, a driver's seat supported on the main frame, a tongue pivotally connected at an intermediate point in its length to the forward portion of the main frame, means carried by and extending rearwardly from the tongue and movable in the raceway between the said straps, a hand steering lever arranged in convenient proximity to the driver's seat and fulcrumed at an intermediate point of its length to one side portion of the frame and extending forwardly from said connection; the major portion of said lever extending from the said pivotal connection transversely of the main frame, and a connection between the forward portion of the said hand lever and the rear portion of the tongue.

1,418,263. HOLDER FOR GREASE GUNS. HOMER R. KENNEDY, Los Angeles, Calif., assignor of one-half to G. M. Kennedy and one-half to J. J. Mathe, both of Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Apr. 12, 1921. Serial No. 460,791. 3 Claims. (Cl. 221—54.)



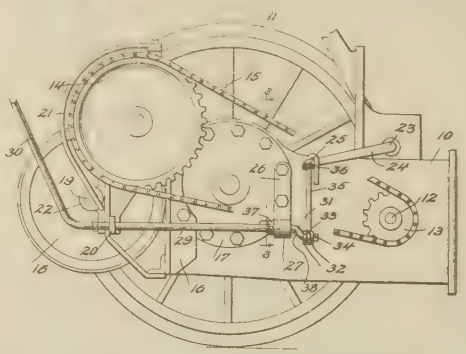
1. In a grease gun holder, a clamp, means for securing said clamp to said grease gun, a lever handle pivotally mounted on said clamp and means for locking said lever handle in a position approximately parallel or approximately transverse to the axis of said grease gun, all substantially as shown and described.

1,418,264. ANTIDIMMER FOR RESPIRATORS AND THE LIKE. ARTHUR B. LAMB, Washington, D. C. Filed June 17, 1920. Serial No. 389,690. 22 Claims. (Cl. 128—141.)



1. Means for preventing condensation of water on substances having one surface exposed to warmer atmosphere than the opposite surface comprising a cooling element serving as a condenser in close proximity to and coextensive with the surface exposed to the warmer atmosphere.

1,418,265. EXTENSION CLUTCH CONTROL. HARRY S. MYERS, Van, Pa. Filed Feb. 15, 1922. Serial No. 536,747. 6 Claims. (Cl. 74—39.)



1. The combination with a tractor having an automotive organization comprising a motor, propelling wheels, and mechanism for transmitting power from motor to the wheels including a clutch, of a machine separate from the said tractor, transmission mechanism under the control of said clutch for driving said separate machine from the motor of the tractor, and means for controlling the movements of said clutch from a point near said separate machine.

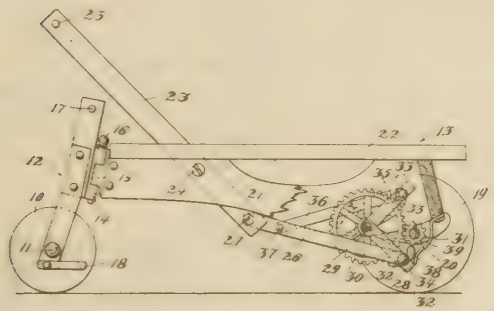
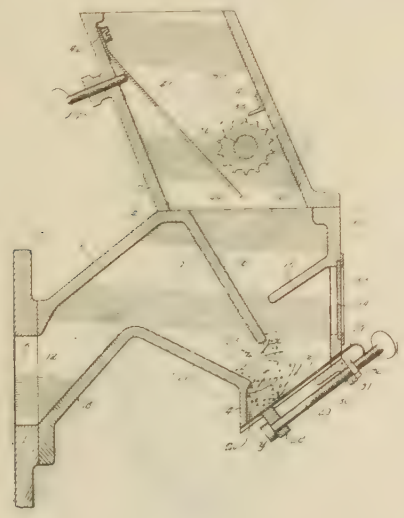
1,418,266. CHILD'S VEHICLE. JOSEPH M. THORPE and WILLIAM C. THORPE, Oakland, Calif. Filed Mar. 17, 1920. Serial No. 366,555. 8 Claims. (Cl. 208—36.)



1. In a vehicle drive of the character described, a shaft, a gear mounted thereon having exterior spur teeth formed around its periphery, a pair of arms adapted to swing about the shaft, means for transmitting a unitary oscillating movement to the arms in opposition to each other, and a pawl pivotally mounted on the outer end of each arm and engageable with the exterior spur teeth of the gear, a driving shaft and a spur pinion secured on said shaft and intermeshing with the first named spur gear.

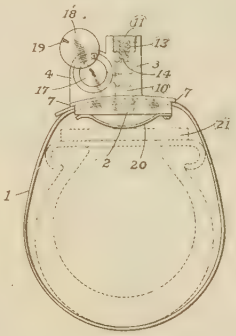
1,418,267. FEEDING APPARATUS. JOHN W. BARWELL, JEROME WARD, NICOLAY NELSON, JOSEPH HINGHER, WALTER E. BOOTH, and WILBUR L. BLOWS, Waukegan, Ill., assignors to Blatchford Calf Meal Company, Waukegan, Ill., a Corporation of Illinois. Filed Apr. 17, 1919. Serial No. 290,723. 8 Claims. (Cl. 83—54.)



1. A feeding apparatus having a conduit for directing a stream of grain downwardly, a conduit for directing a stream of air upwardly to meet the stream of grain to form a rotary movement and a discharge conduit for receiving the air and the grain carried thereby, the arrangement being such that the air will carry all of the grain through the discharge conduit and into a mill or the like while permitting the discharge of heavy objects which will be separated from the grain by the rotary movement of the air and will drop downwardly through the air conduit.

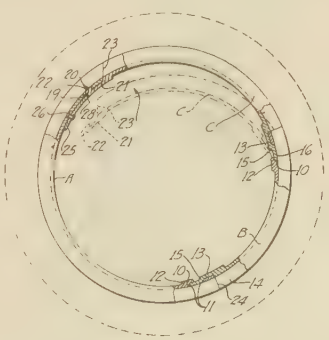
REISSUES.

15,365. TIRE LOCK. WALTER T. CAMPBELL, St. Louis, Mo. Filed June 4, 1921. Serial No. 475,094. Original No. 1,330,167, dated Feb. 10, 1920, Serial No. 318,582, filed Aug. 19, 1919. 12 Claims. (Cl. 70—17.)



12. A spare tire lock for vehicles, comprising an indestructible, flexible member that is adapted to be passed around a tire and the carrier on which it is mounted, a lock case having a passageway that is adapted to receive and hold the end portions of said flexible member in overlapping relation, a concealed key-controlled locking means in said lock case adapted to pass through the overlapped portions of said member, and a resilient device on said lock case that is adapted to engage the tire carrier, for the purpose described.

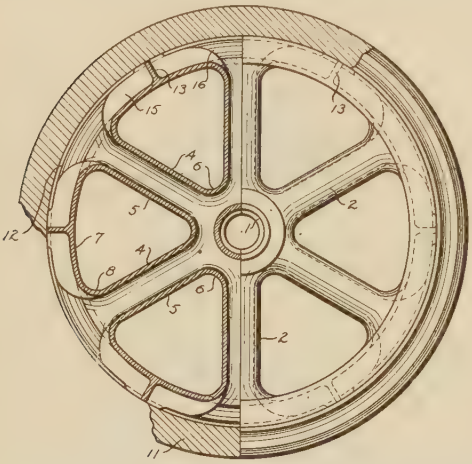
15,366. COLLAPSIBLE RIM FOR PNEUMATIC TIRES. WARREN E. DRESSEL, deceased, late of Edwardsville, Ill., by The Dressel Collapsible Rim Manufacturing Company, St. Louis, Mo., a Corporation of Missouri, assignee. Filed July 19, 1920. Serial No. 397,517. Original No. 1,264,622, dated Apr. 30, 1918, Serial No. 146,794, filed Feb. 5, 1917. 2 Claims. (Cl. 301—31.)



1. A collapsible rim for tires, comprising a plurality of segments, one of which has a tongue at each end, another of which has a slot at each end, and the third of which has a slot at one end and a tongue at the other end.

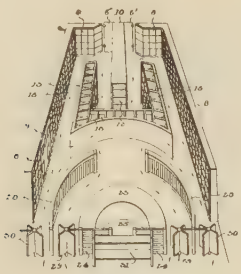
one of said slots having parallel walls beveled outward and towards the adjacent end of its segment, the coacting tongue having a locking lug beveled to fit said slot, and a cam pivoted on the end of said last mentioned segment adjacent said slot and adapted to engage over said lug and bear against the end of the tongue.

15,367. TRUCK WHEEL. ALFONSO M. LEONI, Baltimore, Md., assignor, by mesne assignments, to The Dayton Steel Foundry Company, Dayton, Ohio. Filed May 3, 1921. Serial No. 466,597. Original No. 1,201,597, dated Oct. 17, 1916, Serial No. 88,393, filed Apr. 1, 1916. 11 Claims. (Cl. 301—65.)



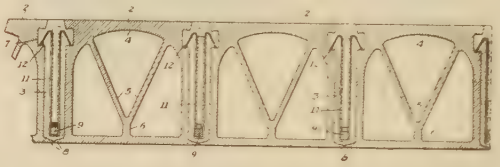
1. As a new article of manufacture an integral metal wheel having a hub, a plurality of substantially tubular spokes disposed radially from said hub, a rim having an inner circumferential wall, the forward and rear walls of said spokes extended in broadly sweeping curves merging into the said circumferential wall of said rim, said rim having integral side walls extending substantially in the plane of the wheel, and having separated webs projecting inwardly from the outer edges of the side walls of said rim for supporting a rim on said wheel.

15,368. SELF-SERVING STORE. WILLIAM B. MCCARTY, Jackson, Miss. Filed Apr. 7, 1922. Serial No. 550,466. Original No. 1,348,024, dated July 27, 1920, Serial No. 302,451, filed June 7, 1919. 7 Claims. (Cl. 211—8.)



2. In a store for the vending of merchandise, a storage inclosure provided with merchandise holders extending along its side walls, said inclosure having an attendant's desk in the middle of its front portion, a merchandise holder extending from the middle of the rear portion of the inclosure toward the said attendant's desk, a substantially U-shaped merchandise holder having its bight portion disposed between and spaced from said desk and from the said merchandise holders a distance to permit persons to pass therebetween, all parts of said U-shaped merchandise holder being sufficiently low to permit an attendant at said desk to see persons on all sides of said U-shaped merchandise holder, partitions extending from points between said U-shaped merchandise holder and attendant's desk to points between said side walls and said attendant's desk to form walled entrance passages and exit passages, exclusively entrance gates in said entrance passages, and exclusively exit gates in said exit passages, the latter being between said partitions and the said attendant's desk.

15,369. TILE FOR FLOOR STRUCTURES. JULIUS H. TOUPET, Pittsburgh, Pa. Filed Mar. 1, 1922. Serial No. 540,267. Original No. 1,404,710, dated Jan. 24, 1922, Serial No. 779,139, filed July 15, 1913. 11 Claims. (Cl. 72—66.)



9. In a building structure, a hollow tile having a top wall consisting of an arched span increased in thickness from its center towards each side, whereby pressure thereon will be converted into lateral thrust and grooves extending through the exterior faces of the side walls into the thickened portions of the arched span.

DESIGNS.

61,009. ICELESS REFRIGERATOR. GENNARO A. AMATO, New York, N. Y., assignor to Usnoice Refrigerating Corporation, New York, N. Y., a Corporation of New York. Filed June 24, 1920. Serial No. 391,547. Term of patent 3½ years.

The ornamental design for an iceless refrigerator substantially as shown.

61,010. VOTIVE STAND. ROSARIO COCO, Brooklyn, N. Y. Filed Mar. 14, 1922. Serial No. 1,170. Term of patent 14 years.

The ornamental design for a votive-stand, as shown.

61,011. LOOP FOR LIGHTING FIXTURES. THURE DAHL, New York, N. Y., assignor to Lightolier Company, a Corporation of New York. Filed Dec. 30, 1920. Serial No. 434,158. Term of patent 3½ years.

The ornamental design for a loop for lighting fixtures as shown.

61,012. BOTTLE. WALTER G. EISENMAYER, Los Angeles, Calif. Filed Sept. 16, 1921. Serial No. 501,209. Term of patent 14 years.

The ornamental design for a bottle as shown.

COMMISSIONER OF PATENTS

AND OF

UNITED STATES COURTS IN PATENT CASES.

DECISIONS OF THE U. S. COURTS.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

CLEMENT v. MCQUARRIE AND BULLARD.

No. 1464. Decided February 6, 1922.

1. PATENTS — INTERFERENCE — CONCURRING DECISIONS SUSTAINED.

Where the three tribunals of the Patent Office concurred in a finding in interference proceedings, the opposing party cannot prevail on appeal unless he establishes clearly and convincingly that the Commissioner was wrong.

2. SAME—SAME—CONCEPTION OF JOINT APPLICANTS.

A contention in interference proceedings that joint applicants had failed to establish joint conception is technical and is not favored by the law.

3. SAME—SAME—JOINT INVENTION PRESUMED FROM JOINT APPLICATION.

A presumption of joint invention arises from the filing of a joint application, which cannot be overcome except by clear and unequivocal evidence.

4. SAME—SAME—EVIDENCE HELD TO SHOW JOINT INVENTION.

Evidence that joint applicants were employed by the same company and that they began working together on the device prior to the conception by the adverse party in interference proceedings Held to establish a joint conception by them prior to the conception of the adverse party.

5. SAME—SAME—EVIDENCE HELD TO SHOW DILIGENCE.

Evidence that prior inventors were preparing their applications at the time the subsequent inventor entered the field and continued their efforts in that direction without unreasonable delay, though they may not have pursued the most expeditious course, shows reasonable diligence, which is all they were required to exert.

6. SAME—SAME—DILIGENCE A QUESTION OF FACT.

Whether there was diligence by the senior inventors is a question of fact, as to which the concurrent findings of the three Patent Office tribunals will not be reversed unless palpably wrong.

Mr. Horace A. Dodge and Mr. William G. McKnight for Clement.

Mr. J. G. Roberts and Mr. G. Willard Rich for McQuarrie et al.

SMYTH, C. J.:

Clement complains of a decision of the Commissioner of Patents in an interference proceeding involving semiautomatic telephone systems. The issue consists of twenty-eight counts, of which the following are examples:

1. In a telephone exchange system, the combination with a number of operators' connecting circuits, of mechanical line switching mechanism for each connecting circuit adapted to connect said circuit with the desired line, a controller for operating any one of said mechanisms, means for associating said controller with any one of said connecting circuits to operate its individual switching mechanism, and means actuated when said controller is taken for use by one connecting circuit for automatically locking out the other circuits therefrom.

2. The combination with a plurality of connecting circuits, of switching mechanism associated therewith, a sending device, said circuits being all normally in operative relation to said sending device, and electromagnetic means operated when said sending device is taken for use by one circuit for removing the remaining circuits from operative relation to said sending device.

13. The combination with a plurality of connecting circuits of switching mechanism associated therewith, a series of sending mechanisms, and means whereby the first idle sending mechanism of the series may be automatically associated with any one of said circuits.

14. The combination with a number of connecting circuits, of a mechanical line switching mechanism for each circuit, a series of sending mechanisms, and means whereby the first idle sending mechanism may be automatically associated with any one of said circuits taken for use.

There are two applications of McQuarrie and Bullard's and one of Clement's. McQuarrie and Bullard's first was filed September 27, 1906, and the second, February 5, 1907. It is conceded that Clement is entitled to March 15, 1906, as the date of his conception and constructive reduction to practice. The three tribunals of the Patent Office found against Clement. He cannot prevail here unless he establishes clearly and convincingly that the Commissioner was wrong. (Chalman v. De Voe, this day decided.) Clement took no testimony, but stood on the date just mentioned. He challenges the correctness of the Commissioner's decision upon two grounds, namely, (a) that McQuarrie and Bullard failed to establish joint conception prior to his date, and (b) that, if they had established it, they were not diligent when he came into the field.

The first contention is technical, and is not favored by the law. (Sieber & Trussel Manufacturing Company v. Chicago Binder and File Company, 177 Fed., 429; De Laski & Thropp Circular Woven Tire Company v. William R. Thropp & Sons Company, 218 Fed., 458; Selectasine Patents Company v. Prest-O-Graph Company, 267 Fed., 840.)

There is a presumption of joint invention flowing from the filing of a joint application which cannot be overcome except by clear and unequivocal evidence. (Consolidated Bunging Apparatus Company v. Woerle, 29 Fed., 449; Selectasine Patents Company v. Prest-O-Graph Company, supra; Lemp v. Randall, 33 App. D. C., 430; Yemiker v. Nesbitt, 48 App. D. C., 250.)

Moreover, there is testimony, apart from the application, that supports the conclusion of joint invention. At the time when it is said the invention was conceived by them they were employed by the Western Electric Company. McQuarrie was in charge of telephone-exchange development, and Bullard was a telephone engineer who reported to him. McQuarrie said that he and Bullard began to work together on semiautomatic systems in the latter part of 1904 or early in 1905; that in 1904 they had formed some idea with regard to the equipment, prepared some circuits, and made a few demonstrations in the laboratory; and that the system described in the joint applications involved in this case gives a detailed description of the one they were working on at that time. Nothing in the record is sufficient to overcome the effect of the applications coupled with this testimony, nor even of the applications when taken alone.

With respect to the question of priority, it is clearly established that McQuarrie and Bullard had knowledge of the invention before March 15, 1906. This is not seriously denied. As to their diligence, the record shows that they were at work preparing their applications before and at the time Clement entered the field, and continued their efforts in that direction without unreasonable delay until their applications were filed. Perhaps, as was observed by the Examiner of Interferences, they did not pursue the most expeditious course, but they were doing something toward the end in view from the date of conception until the cases were actually filed. Being the first to conceive, they were not required to exert more than reasonable diligence. (Dickson v. Swinehart, 49 App. D. C., 222; 263 Fed., 474.) There is no analogy between the present case and Clement v. Roberts (273 Fed., 757). There the court found that Roberts did nothing for nearly nine months upon the invention in issue. He devoted his time to an improvement not called for by the claims of the interference.

Whether there was diligence is a question of fact. We certainly cannot say on this record that the concurring opinions of the three tribunals of the Patent Office on this question are palpably wrong. (Thomson v Pearsons, 50 App. D. C., 273; 270 Fed., 1013; Anglada v. Moyer, 50 App. D. C., 395; 273 Fed., 359.)

The decision of the Commissioner of Patents is affirmed.

Affirmed.

Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

IN RE HASKELL.

Nos. 1471 and 1472. Decided February 6, 1922.

PATENTS — PATENTABILITY — CLAIMS FOR CEMENT HELD NOT ANTICIPATED BY GENERAL STATEMENTS IN PRIOR PATENTS.

Claims for a process for making a cement from a mixture of black albumen and disodium silicate, substantially, though not actually, in the proportions specified, whereby the mixture is given a sirupy consistency, and for the product of such process Held not anticipated by a patent dated 22 years before the filing of the application, which stated generally that all albumens acted as acids toward alkalies and formed double salts, especially where, 10 years after the earlier patent, an expert had stated that the mixture disclosed thereby had not been used with good results.

Mr. Fred L. Chappell and Mr. Otis A. Earl for Haskell.

Mr. T. A. Hostetler for the Commissioner of Patents.

ROBB, J.:

These are appeals from decision of the Patent Office rejecting claims 7 and 8 in the first case and claim 6 in the second, the three rejected claims reading as follows:

7. Process of preparing and applying cement consisting of dissolving black albumen in water, adding thereto disodium silicate, mixing the same until the mixture is homogeneous in substantially the proportions specified, applying the same to surfaces to be joined, and applying heat and pressure to set the same, as specified.

8. Process of preparing and applying cement consisting of dissolving black albumen in water, adding thereto disodium silicate, mixing the same until the mixture is homogeneous in substantially the proportion specified, applying the same to surfaces to be joined, and applying heat and pressure to set the same, thereafter boiling the laminated wood to completely soften and heat its texture and molding the same under heat and pressure to desired form.

6. A cement consisting of a mixture of a solution of blood albumen and silicate of soda dissolved and chemically combined together and of a syrupy consistency.

Inasmuch as the application in the first case is a division of the application in the second, we will consider the latter case first.

In his specification applicant says that the objects of his invention—are to provide an improved waterproof cement or glue which shall resist the action of the elements in use to an unusual degree and is especially well adapted to cementing or gluing veneer for canoes, boats, or for aeroplanes, including the wings, body and other parts. * * * In the preparation of my improved waterproof glue or cement I mix and dissolve black albumen, which is dried blood, in water in the proportion of forty-five (45) per cent of blood to fifty-five (55) per cent of water by weight and stir the same to dissolve the said black albumen as fully as it is possible to do it at the usual atmospheric temperature of a room at, say, about 70°. I place this material in a suitable stirring apparatus so that the same is stirred very thoroughly and continuously for several hours, usually about six hours. This insures as complete solution of black albumen or blood in the water as is possible to accomplish at the temperatures indicated and makes a homogeneous mixture. * * * I mix this blood preparation with a heavy grade of silicate of soda in the proportion by weight of five parts of dried blood to one part of silicate of soda solution. * * * Apparently reaction takes place between these ingredients. I stir and mix the same thoroughly until the mixture has an appearance similar to heavy molasses.

The cement is applied to veneers in the usual way and the material is then subjected to heat at substantially the boiling point of water. The specification further states that—there is slight variation possible from these proportions but to secure the thickening or syrupy effect the proportions of blood to silicate cannot be much varied.

Applicant also says in his specification that veneer put together with his cement can be molded afterwards as desired; that he has boiled samples continuously for four months without apparent injury.

The Examiner was of the view—that applicant has probably discovered certain proportions of albumen and silicate which produce valuable results, such as were not appreciated by the patentee Gardner, and therefore allowed claims 1 to 5. He, however, denied the claim here involved because persuaded that the "broad idea" of this claim is disclosed in the Gardner patent. This view was adopted by the Examiners-in-Chief. On appeal the Assistant Commissioner said:

> There is no doubt that an applicant who has made a patentable discovery in a composition of matter should ordinarily be allowed latitude for these proportions that would prevent an unauthorized user from varying his recipe slightly while obtaining substantially the same desired result without paying tribute for the information given the public by the discovery.

Nevertheless the Assistant Commissioner reached the conclusion that, in view of what he conceived to be limitations in the specification, the appealed claim was not allowable.

The British patent to Gardner, considered by the lower tribunals, is dated October 1, 1896, or about twenty-two years before the present application was filed. The subject of that invention was a waterproof glue and in the specification it is stated that—> all albumins possess towards alkalic substances the character of acid because they unite and form salts i. e. double salts.

Among the eight alkalic substances mentioned as "capable of being employed" are silicates, and among the four albumins is blood. A reading of the very general terms of the specification convinces us, as it apparently did the Patent Office tribunals, that Gardner had no conception of the invention made by Haskell. It is one thing to conceive the idea that a certain result is possible and quite another thing to demonstrate the possibility, that is, actually devise means to accomplish the result and convert the possibility into a reality. In the affidavit filed by Mr. Haskell in support of his application he sets forth that it is not possible, in carrying out the Gardner process, to produce a material that even approximately approaches his own in strength and durability; > that all other glue joints with which he has been familiar prior to his invention herein, or that he has ever seen advertised by others as made under the Russian method or under secret process, have yielded and broken down after a period of one to three hours of boiling, whereas he has boiled samples of his material for a period of four months, as above indicated, without effect upon the joint, * * * that the joint resulting from his improved material is of such quality and character that the laminated board made up of veneers is capable of being boiled and molded, retaining its form without breaking the joint, etc.

As further evidence that applicant has made a valuable discovery, our attention has been invited to the action of the Commissioner, who, early in 1919, prohibited applicant, under the provisions of the act of October 6, 1917, from making public his invention at that time, because it had—> been found to contain subject matter which might be detrimental to the public safety or assist the enemy in the present war.

Manifestly this action would not have been necessary had the Gardner disclosure really anticipated this invention. In the allowed claims the approximate proportions of the ingredients are supplied, but in each of the claims it is stated that the mixing must continue "until the mass becomes of a homogeneous sirupy consistency." Gardner evidently did not appreciate the necessity of combining the ingredients in the manner employed by the applicant and makes no mention of mixing such materials "until the mass becomes of a homogeneous sirupy consistency." This is important and goes far toward demonstrating that applicant and not Gardner really is the originator of the subject-matter of the claim here under consideration. Moreover, almost ten years after the grant of the Gardner patent, A. M. Luther, in his German patent, said:

> It is a well known fact that blood or blood albumin by itself as well as mixed with lime or alkalis, possesses adhesive properties. But it has as yet not been used with good results for gluing together pieces of wood, e. g., for veneering.

In other words, the British patent did not disclose to Luther, an expert, what the Patent Office has ruled, in effect, must have been disclosed to the applicant here. While applicant has stated in his specification that only slight variation from the given proportions is possible, he concededly has produced a result not contemplated before. Haskell has given the public a very useful and valuable material and we are not disposed, in such circumstances, to withhold from him adequate protection because of vague and general expressions in a patent more than twenty years old. The allowance of the five claims might be of little value without the appealed claim. That claim, in our view, goes no further than he has gone. It covers, and should cover, what he actually has done, and we think it should be allowed. (See in re Lower, 50 App., D. C., 159; 283 O. G., 183; 269 Fed., 675; in re Huff, 48 App., D. C., 258; 259 O. G., 386.)

What we have just said applies with equal force in No. 1471, since the same reference was relied upon in each case.

It follows that the two decisions appealed from must be reversed.

Reversed in No. 1471.

Reversed in No. 1472.

In this case Mr. Justice HOEHLING, of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, sat in the place of Mr. Chief Justice SMYTH.

Interference Notice.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.
Washington, D. C., May 10, 1922.

Christian E. Gudebrod, his heirs, assigns, or legal representatives, take notice:

An interference having been declared by this Office between the application of Smith & Dove Mfg. Co., Andover, Mass., for registration of a trade-mark and trade-mark registered February 19, 1895, No. 26,104, to Christian E. Gudebrod, 644 Broadway, New York, N. Y., and a notice of such declaration sent by registered mail to Christian E. Gudebrod at the said address having been returned by the post office undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said Gudebrod, his heirs, assigns, or legal representatives, shall enter an appearance therein within thirty days from the first publication of this order the interference will be proceeded with as in case of default.

This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

THOMAS E. ROBERTSON,
Commissioner.

Notice of Opposition.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE.
Washington, D. C., May 10, 1922.

Estasi Perfumery Co., Inc., its heirs, assigns, or legal representatives, take notice:

On December 15, 1921, upon the petition of the A. P. Babcock Company, of 501 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y., an opposition proceeding against the registration of a trade-mark to Estasi Perfumery Co., Inc., of 235 Fifth Avenue, New York, N. Y., was instituted by this Office. The attorney of record for Estasi Perfumery Co., Inc., has since withdrawn from the case, and a notice of such opposition sent to Estasi Perfumery Co., Inc., at the said address having been returned by the post office undeliverable, notice is hereby given that unless said Estasi Perfumery Co., Inc., its heirs, assigns, or legal representative, shall enter an appearance therein within thirty days from the first publication of this order, the opposition will be proceeded with as in case of default.

This notice will be published in the OFFICIAL GAZETTE for three consecutive weeks.

THOMAS E. ROBERTSON,
Commissioner.

Adverse Decisions in Interference.

PATENT NO. 1,370,427.

On April 13, 1922, a decision was rendered that Louis E. Giles was not the first inventor of the subject matter covered by claims 76, 77, 81, and 82 of his Patent No. 1,370,427, subject, "Computing machine," and no appeal having been taken within the time allowed such decision has become final.

Changes in Classification.

(ORDER NO. 2,746.)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
UNITED STATES PATENT OFFICE,
Washington, D. C., May 17, 1922.

The following change in the classification of inventions is hereby directed, to take effect immediately:

In class 105, Railway Rolling Stock (Division XXXIV), establish the following subclass and definition:

462. Poling, roping, and jacking irons.

462. POLING, ROPING AND JACKING IRONS. Railway-rolling-stock abutment fixtures adapted for temporary engagement with side-track push rods, ropes, chains, or lifting jacks.

The patents contained in this subclass have been taken from class 105, Railway Rolling Stock, subclasses 404, Car framing and structure, Freight; 408, Car framing and structure, Freight, Timber pockets, and 411, Car framing and structure, Freight, Braces.
